POINCARE, WAR LEADER, DIES

NEW DEAL FIRES RIGHT WINGERS, KEEPS RADICALS

Only Conservatives Are Ousted.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Casualties among the New Dealers continue to be one sided. All those who depart these scenes, either because they are no longer wanted or because they cannot stand it to stay longer, are among the "right wingers," those who lean toward conservative principles or government.

There is yet to be a radical kicked or eased out of the New Deal. But the list of conservatives grows ever longer.

The latest victims of the leftism within the New Deal are Lewis Douglas, now Europe bound, saddened and disillusioned after his resignation as director of the budget, and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, erstwhile big boss of the NRA.

Zeal for Social Reforms.

There can be no doubt about the liberal conservatism of Mr. Douglas. Though fired with zeal for social reforms, such as unemployment insurance, child labor abolishment, Mr. Douglas believed in a strict government economy. It was because he was eager to help trim the mountainous budgets amassed by the Hoover administration that he resigned his seat in congress and became director of the budget. But he learned the bitter taste of disappointment when the Roosevelt budgets put the Hoover budgets in the shade. He opposed vigorously also the monetary schemes of the New Deal. He was a "sound money" man. Out of sheer personal friendship for Mr. Roosevelt he stayed as long as he saw any opportunity to save money here and there, but when budget policy making was literally taken out of his hands he quit.

Gen. Johnson was more irrational than radical. He is regarded by the communistic party, by organized labor, as a "rank conservative." So was he held also by the two New Deal radicals who schemed successfully for his ousting as boss of the NRA. These two, Donald R. Richberg, who succeeded him in control over NRA, and Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, dominate the new committee of radicals which now governs the policy of NRA.

It is too early for the radical purposes of Richberg and Miss Perkins to have been manifest in the NRA, but there are some business men who are now ruefully predicting that the rule of Johnson, although intemperate and ruthless, was infinitely more conservative than will be the new NRA.

Woodin Withheld Opinions.

Most of the others who have left disagreed with the monetary policies of the President. The late secretary of the treasury, William Woodin, opposed the policies, but through great admiration for Mr. Roosevelt withheld his opinions. He retired from the cabinet because of his failing health.

Today few of Mr. Woodin's original appointees remain. His undersecretary, Dean Acheson, was unceremoniously invited to resign, to make way for the present secretary, Mr. Morgenthau. Acheson had been outspoken in opposition to the "rubber dollar" policy embraced by Morgenthau. Assistant Secretary Thomas Hewes, also a sound money man, resigned, as did Prof. O. M. W. Sprague, a famous economist who had been lured away from a lucrative post as adviser to the Bank of England to serve Mr. Woodin in the treasury.

Eugene Black, appointed governor of the federal reserve board during the Woodin régime, managed to swallow most of his sound money views for quite a time, but he kept pleading for release, and finally, a month or more ago, he went back to his old job as governor of the Federal Reserve bank at Atlanta. His successor has not yet been named, but it is expected to be Mortimer Eccles, a Morgenthau man from Utah.

Warburg Speaks for Sound Money.

James P. Warburg, New York banker, was a most active Roosevelt brain truster until the Warren-Rogers school of monetary experimentists came into power. He has since campaigned in speeches and in writings for a return to sound money.

George N. Peek, who opposed the more radical schemes of the Wallace-Tugwell school at the department of agriculture, was finally eased out, and has since been buried under the fancy title of "special adviser to the President on foreign trade." When Peek left another conservative in the AAA, Gen. William Westervelt of Chicago, also resigned.

Death Strike Miners Stay in Pit 3d Day

PECS, Hungary, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Forty-four out of 1,200 striking coal miners who for three days and three nights have been entombed by their own choice 1,000 feet underground, threatening mass suicide, were brought to the surface late today in a critical condition.

The rest remained below, some of them dying, still threatening to cut off the air pumps and suffocate to death in the coal mine pit unless their wages are increased. Of those brought to the top some were unconscious, many raving mad, and several at the point of death.

Alarmed at the critical turn which the strike has taken the government took a hand in the situation. Premier Julius Gomboes sent five trade unionists down to the pit with an ultimatum to the men:

"Come up within thirty minutes. If you refrain from lawlessness and violence we will negotiate with you."

Threaten to Kill Five.

Infuriated by the government's words the miners kept all five emissaries as hostages. Men with pick-axes threatened to kill them if they attempted to escape. The five were released later when the government threatened to dynamit the workings.

Thoroughly disturbed by this incident the minister of the interior was hurrying from Budapest to Pecs to rescue the unionists, who, it was feared, might be killed if the mine owners failed to grant the workers' demands.

Outside the mines were dramatic scenes as miners' wives battled with police in a vain attempt to enter the workings and join their husbands.

Demand $3.50 a Week.

The Danube Steam Navigation company, owners of the mines, in which British interests are heavily invested, have refused to negotiate with the men unless they come to the surface.

"It is useless to negotiate further unless you give your word now that all our demands will be granted," was the blunt reply from the pit's bottom.

Miners' wages amount to about $2 weekly. They demand $3.50—about 58 cents a day.

Disinterested persons attempting to enter the mine to mediate with the workers were threatened with death by six burly men armed with large hatchets standing at the entrance.

The strike was based mainly on the fact that owners have been able to give only part time employment to 4,500 miners in Pecs. The owners argued they could not grant more working hours because the company has 15,000 carloads of coal on its hands which it cannot sell.

SHERIF'S DEPUTY SHOT RESISTING TAVERN BANDITS

Deputy Sherif Oliver McCormick was wounded twice when he engaged in a gun battle with two would-be hold-up men who invaded the tavern of George Schaller at 3714 South Halsted street last night. McCormick was one of several patrons in the place when the gunmen entered with a loud demand for every one to "stick 'em up."

Instead of obeying McCormick whirled from the bar, drawing his gun as he did so, and opened fire. The gunmen returned the shots while other customers dived for cover under tables and behind the bar.

McCormick fell, shot in the arm and side, and the bandits made their escape to a car outside in which a third companion was waiting. McCormick and other patrons of the tavern expressed the belief that one of the bandits had been hit in the leg by one of the deputy's bullets. McCormick was taken to the Englewood hospital, where it was said he would recover.

NEAT LITTLE BOY ASKS FOR MAMA; WAITS ALL NIGHT

A 4 year old boy with red hair, his face freshly washed, and his neat clothes pressed, sat quietly in the Warren avenue police station yesterday and wanted to know where his mother was. He was found late Saturday afternoon at Jackson boulevard and Francisco avenue. At the station he told Desk Sergeant John J. Coughlin his name was Robert. His last name sounded as though it might be Deshane or Shannahan, the policeman said. Robert wore a blue button sweater with white stripes, a white waist, dark blue short pants, black sandals, and red half socks. He spent Saturday night at the Juvenile Detention home waiting for some one to come and get him. Last night he went bravely but sorrowfully to bed again still waiting.

FLEES FIRE OF '71, BUT GETS BACK IN TIME TO SEE FAIR

On the night of Oct. 8, 1871, when the great Chicago fire broke out, James Tansey fled before the approaching flames, and didn't stop until he got to Sandwich, in De Kalb county, about sixty miles from Chicago.

Yesterday Mr. Tansey, now 84 years old, came back to Chicago to see if the fire was out. Finding that it was, he took time to visit A Century of Progress. It was Mr. Tansey's first visit to the city since the night he fled from the fire.

He was wearing his best suit—a blue broadcloth creation which he purchased thirty-one years ago and wears only on very special occasions.

Train Hits Car; Kills 5; Wipes Out a Family

Five persons, including all of a family of four, were killed yesterday when a Baltimore and Ohio wrecking train struck an automobile bearing six persons at the Vermont street crossing in Blue Island. The sixth passenger was critically hurt.

The victims were all members of a picnic party on its way in two automobiles to Fort Sheridan. The dead:

HELEN HOCHSTADTER, 31 years old, his wife.

HERBERT HOCHSTADTER, 13 years old, their son.

JEAN HOCHSTADTER, 11 years old, their daughter.

MRS. ETHEL PATNO, 33 years old, 2237 Florence street, Blue Island.

Mrs. Patno's husband, Arthur Patno, 34 years old, was taken in a critical condition to St. Francis hospital in Blue Island. He is an engineman for the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad and a cousin of Hochstadter.

Blames Gate for Accident.

The tragedy happened at the start of the outing. Mr. and Mrs. Patno in their automobile stopped and picked up the four members of the Hochstadter family. As they drew near the railroad crossing 200 yards from the Hochstadter home, the wrecking train approached from the north, on its way to clean up a minor accident.

Albert Hall, gatetender at the crossing, attempted to lower the gates, he told Blue Island police, but the gate on the east side of the tracks stuck.

Seeing the gate on his side up, Patno drove into the path of the locomotive, which bowled automobile and its occupants along the tracks for 100 feet before it could stop. Three of the adults were instantly killed. Patno and the two children were taken to St. Francis hospital, where Herbert and Jean soon died.

Gates Are Tested.

Police tested the crossing gate 15 minutes after the collision and reported that it worked satisfactorily, but Hall's account of the accident was corroborated by Ed Schultz, 2657 Vermont street.

This accident brought the total of Chicago's week-end grade crossing death toll to eight. On Saturday a Chicago and North Western passenger train struck an automobile on the River road in Des Plaines, killing three occupants and seriously injuring two.

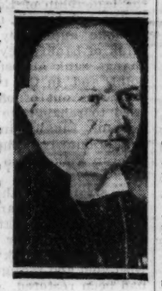
NAZI SPIES AND POLICE DEFIED; FILL CHURCHES

Crowds Cheer Blows at Reichsbishop.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—Sixteen thousand pastors of the Protestant church of Germany rose in their pulpits today and bitterly assailed the establishment of a Nazi dictatorship over religion.



BISHOP LUDWIG MUELLER.

Worshipers were surrounded by secret police and Nazi spies as they listened to the opposition clergymen defy Chancellor Hitler and Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller. Nevertheless, the pastors spoke freely. Charges of Nazi persecution were uttered from pulpits. Congregations wept and cheered as they were reminded that the rebellion against Dr. Mueller was nearing a climax.

"Triumph of Violence."

Mueller and Dr. August Jaeger, commissioner of Protestant churches in Prussia, were held responsible for the "triumph of violence and hypocrisy" in a manifesto distributed to congregations.

"Through Mueller and Jaeger Satan does his work," the manifesto said. "The church régime has nullified the gospel. It has violated the constitutional church government, and is using political force to gain its end.

"It splits Bavaria's unified church into two parts, but still it talks of unity. It denies the Ten Commandments and employs lies against truth and robbery against justice. Still it talks of Bible and creed.

"Caprice and falsehood have gained the upper hand in the church."

The Rev. Martin Niemoeller, submarine commander during the world war and militant leader of the rebellious pastors, spoke of the "reign of terror" in Bavaria at his church in Dahlem, a suburb of Berlin. He referred to the recent arrest of Bishop Hans Meisser of Bavaria and said:

"It is ghastly and shocking how a few persons calling themselves Christian Protestants are persecuting the congregation of Christ."

Charges Persecution.

He then compared the present situation to the reign of Pontius Pilate.

"The hour of Gethsemane is again at hand. Now, as then, there is persecution of Christians. Now, as then, the kiss is a betrayal and iron rods and weapons of violence menace the faithful. Hardships remain ahead.

"Even if the ear of the high priest's slave is struck off, now, as then, the path leads to Golgotha, with the cross in the background."

When the services ended women stood outside the doors and passed out copies of the manifesto protesting against the Nazi church government. A policeman strode up to an elderly woman and apparently intended to arrest her for distributing the leaflets. The crowd booed and the officer retreated.

The Rev. Mr. Niemoeller today threatened to issue an interdict to worshipers in Bavaria and Württemberg not to attend services of pastors appointed by Reichsbishop Mueller.

Protest Bishop's Ouster.

In Bavaria services of protest against the dismissal and arrest of Bishop Meisser were held. Pastors read what congregations called "hell fire and damnation declarations." The clergymen called Mueller and his aids "the powers of darkness, allies of heresy, and men who laid waste the house of God and abased the German church in the eyes of all Christendom."

A special service was held in the courtyard of the palace in which Meisser is held prisoner. A crowd of 10,000 Munich Protestants heard the deposed bishop appeal to them to continue the fight against the church rule. As he concluded the crowd shouted "Hail the bishop!"

While awaiting the possible arrival of the reichsbishop himself the congregation of the largest Protestant church in Munich resolved that, should he come, the worshipers would walk out on him singing Martin Luther's battle hymn, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God."

Death Takes Ex-Premier of Ruhr Fame

PARIS, Oct. 15 [Monday].—(AP)—Former President Raymond Poincaré died this morning. Death of the statesman took place at 3:30 a. m. at his home in Paris. He was 74 years old. He had been in poor health for years.

Poincaré was elected president in 1913, a year before France's entrance into the world war, and retired in 1920. He returned to political life in 1922 as premier, serving for two years. Then he returned to Paris again in 1926 to head the cabinet, and it was his leadership which is regarded as saving the franc.

Although Poincare was a wartime President of France, the most notable part of his career came in the years after the war when as premier he seized the Ruhr in an effort to compel Germany to pay its war debt to France.

POINCARE'S LIFE STORY.

Raymond Poincaré was born in the little jelly manufacturing town of Barle-Duc, in Lorraine, on Aug. 2, 1860, and both his admirers and detractors, during his 42 years as one of the most prominent figures in France, have claimed that his uncompromising attitude in dealing with post-war problems was partly due to the location of his birthplace. He was a boy of 10 when victorious Prussia seized the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine and united the small hereditary states of Germany into an empire at the palace of Versailles in 1871. Like many Frenchmen of the time he unconsciously dedicated himself to the task of restoring the old frontiers of France.

M. Poincaré's father was an engineer, his mother came of a politically distinguished family, his brother, Lucien, made a name for himself in electricity and physics, and another brother, Jules, acquired world fame in the realm of higher mathematics. His parents lived to see him president of France.

Married Actress in 1906.

A man with almost countless foes in his own country, M. Poincaré has, nevertheless, been always recognized in France as an honest man. His private life was always blameless and the taint of suspicion of graft or of loose conduct, so often attached to public figures, was never his. The French statesman married in 1906, after reaching middle age. His wife, Mlle. Henriette Benucci, was an actress of Italian origin and noted for her talents and beauty. She was the first wife of a president of France ever to be received officially at foreign courts. M. and Mme. Poincaré had no children.

Extreme as he was in some of his statements and vehement when he wished to convince his hearers, M. Poincaré was not at all a political spellbinder. His appeal was usually to reason.

M. Poincaré had an abnormal appetite for work. He did not drink nor smoke. He was fond of feathered pets Though little known, even in France, he was one of the country's most enthusiastic bee keepers.

Cabinet Member at 33.

M. Poincaré first entered in France's political life in 1887 as deputy for the department of the Meuse. Six years later, at the age of 33, he held his first cabinet post as minister of public instruction and then took over the portfolio of minister of finance, the rôle in which he was eventually to win his most conspicuous laurels. SAW KIDNAPED WOMAN ALIVE, DRIVER REPORTS

Airplane Search for Mrs. Stoll Fails.

Clew in Indiana

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Jack Reynolds, filling station attendant, reported to police today he believed Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, kidnaped Louisville society woman, was an occupant of an automobile whose driver stopped to inquire directions to Chicago this afternoon.

Three men were in the car, Reynolds said, and the woman, her head swathed in bandages, was in a reclining position in a corner of the rear seat. She wiped her face with a bloodstained handkerchief.

Police immediately sent an alarm to northern Indiana cities. Reynolds said the driver asked directions to Chicago by way of Crawfordsville.

Reynolds said the woman asked him if he sold aspirin, and before he could reply the man sitting in the seat with her said. "Shut your mouth. If you want anything I will get it for you."

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A vivid tale of having seen Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll bound and gagged in an automobile, told by a truck driver, sent her brother-in-law racing to the scene today and resulted in an army airplane searching from the sky.

This development came a day before the end of the five day period mentioned in the kidnaper's note left in the Stoll home. Two versions have been given on the period mentioned:

One held that the kidnaper would communicate with the family at the end of that time; the other that if the kidnaper had not received the money and made his way to safety by then his victim would be killed. The text of the note itself has been withheld by officers.

Tells Story of Crash.

James E. Scales, a 26 year old contracting plasterer, reported to police that at dawn he collided with a passenger car. The driver, he said, threatened him with a pistol and forced him to leave. Scales said he saw a woman in the machine.

"The woman in the car had all the general characteristics of Mrs. Stoll," he added. A few years ago when the Stoll home was being built he had often seen the young society matron who was kidnaped last Wednesday for $50,000 ransom.

Police blocked the highways as soon as the report came. William Stoll, brother of Berry V. Stoll, the woman's husband, dashed out and interviewed Scales.

Army Plane Joins Search.

Capt. William E. Welsh, in charge of the plane from Fort Knox, scanned the skies and radio station WHAS opened its program an hour late to avoid interference with any messages from the plane.

The mysterious car in which Scales said he thought he recognized Mrs. Stoll vanished. Department of justice agents, who refused to be quoted directly, professed not to put much hope that Scales' report would prove of value.

There were unconfirmed reports that an airplane would be used tomorrow to make a thorough search from the air. Miles of wooded and brush covered country lie south and east of Louisville. Much of it already had been gone over hastily.

Police and federal men today continued their unrelenting search of a wide area around the 16 acre Stoll estate itself. This was carried on yesterday by some 50 men.

Missing Four Days.

Four days and nights since an unidentified man slugged and abducted her, the fate of Mrs. Stoll remained a mystery, with relatives fearful she may have been killed or have died of exposure. She was ill and scantily clad at the time she was beaten and kidnaped.

Harold Nathan, department of justice agent in command, expressed hope of finding the prominent and wealthy woman alive and well, but said no evidence thus far has been found whether she is still living or is dead. "I won't claim any progress has been made," was all he would say.

Much of the investigation today, however, centered upon efforts to clear up the story told by Scales.

The woman, Scales said, "had all the general characteristics of Mrs. Stoll. I know this because when Stoll's present home on Lime Kiln lane was originally built my father and I did all the plastering work, and in the course of the work we became acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Stoll."

Scales said when he tried to get a clearer view of the woman the driver pointed the gun at him and said, "Walk backward until I tell you to stop." As Scales complied, the mysterious man jumped back into the car and drove off at high speed.

The woman, Scales said, "was slumped in the rear right seat and was attempting to open the door by pushing her shoulder against the handle. The lower half of her face was either bandaged or gagged, and she was twisting in her seat, turning in my direction as the light was flashed at me.

Believes Arms Bound.

"Her hands and arms were invisible and, from the position of her body, I am certain they were tied behind her."

Despite the truck driver's belief the woman was the kidnap victim, and the suspicious actions of the automobile driver, Nathan tonight expressed the belief that Scales had mistaken her identity.

Nathan, who is assistant director of its division of investigation, questioned Scales at great length and several other persons whom he refused to name. He said no one has been taken in custody.

An analysis was ordered of stains which might be of blood, found earlier in the investigation on a boat dock in the Ohio river, less than a mile from the Stoll residence.

"I don't think this will solve the crime, but we are carefully investigating every possible clew," Nathan said.

Safety First Concern.

Members of the worried Stoll family are giving every possible aid to the search for the kidnaper's victim, but neither they nor the officers are making any direct efforts so far to trap the criminal himself. "The safety of Mrs. Stoll is our first concern," a spokesman of the family said.

The assurance yesterday of Berry Stoll, broadcast to the kidnaper, that no attempt was being made to trap him and his plea that the victim be released in a safe, warm place, remained unanswered today. Stoll already had announced that the $50,000 ransom had been paid as directed by the lone man who snatched the young matron from her home Wednesday afternoon.

A theory advanced earlier by investigators was revived as time passed without news from Mrs. Stoll. This was that the crime was not a kidnaping for ransom primarily, but was an act of vengeance. Reasons were cited for believing that Mrs. Stoll was not the victim first contemplated by the criminal.

The kidnaper, who said he came to fix the telephone, slugged Mrs. Stoll, her maid said, and took her away. He spent an hour and a half in the house. The women were alone there.

Mentions Husband by Name.

The man mentioned Berry V. Stoll by name, the maid, Ann Woolet, declared.

"If Berry comes in I'll kill him," she quoted.

Berry Stoll is vice president of the Stoll Oil Refining company, founded by his father, C. C. Stoll, 30 years ago. His wife is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Speed, philanthropic and rich members of one of Kentucky's oldest families. Former United States Senator and Ambassador to Germany Fred M. Sackett is her uncle.

Some investigators suggested the kidnaper went to the house intending to seize some other member of the Speed or Stoll families and was driven by fear that he would be interrupted to take Mrs. Stoll.

Light Burns All Night.

The Stoll home sits on a low, smooth hill. A floodlight high on one side of the two story building ordinarily lights an outdoor lounge. Since the night following the kidnaping this light has burned all night. It has been much brighter and tilted half upward, as though to guide a plane landing or dropping a message. Several times at night planes have been reported circling high over the house, but no confirmation of them could be obtained.

Telephone communication out of Harrods Creek, nearest village to the Stoll estate, was cut off for a time after what appeared to be a plane high in the air was reported, but later statements were made that it was a mail plane.

POINCARE, WORLD WAR LEADER OF FRANCE, IS DEAD

As Premier He Insisted Germany Pay Debt.

1895 he was elected president of the chamber of deputies. Thercafter he led the usual turbulent life of a French politician, both as a senator and a lawyer.

He was mixed in every prominent "affaire." His career at the bar was particularly brilliant. The famous Dreyfuss affair brought him again into the limelight.

Intensely patriotic, he nevertheless was a liberal republican and would not side with the military clique, which opposed the reopening of the evidence on the alleged guilt of Capt. Dreyfuss as a spy. He also opposed secret trials. The young statesman neither had any sympathy for the nationalists in the Fashoda incident in 1898, when a French expedition, under the command of Maj. Marchand, declined to withdraw from an outpost it had taken on the White Nile, cutting Great Britain's line of communication between Egypt and the Sudan.

In 1906 he returned to the ministry of finance, but his tenure was brief, the government being defeated and Georges Clemenceau, who had been one of his most bitter opponents in the anti-Dreyfuss camp, became premier. He did not again hold a public position until 1912, when he formed his first cabinet, a cabinet which, owing to the well known Agadir incident, has been called the "ministry for national defense."

The Agadir Incident.

Trouble had been brewing between France and Germany ever since 1909 over Morocco. The partition of Africa among European powers, which had been a feature of continental politics since the early '80s, led to many quarrels. France's expedition into Morocco to disperse the rebels, attacking the weak sultan in Fez, displeased Germany even though the French troops had eventually been withdrawn. On July 1, 1911, Germany decided to send a warship to Agadir for the alleged purpose of defending the interests of its nationals and for several months the two countries were on the brink of war.

M. Poincaré was named reporter on the parliamentary commission which handled the compromise with Germany, by which she practically recognized a French protectorate in Morocco, but got in return almost half of the French Congo. M. Poincaré agreed with the premier that prudence was the better part of valor, since the country was not prepared in the military sense. So his first step on attaining power was to reorganize the army and infuse a new courage into France.

Fought for Military Defense.

He continued his preparation of French defense in the next year, when he was elected president of France, and vigorously supported the Barthou ministry that had succeeded the short-lived Briand ministry. Premier Barthou pushed through the three year compulsory military service law, which was similar to a law passed the year before in Germany.

A fortnight before the outbreak of the world war, and the day after the parliament had voted heavy credits for artillery and ammunition, President Poincaré and Foreign Minister Viviani sailed for Russia to solemnize Russia's lining up with France and Great Britain, already linked in an alliance.

As wartime president, owing to the nature of the French constitution, M. Poincaré played no conspicuous part. His old time foe, M. Clemenceau, was firmly in the saddle as premier, vigorously conducting the war. In 1919 M. Poincaré retired from the presidency with the satisfaction of seeing that he had managed to foil M. Clemenceau's attempt to become president in turn.

Retirement was Brief.

For two years M. Poincaré practically retired from politics. But he soon found himself senator for Lorraine. In 1922 President Millerand asked him to form a cabinet, and then began what are probably the two most brilliant chapters in M. Poincaré's life.

Germany had defaulted on reparations payments through the depreciation of the mark, a fall which M. Poincaré asserted was due to deliberate inflation. British Prime Minister Bonar Law, leader of the Conservative party, suggested a long moratorium for Berlin but the French leader would have none of it and ordered the French army into the Ruhr industrial basin, which he declared France would hold until Germany resumed payments and gave substantial guarantees of continuing to pay. Premier Poincaré also held the portfolio of the ministry of finance.

Led Way to Recovery.

The left cartel administration under the leadership of Edouard Herriot led to the inflation of the franc, and the republic apparently tottered on the brink of bankruptcy. The French exchange sank almost to the vanishing point, and, in the two years M. Poincaré was out of office, five premiers tried to rehabilitate the French fiscal system. Finally, in July, 1926, President Doumergue had to call on the veteran Poincaré to take charge of affairs again.

In six months the premier doubled the foreign exchange value of the franc and consolidated the floating indebtedness. After two years the vaults of the Bank of France bulged with gold and foreign credit confidence had been restored.

The final problem which M. Poincaré tackled before ill health forced him to resign and which he had had to tackle off and on for years, was that of the war debts. He never concealed the fact he thought that America and Britain should have canceled France's obligations, and he fought desperately to link German reparations to the war debts. This failed, but he succeeded in so far as he lived to see the Young plan, for which he led his last fights, giving France sufficient German indemnities to cover her obligations, plus the cost of war devastations.

"Col. Rogers is better," she said in a suite at the Hotel Pierre. "I think he definitly is on the upgrade."

AIR LINE PLANS FLYING SERVICE ACROSS PACIFIC

Experiment First Step in Regular Routes.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Inauguration of an experimental air transport service between California and the far east as the first step in the establishment of regular transoceanic passenger and mail service is promised in a letter from Pan-American Airways made public today by the postoffice department.

The airways company said that for several years it has been carrying on the necessary development work for the establishment of transoceanic service, and that institution of the experimental service "at an early date" now is being considered.

Tells of Development.

"In 1932," the letter said, "we commenced the construction of four-engine flying boats suitable for trans-Pacific service. In the far east we have developed, jointly with the Chinese government, an extensive air transport system, with some 3,000 miles of airways now in operation. We already have completed extensive ground and meteorological surveys covering the route from the United States to the principal trade centers of the far east.

"Our feeling that the inauguration of experimental service is now practicable is based on the recent successful flight tests of the Brazilian clipper, the first of the new transport ocean type four-engine flying boats developed by Pan-American Airways. This latest clipper flying boat has a top speed of 191 miles per hour and is capable of maintaining schedule service over the longest open ocean stretch of the through route between California and the far east."

Lindbergh Studies Facilities.

The airways company said it was moved to consider the early establishment of trans-Pacific service by the aggressive steps now being taken by European nations to entrench their international air lines in the far east. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his technical staf now are studying the question of terminal facilities on the Pacific coast in relation to local weather conditions, the letter added.

Postmaster General James A. Farley said the government was greatly interested in the proposal and congratulated the company for its enterprize.

Italian Inventor, Testing Diving Helmet, Drowns

Champagne Cork Pops Out; Sets Off Burglar Alarm

Police squads rushed to the Central States Liquor store, 327 Madison street, on report from the A. D. T. watch service that a burglar alarm had been tripped there, and found that a champagne bottle in a window display had "popped" against the window and set off the mechanism.

FIND BODY OF GIRL, 5, STUFFED IN FURNACE; SUSPECT CONFESSES

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—The charred body of Nancy Jean Costigan, 5 year old daughter of Richard J. Costigan of Forest Hills, Long Island, was found today in the firebox of an oil burning furnace in the largest apartment building in Mount Vernon. A discharged employe of the building later confessed the murder.

As Mount Vernon police responded to the call from the apartment house, their patrol wagon collided with a private car a block from the apartment building. Three policemen were hurt and an ambulance from the Mount Vernon hospital sped to the scene. As the injured men were being put into the ambulance, a man whose shirt and trousers were covered with blood lurched into the ambulance.

The man was taken to police headquarters, where he gave his name as Lawrence Stone, 24, discharged handyman. Stone, who was intoxicated, confessed after several hours of questioning. He said the child fell when he and she were playing ball and struck her head on the concrete. She "turned blue," he said, and he became terror-stricken and threw her in the furnace.

APARTMENT FIRE IN ROGERS PARK ROUTS FAMILIES

Fire starting in the basement of a 48 apartment building at 7722-34 North Ashland avenue last night destroyed two apartments and sent six families fleeing to the street.

The fire was first discovered by LeRoy E. McGriffin, who lives on the second floor at 7722 North Ashland avenue. He had gone to the back door, thinking he heard some one on the stairs, and discovered the smoke pouring up from below.

Flames soon invaded his apartment, and he and his wife were forced to flee, carrying their 8 month old girl. The apartment of Mrs. Helen George, assistant manager of the building, on the floor above the McGriffin apartment, also was wrecked.

Woman Fails to 'Contact' Dead Husband; Slays Self

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Leaving a note in which she explained she had failed to communicate with her dead husband through a spirit medium, Mrs. Iola Harmon, 45, turned on three jets of her gas stove and killed herself tonight. Mrs. Harmon was the widow of Frank Harmon, former South Bend policeman, who also committed suicide four years ago.

TEN PRISONERS SAW THEIR WAY FROM JAIL; ONE IS RECAPTURED

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Ten men sawed their way out of the Knox county jail tonight and reached the ground on a rope fashioned by fastening together bits of mattresses and pieces of pillow covers. They were led by Babe Simpson, eastern Tennessee gangster.

The break occurred a few minutes after the jail crew had finished its night inspection. Of the ten, Bill Wilmott, alias Bill Cavault, was captured.

The prisoners sawed two bars from the second story window of a cell occupied by Simpson. The improvised rope failed to reach the ground and they were forced to drop approximately ten feet.

N. Y. TONG LEADER IS FOUND SLAIN IN A BASEMENT

New York, Oct. 14.—(AP)—William Y. Mon, 42, Chinese tong leader and reputedly wealthy business man, was found shot to death today in an east side basement where he and friends had been playing mah jong. Mon had been president for the last two years of the Tung On associaion, benevolent and social organization.

Although police said they could find no evidence that the murder was caused by tong competition, extra patrolmen were assigned to Chinatown to guard against possibility of outbreaks between rival organizations.

Mon's body was found by a Chinese waiter, led to the basement by cries of Mon's 20 month old son. The child, his mother said, had fallen asleep in his carriage during the game and was present during the shooting.

FIRST TELEPHONE REFUND CHECKS GO IN MAIL TODAY

Coin Box Subscribers to Get 20 Millions in All.

Today will be "refund day" for the first group of 5,000 telephone subscribers who are to share in the distribution of more than $20,000,000.

It was estimated that about $100,000 will be paid out today, with a similar amount reaching Chicago's citizens each day, five days a week, making a total of $4,000,000 to be put in the hands of the public before Christmas.

In a schedule prepared by the company to govern payments until Jan. 1, checks mailed during October will go to the following exchanges: Aberdeen, Albany, Ambassador, Audover, Ardmore, Atlantic, Avenue, Beverly, Bittersweet, Butterfield, Canal, Cedarcrest, Crawford, Dorchester, Grovehill, and Hemlock.

November payments will be made to the Armitage, Boulevard, Briargate, Buckingham, Calumet, Central, Chesterfield, Commodore, Delaware, Englewood, Independence, and Irving exchanges, and in December to the Belmont, Diversey, Edgewater, Fairfax, Haymarket, Hegewisch, Inter Ocean, Prospect, and Pullman exchanges.

Mayor's "O. K." to Start Issuance.

Mayor Kelly and Attorneys Benjamin F. Goldstein and George I. Haight are to say the words that will start the money flowing. This morning the telephone company is to submit a copy of the first check to Attorneys Goldstein and Haight, officers of the federal court that ordered the payment, for their approval, and they in turn will ask the mayor if it meets with his approval. When he says "O.K." the checks will go into the mail.

It was Mayor Kelly who a year ago was responsible for the ten year old rate litigation being filed once more with the United States Supreme court for a reversal of the decision of the lower court which had ruled against the city and the subscribers. Attorneys Goldstein and Haight were special counsel for the city in the case, which involved a rate reduction of $2,000,000 a year and a refund of the excess $2,000,000 a year collected during the ten years of litigation.

Mayor Happy Over Victory.

"The city finally won that long battle," Mayor Kelly said yesterday, "and I am happy that now the people of our city are to participate in the fruits of that victory. The city, itself, benefited by $700,000 it had paid on the excess collections during ten years, and within the last two months the city was paid $300,000 in cash by the telephone company for money the city advanced to Attorney Goldstein and Haight. Now it is the public's turn, for a change, to receive money instead of pay it out."

The mayor cautioned the public to pay nothing to any lawyer in order to obtain any refunds due. If the telephone company does not send a check in due time to any claimant that claimant should notify the commissioner of public service and through him and Attorneys Goldstein and Haight all disputes will be settled.

Telephone company officials said the bulk of the first checks will be in amounts from $15 to $25, but a few will be for amounts as small as one dollar. The size of the check depends on the amount of excess payments during the last eleven years. In brief this amounts to 25 cents per month on the minimum guarantee and 1 cent on each call over the minimum guarantee.

To this sum is added 5 per cent simple interest, computed on each monthly telephone collection, averaging 25 per cent over the ten year period.

Persons who had the specified kind of coin boxes throughout the period are certain of at least 25 cents per month plus 5 per cent simple interest on each 25 cents from the date of the collection to June 1, 1934. A subscriber who made no excess calls but had the service during the ten years will receive approximately $3 a year principal, or $30 for the ten years, plus the interest which at the average of 25 per cent will make the check $37.50 minus 7½ per cent for the attorneys' fee, or $35.19. Each excess call is entitled to a refund of 1 cent, plus interest, which would be added to that $35.19.

But as many persons did not have this kind of service continually throughout the ten years the refund amounts will not average that high. Those participating were subscribers to one and two party business coin box service and two and four party residence coin box service.

The telephone company put 2,000 clerks to work figuring the amounts of individual checks and today they will start typing these checks. It is planned to issue 5,000 checks a day until all those who can be found by the postal authorities have been repaid for excess telephone payments. After that a system will be devised to repay those whose addresses have been lost by moving.

The shooting occurred in the farm home of the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Hagen, three miles northwest of Neillsville. Anna was shot above the eye, Fred in the mouth. The children were alone at the time, Hagen and his wife having gone to the barn to milk.

MAJ. GEN. BROWN RETIRES; TAKES ALL BY SURPRISE

It's News to War Dept. and to Own Staf.

Calling thirty staf officers together in his office Saturday morning, Maj. Gen. Preston Brown, commander of the Sixth corps area, abruptly announced his retirement from active service to take effect at the completion of a 45 day leave of absence.

The terse announcement was characteristic of Gen. Brown's career of 40 years in the service. Fifteen minutes later he left his headquarters, carrying his luggage, and within a half hour he boarded a train to join his wife, Susan Dorrance Brown, at Meadville, Pa.

Retires Ahead of Time.

Gen. Brown, who is known throughout the army for his strict discipline, completed four decades of service a month ago. Under army rules he could serve almost two more years before reaching the compulsory retirement age of 64 years, but he decided to invoke the rule which permits an officer who has been in uniform two-score years to retire at will.

The war department in Washington is due for a surprise when the mail is opened today, for Maj. Gen. Brown dropped the official notice of his intention to retire into the mail chute as he left the corps area headquarters in the new postoffice building to catch his train.

Brig. Gen. Frank C. Bolles, commandant of Fort Sheridan, will be acting commander of the corps area, which includes Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin, until the war department appoints Gen. Brown's successor.

Plans Winter in Jamaica.

In the few minutes between his announcement and his departure, Maj. Gen. Brown confided to members of his staf his tentative plans. After meeting Mrs. Brown, he said, he will visit in Philadelphia and Boston. They will sail on Nov. 10 for Jamaica, where Gen. Brown has leased a country home until April. After that he has no definite plans.

Gen. Brown assumed command of the Sixth corps area on Nov. 14, 1933, succeeding Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, who was transferred to the Philippine Islands. The new commander was transferred to Chicago from the Panama Canal Zone.

Has Record of Distinction.

He was born on Jan. 2, 1872, in Lexington, Ky. Educated at Yale university and the University of Virginia, Gen. Brown enlisted in the regular army and served in the field artillery from September, 1894, to March, 1897, and was commissioned a second lieutenant of infantry in March, 1897.

He served in Indian campaigns, in the Spanish-American war in 1898, and in the Philippine insurrection in 1900-01. During the world war he was chief of staf of the famous 2d division.

WOMAN FORCED TO LAND ON FLIGHT FOR COAST-COAST MARK

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 14.—(AP)—An oil line leak and unfavorable weather caused Maxine Howard, 22 year old aviatrix, to give up an attempt to set a new coast-to-coast speed record today. She landed here after a flight from Los Angeles.

She pointed the nose of her four-cabin high wing plane at 6:42 a. m., Chicago time, today, into the cloudy coast sky in an effort to break Col. Roscoe Turner's coast-to-coast speed record of 10 hours and 3 minutes.

She was accompanied by her husband, Benny Howard, racing pilot and plane designer, and Gordon Israel, pilot.

Mrs. Howard said she would pilot the plane all the way. She expected to make only one stop for gasoline.

NAZI AVIATRIX AT AGUACALIENTE ON PANAMA-U.S. TOUR

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Oct. 14.—(AP)—In a cabin monoplane bearing the Nazi swastika, Elli Beinhorn of Berlin, famous German aviatrix, explorer, and newspaper writer, arrived here today on her flight from Panama City to the United States. Today's lap was from Hermosillo, Mex. After a day's rest at this resort she plans to hop to Los Angeles.

Possessor of the Hindenburg cup, German's highest general aviation award, Miss Beinhorn is famed for flights from Africa to Australia and over Europe and Asia.

She made the trip over the wastes of Central America and Mexico with a single forced landing at Guaymas. She made frequent stops, touching at Merida, Mexico City, Mazatlan, Guaymas, and Hermosillo, in Mexico. Her tour through Central America she described as "thrilling."

BRITAIN EXTENDS TIME LIMIT FOR AIR RACE ENTRY

MILDENHALL, England, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The time limit for airplanes entered in the England to Australia air race to reach the airport here was extended tonight to midnight Tuesday. Only twelve of the planes, of the 66 originally entered, were at the airport tonight for the dash which is to start Saturday, weather permitting.

Only seven of the planes still absent from the port are in England. It was regarded unlikely that there would be more than nineteen planes in the competition for the $50,000 prize offered the winner. Only three American planes entered in the race were in England today. Jack Wright of Utica, N. Y., and John Polando of Lynn, Mass., brought their machine to the Mildenhall airport yesterday. Roscoe Turner and Clyde Pangborn were at Martlesham. Miss Jacqueline Cochrane and Wesley Smith arrived at Heston today from Southampton.

Large crowds which assembled to look over the racing planes demonstrated their greatest interest in J. A. and Amy Mollison. Seven English planes, two from New Zealand and one from Denmark were among those checked in at the airport. Besides the Millisons, the best known pilots in the field are C. J. Melrose, who recently set an unofficial Australia to England flight record of eight days, nine hours; C. W. A. Scott, former record holder for the flight; Squadron Leader D. E. Stodart, James C. Fitzmaurice of Ireland, and J. Wood, English competitor.

Race officials voted to permit George R. Hutchinson, American, and H. W. C. Penny, Australian, to enter the race if they can get here by Wednesday. Both are now in the United States and would be obliged to make a trans-Atlantic flight to arrive here in time.

SERBIANS WEEP AS SLAIN KING IS BROUGHT HOME

Funeral Train to Arrive in Belgrade Today.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Oct. 14.—Amid the sobs of 50,000 of his Dalmatian subjects, the body of King Alexander I. of Jugo-Slavia was brought to Split today on the destroyer Dubrovnik and was paid signal honors in a four hour ceremonial before a catafalque erected in the town's public square.

After the weeping procession had filed by the king's black draped coffin for two hours, it was removed to the royal train which had a black death coach with painted white crosses attached. The train left for Zagreb, capital of Croatia, where it arrived at 9 p. m.

The king's bier lies there on a catafalque erected in the public square before the Zagreb station. All night long thousands of Alexander's Croatian subjects filed by to pay him a last honor.

Track Covered with Flowers.

From Split to Zagreb the train passed dozens of towns. There were crowds everywhere of weeping peasants who came to the stations and sat along the tracks holding lighted candles. The railway track was covered with flowers for miles. Alexander's coffin will lie in Zagreb all night. Tomorrow noon it again will be placed on the train and brought to Belgrade. The train is due to arrive in the capital tomorrow night.

The body's arrival at Split was picturesque and impressive. The destroyer, escorted by French cruisers, proceeded along the Adriatic coast last night along a veritable path of searchlights. All the coast lights were turned on the sea. The ship steamed slowly past the islands outside of the harbor with the crew manning the rails. Bells rang and airplanes soared overhead. Sirens screamed from the ships and batteries fired salvos from the shore.

Passes Between Warships.

As the death ship entered the harbor, the Jugo-Slavian fleet and four units of the British Mediterranean fleet were drawn up in two lines. The destroyer passed slowly through the lane.

As soon as the destroyer docked, its commander, with tears in his eyes, walked down the gangplank, and saluted Prince Arsene, father of Prince Paul, head of the Jugo-Slav regency which will rule until the boy King Peter becomes of age. Then he conducted members of the government back on board, where the coffin was opened. Documents establishing the king's identity were signed.

Officers of the ship carried the coffin to the public square and placed it on the catafalque. Sailors laid forty wreaths on it. The Jugo-Slavian national anthem was played and the guns continued to roar. Then orthodox priests performed the religious ceremony.

When the priest descended from the catalaque Prince Arsene, members of the government, François Pietri, the French minister of marine, and Admiral Fisher of the British navy ascended to the coffin, laid wreaths, and saluted.

When the two hour procession of the populace before the coffin concluded, the body was carried to the train.

Face Momentous Week.

The arrival of the king's body in Belgrade tomorrow will initiate a momentous week for the kingdom. Prime Minister Nikola Uzunovitch has already resigned and the regents' first task will be to reconstruct the new government.

They may tell Uzunovitch to continue, or they may accept his resignation. In the latter case a new government will be formed. Bogoljub Yevtitch, minister of foreign affairs, has been mentioned as the next prime minister because he proposes to continue Alexander's policies.

Little Entente Parley.

The second event which may follow the funeral on Thursday, is the meeting of the three foreign ministers of the little entente—Jugo-Slavia, Czechoslovakia, and Rumania. The conference may be held next week. Foreign Minister Dr. Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia and Foreign Minister Nicholas Titulescu of Rumania will attend Alexander's funeral. The foreign ministers will take a definite position on the future policy of the little entente and what is to be done to modify the relations between Jugo-Slavia and Italy.

The problems of internal unity and peace are equally pressing. Prince Paul is the enigma in a drama which is about to enroll itself on this country.

Will he be able to keep the Croats, Slovenes, and Serbs from jumping at each other's throats? Some people think he might easily be dominated by the Serbian leaders who are not at all pleased at the regency because neither of Prince Paul's fellow regents are Serbs. Should the regency fall under the Serbian dominancy, Zagreb and the Croats will be more difficult to manage than they were under the dictatorship of Alexander and his generals. Then they will have their day.

DEMENTED BROTHER STILL UNAWARE KING WAS ASSASSINATED

NISH, Jugo-Slavia, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Out of Jugo-Slavia's 16,000,000 people only one person was still unaware of the murder of King Alexander.

This was the king's own brother, the former Crown Prince George, who at the instance of Alexander himself has been confined to a small barricaded, fortified house near here for the last nine years.

As George is known to be demented, neither Queen Marie, Prince Paul, head of the regency, nor the government has had the heart to convey the news of Alexander's death to the prince, who it was feared could scarcely comprehend the tragic news. George was forced to renounce the Jugo-Slav throne in favor of Alexander in 1909 after he had committed a number of eccentric acts.

Empty Belgrade Hotels; Make Room for Royalty

BELGRADE, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Americans and other foreign newspaper men and camera men, here in large numbers for King Alexander's funeral, were deprived of their rooms in hotels tonight to make way for the crush of foreign princes, state dignitaries, and distinguished private personages who have come for the same purpose.

The government broadcast an appeal to the populace to offer shelter to foreign journalists and visitors generally who otherwise might have to sleep in cafés, restaurants, or railway stations.

KING'S ASSASSIN IS IDENTIFIED AS MACEDONIAN

Police Claim He Was Aid of Fugitive Terrorist.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Oct. 14.—Petrus Kalemen, who killed King Alexander I. of Jugo-Slavia at Marseilles, was a notorious Macedonian terrorist named Valda Georgeff Tschernocemskz, the Jugo-Slavian press bureau announced tonight. He was 40 years old and former chauffeur of Ivan Mihailoff, Macedonian terrorist leader, who recently escaped from Bulgaria to Turkey.

According to Politika, Belgrade's leading newspaper, Tschernocemskz killed Hadgimoff, Bulgarian agrarian leader, in 1931. He also was said to have killed Naum Tomalevski, another leading Bulgarian politician, in 1930.

The identity of Tschernocemskz was established when Belgrade police sent photographs of the slain assassin and documents to Bulgarian police. Bulgarian police said the Macedonian had been using the name Kalemen as an alias.

Croats Are Soothed.

The establishment of the identity puts a different complexion on the situation between Italy and Jugo-Slavia. It also mollifies the Croats, who have been indignant over the allegations that Alexander was killed by a Croat.

On the other hand, relations between Bulgaria and Jugo-Slavia will lose some of the smoothness they had following Alexander's visit to Sofia a month ago.

It also is known that the assassin was a liaison officer between Bulgarian and Croatian terrorists as well as an instructor in bomb throwing and assassination in a terrorist camp in Hungary.

SEEK MASTER MIND

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 14.—Police investigation of the assassination of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France took a particularly grave turn tonight following publication of a communique declaring that several distinct terrorist bands were involved in the plot against the monarch and that all were working under the direction of a single master mind.

This announcement was made after a conference at Lausanne between Swiss police authorities, who have been investigating the activity of Balkan terrorist gangs in Switzerland, and agents of the French sureté nationale from Annemasse and two Jugo-Slav police officials. The Jugo-Slav officials are Simanovitch, chief of the secret police, and his assistant, Dimitrevich, chief of the Zagreb secret police.

Seeks to Frustrate Police.

The semi-official Havas agency says in this connection:

"Officials have announced it has been established that the Marseilles plot involves not only a certain number of terrorists but a single organizing brain. This master mind has sought to scramble up the investigations after the crime. Several groups of terrorists have been operating under the same central direction independently and ignorant of one another's moves.

"Serious clews have come to light and it is more and more apparent that the terrorist plot was carried out after a long preparation, with minute attention to detail. The master mind, who directed the plot, has worked with Machiavellian ingenuity to throw the police investigators on the wrong trails."

This news is regarded as pointing the way to possible international complications of a very serious nature. Until today it was supposed that King Alexander died the victim of the personal hatred of the Croatian separatists who have been repressed with particular severity—not to say by barbarity—by the Serbian police. Hungary stands accused of moral complicity in the crime because for years she has harbored Croatian refugees and given them a base from which they could prepare terrorist outrages across the border.

Terrorists Exploited.

If the latest allegations are confirmed, some man or group of men possessing extraordinarily efficient means of information has been exploiting terrorist groups of totally different national and political affiliations in a deliberate attempt to throw Europe into turmoil.

A further element of confusion is furnished by reports from Belgrade and Sofia tonight linking the Croation terrorists' band, Ustashi, with the Macedonian terrorist organization, Imro, whose emblem Petrus Kalemen, assassin of King Alexander, had tattooed on his arm.

On the basis of existing clews, the French police are convinced that at least nine persons were involved in the assassination plot. Three have been accounted for—the actual assassin and the two Croats under arrest, whose names were given as Yvan Ratich, alias Vladislav Benes, alias Joseph Sever; and Vronomir Pospisil, alias Yaroslav Novak, alias Istban Ingar Sungar. A third accomplice named Chalny escaped from the police at Fontainebleau and still is being sought in the environs of Paris.

The chief interest of the police, however, centers on Egon Kramer, who is believed to be the chief of the gang, and a beautiful young woman known as Marie Vjudroch. Her trail was picked up at a hotel in Aix-en-Provence. These two persons are believed to have given Kalemen his instructions.

NAZI EDITOR CLAIMS ASSASSIN RECEIVED PAY TO KILL HITLER

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The sensational claim that "a murderer had been bought for 50,000 marks to kill Hitler at the Nuremberg party congress" was made by Julius Streicher, Nazi publisher and militant anti-Semite, in an address, reports of which reached the capital today.

Streicher, publisher of the Sturmer, declared that "other countries hope national Socialism will soon kill itself." He added that such a hope was realized "in the matter of the death at Sarajevo and of King Alexander and Foreign Minister Barthou of France at Marseilles."

"In the first case it was a Jew," he said, "and this week the photograph of the killer is highly significant. Yes, also for der fuehrer was a murderer bought."

Streicher spoke at the party meeting in Nuremberg last week.

Duke of Kent to Attend King Alexander's Funeral

LONDON, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The duke of Kent, fourth son of King George, flew from Hendon airfield today in an airplane of his brother, the prince of Wales, to Paris, where he will join his fiancée, Princess Marina, and attend King Alexander's funeral at Belgrade Thursday.

PARENT CHURCH'S RECTOR TALKS IN ST. JAMES PULPIT

The anniversary of a century of Episcopal church services in Chicago was celebrated yesterday at St. James Episcopal church, Wabash avenue and Huron street, the first Episcopalian parish in the Chicago area, of which the Rev. Duncan H. Browne is the 12th and present rector.

The centenary celebration began on Sept. 30 and will continue till Nov. 4, but yesterday's service had an especial historical significance, because it was conducted by the Rev. Philip M. Kerridge. Dr. Kerridge is pastor of St. James Episcopal church, New London, Conn., the parish which the Rev. Isaac Hallam left in 1834 to found the St. James in Chicago.

Dr. Hallam's first sermon was delivered on Oct. 19, 1834, to a congregation of 40 or 50 persons meeting in the First Presbyterian church at Clark and Lake streets. Dr. Kerridge preached to a congregation that thronged the large gray stone edifice on the near north side.

The third of the series of centennial sermons will be delivered next Sunday by the Rev. Raymond Know, chaplain of Columbia university. The festival evensong will be conducted at 4:30 p. m. by Dr. Tertius Noble, organist at St. Thomas Episcopal church, New York.

FAIR'S WEEK-END ATTENDANCE IS RECORD FOR YEAR

14 Millionth Visitor Goes Through Gates.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Beautiful Indian Summer weather combined with two national programs yesterday lured record breaking Sunday throngs to A Century of Progress, maintaining the waning Fair's high attendance figures and establishing a new high week-end figure for the year. At midnight 213,307 visitors had passed through the gates.

The previous high week-end attendance figure was established on Aug. 25 and 26 when 382,634 paid admissions were recorded. Although the recorded total of Saturday's figure of 168,971 and yesterday's high attendance were slightly below the Aug. 25 and 26 figure at midnight, Fair officials pointed out that several hundred to a thousand are added daily to the total figure for the day when official revisions are made, leaving no doubt that a new record had been set.

14 Millionth Visitor Recorded.

The fourteen millionth visitor to this year's Exposition entered the ground shortly after 9:20 a. m.

The honor guest, greeted at the 12th street gate by Peter John Morrison of the Fair staf, was Miss Gladys Goedde, 546 North 10th street, East St. Louis. She was presented with numerous gifts. Miss Goedde was accompanied by Miss Dorothy Dixon of East St. Louis, selected as "Miss Southern Illinois" in a recent contest. The two girls arrived at the Fair after spending the night on an Alton railroad train with a tour party of twenty-three members of the East St. Louis Retail Merchants association.

Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the Fair, accredited yesterday's record breaking throngs to the fine weather and to the fact that the public realizes that the Fair closes forever at midnight, Oct. 31. Another important factor is the reduced rail rates of one cent a mile for round trips which are bringing thousands of out of town visitors into Chicago.

Rail Trafic Records Broken.

The New York Central lines yesterday reported passengers had arrived in such numbers as to break all records for week-end trafic both in 1934 and in 1933. Total for the week-end was 16,625, including visitors on extra sections of regular trains, many special trains, and with all regular trains carrying additional rolling stock.

The two national events on yesterday's Fair program were the appearance of the Albanians and, in the evening, the presentation of the Czechoslovakian program.

The Albanians, with Faik Konitza, minister to the United States, as the guest of honor, paraded through the grounds in national costume in the afternoon and held a formal program in the Court of States.

Present National Pageant.

A program of folk dancing and singing, and the presentation of a national pageant with a beauty queen characterized the Czechoslovakian evening program in the Court of States. The main address was made by Jaroslav Smetanka, consul general in Chicago.

Another diplomat will be honored at the Fair today. He is Leonard Astrom, minister to the United States from Finland. He visited the Fair informally yesterday, and at 11 a. m. this morning will receive a military reception in the Court of Honor with a diplomatic salute of fifteen guns.

14 MILLIONTH FAIR VISITOR

Miss Gladys Goedde of East St. Louis, Ill., arrived at the 12th street gate of A Century of Progress yesterday to find a pile of souvenirs awaiting her as the 14 millionth visitor of the year.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

When A Century of Progress closes Oct. 31 the Loyola University School of Medicine exhibit in the Hall of Science will become part of the teaching equipment at the medical school. This was announced yesterday by the Rev. Terence H. Ahearn, S. J., regent of the school. Father Ahearn said he had declined offers to display the exhibit at other fairs because of its value for teaching purposes in the departments of anatomy, embryology, and neurology.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne will speak at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in Fullerton hall of the Art institute on "Miniature Rooms," which she is exhibiting at the Fair. The exhibit is on Northerly Island near the Electrical building.

The Negro Little theater of Evanston will present a one act play entitled "Numbers" at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in the Illinois Host house.

Both Saturday and yesterday, an extra performance of "Wings of a Century" was necessary to accommodate the large number of patrons who desired to see the dramatic pageant of transportation.

Several thousand members of the Travelers' Protective association are expected to visit the Fair next Saturday. A program will be held in the Court of States.

The contest designed to find the most popular of all winners in the various musical, dance, and impersonation contests which have been held at the Fair this season, will begin at 8 o'clock tonight and continue through the week. The finals will be held Friday night. The contest, open to prize winners in any contest held at the fair, will be held on the stage of the Lagoon theater.

Approximately 10,000 high school students are scheduled to take advantage today of the student tour opportunity which will be extended to secondary schools, beginning today. Four Chicago high schools, Lakeview, Flower, Harper, and Hyde Park, will send students to the Fair today and tomorrow. Other schools will visit the Exposition during the week.

A large detail of World's Fair guides and policemen will be on duty today and every day on the plaza of the General Exhibits building while the "human cannonball" act is being staged to prevent any possibility of injury to spectators. Zacchini, the man who will be shot from the cannon, will rely on the net for protection, but Fair visitors will have the added police protection.

Claiming the all-time record for attendance at a single exhibit of an international exposition, the main building of the Ford exhibit clocked the ten millionth visitor at 8 o'clock last night. This record was established while the total attendance for the Fair was still under fourteen million. In addition to drawing 70 per cent of the entire Exposition attendance, officials of the exhibit asserted that a million and a half people visited the Ford Symphony Gardens during the summer, and a like number passed through the Ford industrialized barn.

SEEK EQUIPMENT AT WORLD'S FAIR FOR SOUVENIRS

Visitors Make Offers on Village Items.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Many offers to purchase World's Fair equipment as souvenirs have been received at the various villages of A Century of Progress from Fair visitors, it was revealed yesterday. Although most of the village managements are uncertain whether such properties will be kept or disposed of, some of them probably will sell objects and materials which have aroused interest.

Merrie England has had many requests for the chime system in use there and for the two figures of boys in a pool which are a reproduction of original lead figures in England.

Even Cobblestones Wanted.

"It is possible that Merrie England, whose buildings were constructed substantially, will be retained by the park commission," said J. T. Schless, manager and contractor. "If it is not, we might hold a public auction of equipment.

Chicagoans have indicated a desire to purchase such oddities in Merrie England as the columns in the old Globe theater, the "Chessire Cheese" sign, and even the cobblestones of the pavement, Mr. Schless said.

At the Irish village, souvenir hunters sought to purchase the two antique "jaunting carts," the laces and china of Irish make, and the old peasant chair on display there, but all these articles were brought from Ireland under bond and must return there at the end of the Fair, the manager said.

The Black Forest Village may remain intact and be removed to some other spot in Cook county or to another fair. Meanwhile the management there is receiving requests for various typical features such as a pair of porcelain storks on the stork tower.

Much of the Midget Village equipment will go to the San Diego fair in 1935, with more than half of the village's population of 158 midgets, according to Nate T. Eagle, managing director.

Bells Will Go to Belgium.

George Potie, manager of the Belgian and Swiss villages, said that if any one wished to purchase any part of either village for preservation he might do so. All statues and works of art will be given to museums, he said. Dismantling of the large Deagan carillon, owned by business men of Belgium, a feature of the Belgian village, was begun over the week-end. The bells will go back to Belgium unless a buyer with $10,000 and money for customs duties can be found. The two bears from Bern, Switzerland in the Swiss village will be given to the Brookfield zoö, Mr. Potie said.

M'NUTT REGIME LEADING INDIANA ELECTION ISSUE

Democrats Are Striving to Shift Spotlight.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Although the Democrats are seeking to prevent it, the Democratic state administration of Gov. Paul V. McNutt is being made a major issue in the present Indiana political campaign. And although the Republicans denit it, the Hoosier Democrats are insisting they have the blessing of the Roosevelt administration.

A United States senator, all twelve seats in the national house of representatives, the mayors of many Indiana cities, and the personnel of both houses, of the Indiana legislature, which convenes in January, will be elected in November.

Robinson Seeks Reëlection.

Arthur Robinson, Republican seeking reëlection, holds the senate seat. Of 83 Indiana cities 46 are Democratic. All of the large cities except in Lake county and Richmond are Democratic. The twelve congressmen seeking reelection are Democratic. The 1933 Indiana legislature was unprecedentedly controled by one party—the Democratic.

The wholesale sweep of the Democrats in 1932 has given the Republicans a splendid target in their attempt to capitalize the considerable unpopularity of the McNutt régime. They assail the numerous periodic escapes from Indiana penal institution, including the Dillinger scandal, as caused by flagrant use of the spoils system among prison guards and executives.

They cite the high prices of beer and hard liquor in Indiana as caused by spoils allotment of excise permits to McNutt régime favorites. They assail the increase of special taxes, including the twin sales-income tax, under the McNutt era.

Corn-Hog Checks Considered.

Senator Robinson and other Republican nominees put criticism of the Roosevelt régime in second place on their campaign attack. This is because they accept at face value the AAA press agent statements that thousands of Hoosiers are receiving corn-hog checks, and that hundreds of others are on Democratic controled relief rolls of various kinds.

The Democrats, well aware of their tremendous power because they not only are incumbents but have an unprecedented plum tree to utilize, assert they will hold control of their numerous municipalities, will keep intact the congressional delegation, will positively control the legislature, and also insist that Minton will go to the senate.

HIS RELIEF "INSUFFICIENT."

Denver, Colo., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Charged with theft of $700 worth of clothing from automobiles, Monte Jamison, 35, told police his federal relief allowance wasn't sufficient for him "to live right, so I had to get money from some source."

2 BROTHERS SLAIN, FATHER BADLY HURT IN FAMILY FIGHT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Family troubles were attributed tonight to a shooting in Alexandria, Va., eight miles from the capital, in which two brothers were slain and their father critically wounded.

Police said George D. Roberts, an Alexandria policeman, was being held in connection with the case.

The dead were Ward E. and George Stuart. The wounded man was William F. Stuart. One of the sons was the policeman's father-in-law.

IOWAN ADMITS HIRING EX-FELON TO MURDER WIFE

Dubuque, Ia., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Delaware county officials and state police declared today that they obtained a confession from Reginald Tracy, 54, a Manchester insurance agent, that because Mrs. Tracy "constantly nagged me" he caused her to be killed during a fake holdup. He named Adolph Berg, 34, an ex-convict, and Mrs. Flossie Fear, 32, of Farley, Ia., as having plotted with him, officials say. Berg has not been captured but Mrs. Fear is in the county jail.

It is charged that Mrs. Fear acted as Traiy's agent in hiring Berg to do the killing for $10,000, paying $200 on account. Park Findley, head of the state bureau of criminal investigation, got Tracy's confession.

Mrs. Tracy's body was found in the family automobile, which stood in a ditch near Golden, Ia., 10 miles south of Manchester. Mr. Tracy had staggered into a farmhouse. His head was bruised and bloody. He declared he and his wife had been held up by three men. Mrs. Tracy had been shot three times. Tracy's wound, Findley said, was inflicted by Berg to make Tracy's story plausible.

Mrs. Fear is the mother of four children. She and Tracy are said to have made a previous attempt on Mrs. Tracy's life. There was a fake automobile accident last January near Manchester and they considered poisoning Mrs. Tracy, they are said to have confessed to Findley.

REVEALS HUGE GAIN IN HITLER TRAINED FORCES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—Minister of Labor Franz Seldte, leader of the former association of veterans, the Steel Helmets, in a speech today at Dresden revealed figures on the size of the semi-military forces placed at the disposal of Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

"One hundred and fifty thousand youths of other boys' organizations have joined Hitler Youth," he declared, "and 314,000 comrades of the active Steel Helmets and 400,000 of the regular Steel Helmets placed themselves at the disposal of the Storm Troopers. The remaining Steel Helmeters joyously joined the Nazi organization."

NEW DEAL OUSTS RIGHT WINGERS, KEEPS RADICALS

Casualties Heavy Among Conservatives.

No Successor to Moley.

Mr. Moley is really the first and last head of the Roosevelt brain trust. There has been no real successor, although Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell has been nominated and at times been acclaimed as the new head. But Dr. Tugwell has never really qualified.

Mr. Moley was eased out of his berth as assistant secretary of state because of a feud with Secretary of State Hull which was entirely personal. At no time did Mr. Roosevelt find fault with the Moley opinions on affairs of state or on economics.

But there are some who see the professor a victim of the radicals in the New Deal. He has many views regarded as distinctly radical, but is known to have opposed the wilder schemes proposed by the radical element.

Welcomed By President.

To indicate the Moley independence, it may be noted that in his magazine Today he recently delivered a stinging assault upon the theories of Upton Sinclair, Democratic candidate for governor of California. Earlier Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, had hailed Sinclair as "one of us," and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace declared that much of what Sinclair preached already was a part of the New Deal. The President had welcomed Sinclair to the summer White House and sent him away babbling with joy, and Postmaster General Farley told Sinclair to "Call me Jim."

But Moley has really not left the brain trust. He is called to the White House on every occasion to help the President draft an important speech. Just now he is meeting representatives of big business at dinners held in New York, trying to assuage their fears, telling them the New Deal is not destructive of business principles nor of private initiative and private profit.

One conservative has joined the New Deal. He is Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the securities exchange commission, and his appointment was strongly urged by Moley. Mr. Kennedy is doing a good job, according to opinions expressed by conservatives and radicals alike.

SHOT IN QUARREL; DIES.

John Ward, 45 years old, 724 Milwaukee avenue, a waste-paper dealer, died yesterday in the county hospital of loss of blood from gunshot wounds inflicted on Saturday, police say, by John Woody, 45 years old, 1050 Monroe street, during a quarrel over Woody's wife.

244,174 NAMES STRICKEN FROM REGISTER BOOKS

Leaves Total of 1,466,131 Qualified City Voters.

The names of 244,174 voters in Chi were stricken from the register books by judges and clerks as a result of Saturday's revision, according to a compilation completed yesterday by the board of election commissioners. This leaves a total of 1,446,131 registered voters in the city. The highest registration recorded in the city was 1,498,314 in 1932.

In the eight country towns of Cook county which are under the jurisdiction of the election commissioners 7,092 names were stricken, leaving the total registered voters in these towns 73,372.

Figures for the present year are not final as yet, however, since applications to erase names may be filed on Oct. 22 and 23, and three days of hearings will be held by the board on Oct. 25, 26, and 27.

Register Records by Wards.

ILLINOIS G. O. P. LEADERS ASSAIL WASTE IN STATE

Decry Democrats' Political Use of Relief Funds.

Republican county candidates and their managers launced yesterday an attack on Democratic extravagance, charging that relief money is being squandered for political purposes.

Justus L. Johnson, Republican state chairman, issued a statement charging the "Nash-Kelly-Horner Tammany machine" with trying to terrorize persons on relief and to force them to vote the Democratic ticket.

"President Roosevelt has repeatedly claimed that the Democratic party puts human rights above property rights," Chairman Johnson says. "The Nash-Kelly-Horner Tammany machine either does not believe the President or refuses to agree with him.

"State relief funds in Illinois are exhausted. Federal funds will have to be used until the end of the year. The federal relief authorities have told the state government it must raise from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 for 1935 if government aid is to be had after Jan. 1.

Horner Sidetracks Problem.

"It would seem to many citizens, especially the 1,400,000 now depending on relief for food, shelter and clothing, that the raising of relief funds by the state is equal in importance to any other state activity at this time.

"But Gov. Horner and the Chicago Tammany gang do not think so. Gov. Horner announces he will convene the assembly in special session next month but will not permit it to take up the question of raising relief funds. That, he says, will have to go over to the next regular session to be convened in January. In the meantime thousands of unfortunates must face the uncertainty of relief through the winter."

George F. Nixon, Republican nominee for president and member of the county board, spoke at a meeting in Cicero. He asserted the county is the largest corporation of its kind in the United States and the voters are charged with the duty of electing a board of directors.

Importance to Tax Payers.

"The man you select for president of the county board is going to have the power of appointment over many other important positions," Mr. Nixon said. "His conduct and that of his appointees mean much to the taxpayers in this time of stress and trials. He becomes in effect the estate agent of a group of the wealthiest landlords in the world—yourselves—though this may sound funny—and has supervision over the spending of your money.

David L. Shillinglaw, Republican nominee for the Board of Tax Appeals, charged a deliberate waste of $41,200,000 a year by the city and county governments through the "unnecessary sale of tax anticipation warrants." He said that while the city and county have millions on deposit the officials continue to sell the warants on which some brokers made a handsome profit.

The Democrats arranged for a "concerted action" meeting tonight at the Civic Opera house. Mayor Kelly and State's Attorney Courtney will address the precinct workers. The party plans a series of mass meetings and radio programs.

BURNED WHILE COOKING; DIES.

Mrs. Florence Gale, 43 years old, 4820 North Keeler avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital of burns incurred Saturday when her clothing caught fire as she was cooking over a gas plate in her home.

BORAH TO TALK AGAINST NRA IN MIDDLE WEST

Boise, Idaho, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Senator Borah will carry his anti-NRA campaign into the midwest soon in an effort to elect Republican senators.

Senator Borah has attacked the AAA and phases of the NRA, such as the section suspending the anti-trust laws. Regarded as a possible Republican presidential candidate two years hence, he has predicted a third party, if the two major parties do not soon espouse policies he believes essential.

CHECK FORGERY PLANT RAIDED; TWO ARRESTED

Pair Accused of Nation-Wide Plot.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—A nation-wide forgery plot, believed to have resulted in the loss of thousands of dollars in many sections of the country, was nipped here tonight, police announced, with the arrest of S. B. Norton, 34, and the confiscation of 175 blank checks and a printing plant for counterfeiting them.

Norton's arrest followed information from Pontiac, Mich., police after the arrest there of Earl Brand, alleged accomplice of Norton in a scheme by which the two are accused of having mulcted industrial companies by means of counterfeit checks. Brand implicated Norton, supplying information on which Norton was arrested.

Police Seize Plant.

Three trucks were required to transport the contents of the plant to police headquarters after a raid disclosed the printing press and equipment, a large supply of blank checks on southern and eastern banks, and the form on which checks had been printed.

One Toledo Pressed Steel company check on the First National bank of Toledo.

Sixteen Steel Products company checks on the Citizens Bank and Trust company, Savannah, Ga., signed by B. E. Barnes.

Thirteen Mutual Life and Insurance company checks on the Liberty Bank and Trust company of Savannah, Ga., signed by R. V. Sternwood.

Fifteen West Knoxville Foundry company checks on the East Tennessee National bank.

Fifteen Savannah Machine and Foundry company checks drawn on the Citizens Bank and Trust company of Savannah, Ga.

Fourteen Baltimore Steel company checks.

Fifteen Clover Foundry, Muskegon, Mich., checks.

Sixteen Muskegon Screw Works checks on the Muskegon State bank, and five blanks to be used for shares of stock.

Find Books of Names.

Included also in the evidence seized at Norton's home here, where he lived with his wife and a 12 year old son, was a book of company names and addresses.

Plans to invade the south this winter were seen in the number of checks on southern industries already printed. In addition to these checks Norton's basement housed the printing plant, valued at more than $5,000, two check writing machines, two typewriters, and and quantity of merchandise.

Saves 3 in River

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Vincent Regan, 4644 Virginia avenue, saved three young men yesterday afternoon when their canoe overturned in the north branch of the Chicago river near Carmen avenue. The young canoeists were Edward Felus, 21 years old, 2532 Carmen avenue; his brother Roy, 24, and Fred Hunter, 24, 2530 Winnemac avenue.

Regan was in his home, which is near the river, and he heard their cries for help. As he ran to the rescue he cut down a clothes line in his back yard, threw one end to the youths in the river and hauled them ashore.

HUSBAND KILLED, WIFE INJURED BY HIT AND RUN CAR

George Gatsos, 35 years old, of 2121 Sedgwick street, was killed and his wife, Maida, was perhaps fatally injured when both were struck by a westbound automobile while crossing the street at Garfield avenue and Clark street early this morning. The car, containing two men, stopped momentarily, but as a crowd gathered the occupants seemed to become panic-stricken. The lights of the machine were extinguished and it sped west in Garfield avenue.

Mrs. Gatsos was taken to the Augustana hospital, where it was found she had suffered several broken ribs and a fractured skull. Her husband was killed outright.

Gatsos' death, the death of five in a Blue Island grade crossing accident, and three other fatal trafic accidents brought the 1934 Cook county toll to 955. The others:

Mrs. Mary Wakefield, 60 years old, 2123 West Monroe street. Died at the Washington Boulevard hospital after being struck by an automobile while crossing in the street in front of 3206 Warren avenue. E. Howard Kulenkamp, 25 years old, 1239 North Taylor avenue, Oak Park, driver of the car, was not held.

John Hutchinson, 50 years old, 1011 North Wells street, died in Henrotin hospital half an hour after being struck at Ontario and La Salle streets by the automobile of Philip Shapiro, 4875 Magnolia avenue. Shapiro was held.

Albert Linn, 50 years old, 1638 Jackson boulevard, died en route to the Danish-American hospital early yesterday of injuries suffered a few minutes earlier when he was struck at Cicero avenue and Altgeld street by an automobile driven by Frederick Tracy, 32 years old, 536 North Oak Park avenue, Oak Park.

Dominick Gniazdowski, 1350 Bauwans street, Chicago, was killed last night four miles north of Ottawa, Ill., as he and four other Chicagoans were changing a tire on the road. Their car was struck by the automobile of the Rev. George T. Green, former pastor of the Ottawa Methodist church, recently transferred to Rockford. None of the others was injured.

The body of Emil Amundsen, 60 years old, an employe of the Spinney Run farms, near Gurnee, in northwestern Lake county, was found on Milwaukee road, a mile south of Gurnee. Police, who examined the body, declared he had apparently been run over by several cars.

WORD EXPECTED TODAY ON POST FOR DR. HUTCHINS

President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago left last night for Washington, D. C., where, it is expected, announcement will be made today of the position in the New Deal administration which will be offered to him by President Roosevelt.

Dr. Hutchins, who was elected president of the university in 1929 at the age of 31, has declared he would have nothing to say about his federal appointment until the announcement was made in Washington.

It has been reported that a new high position would be created by President Roosevelt for Dr. Hutchins. There have also been reports that he will be asked to fill the post of chairman of the national labor relations board, vacated by the resignation of Lloyd K. Garrison, who will return to his duties as dean of the University of Wisconsin law school.

Frederic Woodward, vice president of the university, returned yesterday after a two weeks vacation in the east. He would be acting president in Dr. Hutchins' absence.

CROP REDUCTION COWARDLY, SAYS DR. GLENN FRANK

New Book Hits Also at "Dead Doctrins."

GLENN FRANK.

"The mass mind, the noted educator says, "might go dangerously far to the right. Strained by an excess of novelty in Roosevelt-ian policy, it might turn in blind reaction against everything experimental and gamble a living future on dead doctrins.

"It might lodge the leadership of the nation in the hands of men who would stubbornly refuse to see that when a people emerges, as we have emerged, from an economy of scarcity into an economy of plenty, its political, social, and economic arrangements must be made to fit the scale and tempo of the new order of production. "A national leadership of this sort," Dr. Frank added, "would, in the end, mean national suicide."

Denies Partisan View.

The writer, president of the University of Wisconsin, declares in a foreword that "this is in no sense a partisan document."

In several instances, he reverts to the theme of an economy of plenty and finds himself in vigorous opposition to any program of crop curtailment.

"To restrict production and to raise prices as a general policy," he said, "is, to me, not liberalism but reaction, not statesmanship but surrender, not creative advance but cowardly retreat."

This way, he adds, "lies the subsidizing of inefficiency."

"To me it is incredible," Dr. Frank writes, "that, in a world of tragically unfilled human need, we should now set out upon the quixotic attempt to increase welfare by destroying wealth or declining to create it."

Cites Statism Philosophy.

Dr. Frank's book delves into all phases of economic, social, and political life. In one chapter, "Freedom Invaded," the educator tells of a new philosophy—"common to all experimental governments, the philosophy of statism."

"Post-war capitalism," he says, "ran amuck. . . . The debacle darkened and made intolerable the lives of too many people to permit government to stay neutral in the economic confusion and conflict. Some force had to hold the social order together. The state was the obvious force to act in the common interest."

We may, he adds, "set it down as inescapable that government will play a larger and larger rôle in the realm of economics whether the White House is occupied by a Roosevelt or a Hoover."

The one thing common to all the experimental governments of the time, Dr. Frank says further, "our own included, is a shifting of the balance of power between politics and economics. Alike, under the variant leaderships of Stalin, Mussolini, and Roosevelt, the statesman is grasping at reins of power long held by the business man, the industrialist, the financier."

MILLION GATHER FOR EUCHARISTIC CLOSE, BLESSING

Radio Takes Pope's Words to Buenos Aires.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 14. — (AP) — More than a million persons, jamming Palermo park and nearby streets today heard a greeting and benediction from Pope Pius, speaking by radio from the Vatican, on the last day of the 32d Eucharistic congress here.

His holiness pronounced a four minute benediction in Latin. Pontifical mass was celebrated by Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli, the papal legate.

Bright sunshine enhanced the colorful spectacle made by the immense throng as five cardinals, 150 bishops and archbishops, and hundreds of priests took part in the ceremonies.

The exact number of those present could hardly be calculated. They filled the park and its environs. Thousands were caught in trafic jams trying to reach the open air cathedral, and all streets leading to it were choked with people for blocks.

Men Keep Hats On.

The broad Avenida Sarmiento, for example, was filled with stalled trafic for a mile from the Plaza Italia to the park as the pontifical mass began. Rooftops and balconies of tall apartment buildings around the park were filled with worshipers.

The sunshine was so strong the men were authorized to keep their hats on except during the most solemn parts of the ceremony. Several hundred persons, most of them women, collapsed in the heat and were taken to first aid stations.

By the time the cardinals, bishops, and acolytes took their places on the platform beneath the 105 foot cross, the four avenues radiating from the cross were a solid sea of humanity. At the base of the platform, forming an honor guard, were the flags of thirty-two nations participating in the congress.

After the mass the crowd knelt reverently as numerous loudspeakers brought clearly the voice of the pope. Then, prompted by the announcer, Msgr. Dionisio Napal, the entire assemblage waved handkerchiefs and the great park became a sea of white. Cardinal Pacelli then pronounced the apostolic blessing and the ceremony ended.

Cheers Sound for Blocks.

As the papal legate walked down the stairs from the altar, the platform of which was lined with rows of red robed acolytes in white surplices, the crowd, led by Msgr. Napal, broke into a mighty chorus of cheers resounding for blocks beyond the park's greenery.

Thousands pressed toward Cardinal Pacelli as he left the stairs, many kissing his hand. The flagbearers meanwhile had formed a double file, and as the cardinals and bishops followed the papal legate away from the altar, the foreign prelates were escorted by the banners of their nations.

After the service it was announced the congress committee had decided to construct a reproduction of the giant cross on an extension of Sarmiento avenue, with a chapel at its base.

The closing ceremony followed upon the triumphant procession of the sacrament, Catholic holy of holies, for some forty blocks along the Avenida Alvear and half a dozen adjoining streets. The final day was called "day of the Eucharistic triumph world-wide."

MADAME NEW DEAL TAKES POWDER PUFF ON FORENSIC SPREE.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—(AP)—The New Deal feminine brigade is on the march.

They're not campaigning for the coming elections, they say, they are just taking advantage of the opportunity of demonstrating to the country what's been done in a feministic way.

"Madame Secretary" Frances Perkins, who was railed across the continent by the American Federation of Labor convention in San Francisco, talked in Arizona Friday. She is scheduled for a Des Moines speech Nov. 2.

"Madame Minister" Ruth Bryan Owen, back from Denmark on annual leave, is whizzing through the middle west in one of the nature tours which she has made each autumn for the last fourteen years. She has brought the first intimate glimpse of diplomacy by a woman—a New Deal development.

"Madame Director of the Mint" Nellie Taylor Ross is on tour inspecting the San Francisco, Seattle, and Denver mints—the usual visit the director makes every year to these institutions. However, along the way she has told of better times coming.

"Madame Civil Service Commissioner" Lucille F. McMillen will leave the latter part of the week to visit the district offices in Boston, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Atlanta, and New Orleans. A strict rule prevents appointees to the civil service commission, and civil service employés, from taking part in politics.

GUARDS DOUBLED AS PIERPONT'S EXECUTION NEARS

Columbus, O., Oct. 14.—(AP)—With the electrocution of Harry Pierpont, Dillinger gangster, scheduled for Wednesday, guards around Ohio penitentiary were doubled today and Warden Preston E. Thomas was guarded against a break or an attempt to abduct Thomas as a hostage.

Thomas called off a motor trip today after several suspicious automobiles with out of state license plates were noted cruising in the prison's vicinity.

The warden admitted "something is in the air," but refused to elaborate his statement. Pierpont was sentenced to die for the murder of Sheriff Jess Sarber of Lima, Oct. 12, 1933, in a Dillinger delivery.

PIUS XI. MOURNS JUGO-SLAV KING IN WORLD SPEECH

Pronounces Benediction on Eucharistic Meet.

POPE PIUS XI.

True peace, the pontiff said with great earnestness, can be found only in the kingdom of Christ.

The 77 year old pope spoke in a strong, resonant voice from his private library. The Vatican radio picked up his words and broadcast them to the other side of the world, where the closing ceremonies of the great religious congress were taking place.

The address was also rebroadcast by Italian stations to all parts of Europe, so the pontiff's words reached millions of listeners.

Listens to Buenos Aires.

Praying that "a triumph of peace may finally penetrate to all parts of the orb and to all minds and wills," the pope said:

"Only so, in fact, will this poor world, which we see afflicted with fraternal and regal bloodshed, be able to find true and stable peace, free from so many evils."

Pope Pius then delivered the apostolic benediction to the crowds gathered at Buenos Aires.

His holiness first listened to the pontifical mass being celebrated at Buenos Aires under the leadership of Cardinal Pacelli. This ceremony was brought to the seclusion of the Vatican library by means of the wireless telephonic hookup.

The mass completed, Father Filippo Soccorsi, director of the Vatican radio station, announced in Spanish that the pope was about to speak.

Pope Pius read his address from notes written in his own hand. Its text was as follows:

"Christ, the Eucharistic king, conquers. Christ, the Eucharistic king, reigns. Christ, the Eucharistic king, commands.

"We thought over these words with joy and gladness, all most beloved children in Christ, while we followed your worship, and by means of the radio were all but present every day, and we were about to say every hour, in our work.

"And now, when your glorious congress at Buenos Aires is terminating solemnly and happily, it pleases us to add with exaltation:

"Christ, the Eucharistic king, triumphs.

"May the Lord will that, together with the victory of the kingdom and empire of our very gentle and beloved king, a triumph of peace may finally penetrate to all parts of the orb and to all minds and wills.

"Peace of Christ Rules."

"Only so, in fact, will this poor world, which we see afflicted with fraternal and regal bloodshed, be able to find true and stable peace, free from so many evils. Only where the peace of Christ in the kingdom of Christ rules are there offers of promises.

"With these desires and these prayers which we raise to God we in the person of Christ extend to you one and all our paternal hand, and with great love and with these words impart to you the apostolic benediction.

"By the intercession of the Blessed Mary, always virgin, of Lujan, special patron of the Argentine republic; of the Blessed Archangel Michael, of Blessed John the Baptist, of the Blessed Apostles Peter and Paul, of the Blessed martyrs Rocco Gonzales, Alfonso Rodriguez, and Juan de Castillo, as also of all saints, the benediction of Omnipotent God, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, descends upon you now and always."

When Ed. Thoma returned from New York he said, "Jim, you have the greatest sea food house this side of Paris." That is what the people in Chicago think.

Mercury Slumps to 35 in N. Y.; Sets Record for Day

New York, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The New York weather bureau chalked up a new low record for Oct. 14 today when the mercury slipped to 35 degrees. The previous low was 36, set in 1874. During the afternoon a bright sun brought the temperature up into the fifties, however.

THE fact that smoking a Camel does produce an increase in energy has drawn people in every walk of life to Camels.

NEW PARK BOARD WILL ACT TODAY TO PAY UP 3,000

Begins Negotiations for Tax Warant Sale.

Negotiations for the sale of Chicago Park district tax warants to provide $1,700,000 for the payment of five months' back salaries to 3,000 park district employés will get under way today, Robert J. Dunham, president of the new consolidated Chicago Park district board, announced yesterday.

If the efforts to sell the warants are successful, as is anticipated, James P. Slattery, attorney for the park district, will be authorized to draft a resolution for the issuance of warants to be presented at a meeting of the park board Tuesday.

Most of the 3,700 park district employés have not been paid since the new park board took office on May 1. Some workers in small park districts received checks from funds on hand in their own districts and the 700 employés of the South park board have been paid in full from such funds.

The sale of warants, to be issued against the 1934 $5,000,000 levy filed a month ago for the corporate tax fund, becomes possible because of the Illinois Supreme court's refusal to reconsider the validity of the act consolidating the Chicago park districts.

ARREST SPANISH SOCIALIST HEADS TO CLOSE REVOLT

MADRID, Oct. 14.—(AP)—With more revolutionary leaders under arrest, the Spanish government continued with apparent success today in stamping out the rebellion which rocked the nation. Citizens of Madrid had so completely regained their normal composure they attended bull fights in great numbers.

The arrest of Largo Caballero, extremist leader, and Teodomiro Menendez, Socialist party deputy accused of having instigated the rebellion in Asturias, convinced officials the backbone of the opposition has been broken.

Rebels still held well fortified mountain retreats in Asturias, but troops were reported to be making progress against them. Premier Alejandro Lerroux announced that the court martial at Barcelona had imposed a sentence of death on Lieut. Col. Ricart, one of the military leaders who supported President Luis Companys in the short lived secession of Catalonia. The government reported that many striking workers had deserted the Socialist ranks and were returning to their usual tasks in increasing numbers.

WALKS INTO CAFE AND CURSES HUEY SITTING AT TABLE

Baton Rouge, La., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A man giving the name of Willie W. Broussard of St. Gabriel, La., who, police said, entered a hotel coffee shop here early today and cursed Senator Huey P. Long, was arrested after he engaged in a fist fight with Joe Messina, Long's personal attendant.

Broussard was released from city jail on $10 bond soon after his arrest and could not be located for a statement. Senator Long declined to comment.

The police report said Broussard entered the coffee shop while Senator Long and Dr. Clarence A. Larlo, the senator's political leader in East Baton Rouge parish, were sitting at a table, approached the senator's party and cursed Long. Police said that when Long arose from the table Messina attempted to take Broussard out and the fight resulted.

AMNESIA VICTIM IDENTIFIED.

Mrs. Mary Knitter, 23 years old, 1125 North Hoyne avenue, who was wandering at Ashland avenue and Augusta street, a victim of amnesia Saturday morning, was identified yesterday in the psychopathic hospital by her husband, Henry, a clerk.

MYSTERY KILLING OF EX-STUDENT STARTS INQUIRY

Police and the coroner's office joined in investigating the death of Robert Charles Bailey, 17 years old, 6740 South Honore street, former Harper High school student, who was found dying early yesterday a few blocks from the Damon Devils' club, 2011 West 69th street, a neighborhood social organization, where he had attended a dance three hours earlier.

ROBERT C. BAILEY.

A patrol wagon crew from the Chicago Lawn station found him in front of 6921 Damen avenue at 4 o'clock. He appeared to be intoxicated, and the policemen took him home. Bailey's condition became steadily worse, and he died twenty minutes after Dr. Louis Bell, 2859 West 63d street, was summoned. Dr. Bell notified the coroner's office. Dr. A. D. Biggs, coroner's physician, made an examination and discovered Bailey had suffered a crushed chest, punctured lung, and ruptures of other internal organs.

Dr. Biggs said he did not believe the youth had been struck by an automobile because the entire upper half of his body was injured. Lieut. William Crot, however, declared an automobile accident was the most plausible theory. Although a barrel of beer was consumed at the club dance there was no trouble, his investigation disclosed. Bailey was seen walking home after he had parted from a friend.

2 OFFICERS AND WOMAN DROWN IN SEA OFF HAWAII

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Engulfed by a huge wave, two army officers and a woman drowned while fishing at Waimea, 40 miles from here, and the bodies of two of the victims had not been recovered today.

The victims were Lieut. John W. Stribling, 27, of Wheeler field, a native of Alabama; his wife, and Lieut William F. Stevenson, 29, of Schofield barracks, a native of Winnsboro, S. C. Mrs. Stevenson was saved.

The tragedy occurred late Saturday while they were fishing at Waimea when a huge wave dragged them from a reef. Mrs. Stribling's body was recovered, but those of the two officers had not been found.

Going to Washington

Capt. P. Hsiao and Capt. T. M. Yi, assistant military attachés of the Chinese legation, passed through Chicago yesterday on the Golden State Limited of the Rock Island, en route from China to Washington, where they will take up their new duties. Capt. Hsiao was accompanied by his wife, who wore a flowing Chinese costume of white satin, with a high buckled neckline, and tiny embroidered satin slippers.

FRANK JAY GOULD LOSES RESORT TO TAX COLLECTOR

CAGNES-SUR-MER, France, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Another of the enterprises of Frank Jay Gould, wealthy American, has fallen into the hands of the tax collector. The pleasure palace hotel Mont Monnier, at Breuil, in the mountains above Nice, was seized today and, it was announced, will be sold for back taxes next Thursday.

The opening price at the tax auction was set at 400,000 francs [about $26,600]. The amount of taxes unpaid was not disclosed. Gould's elaborate hotel and his string of casinos on the Riviera were opened in the midst of the tourist slump three years ago and all had hard sledding.

His casino, the "Palais de la Mediterranee" at Nice, hit the tax snags soon after the sharp falling off in the numbers of gamblers. He leased the casino to a syndicate, and it was destroyed by fire last November.

Prenuptial Party Robbed of $300; Host Is Slugged

Three robbers interrupted yesterday morning a pre-nuptial party given by Hyman Margolin, 3252 Armitage avenue, for his daughter, Belle, and took from him and a dozen guests $300 in jewelry and currency. Margolin, proprietor of a fruit and vegetable store in the front of his living quarters at that address, was slugged by one of the robbers. Belle, who was married last night to Harry Wellek, 1409 North Artesian avenue, hid and saved her diamond engagement ring.

THE RELIEF BOND ISSUE.

The voters of Illinois should not hesitate to approve the $30,000,000 relief bond issue at the election on Nov. 6. No question of political partisanship is involved. The platforms of both parties contain indorsements of the proposal.

To meet the pressing need for funds for the unfortunate the legislature authorized the borrowing of the money on short term notes. At the time it was agreed that in Illinois, as in other states, the burden should be distributed over the years, but time was lacking to submit the question of a bond issue to the people. The money has been borrowed and is being spent and the only question now to be decided is whether it shall be paid back in a lump sum in one year from general property taxes or gradually over the years as the bonds are retired.

To any one who is at all familiar with the revenue difficulties in Illinois there will be no doubt of the merits of the bond issue. If the whole sum must be repaid next year from taxes the bills in Chicago will be increased something like 8 per cent and in farming areas by 15 per cent or more. As Cook county has paid barely half of the taxes billed this year, the inadvisability of adding materially to the burden is too obvious to require comment.

Many property owners may carelessly vote "no," thinking that thereby they will keep their taxes down. The fact is that unless they vote "yes" their taxes will be materially increased.

DECLINE OF AMERICA?

Dr. Oswald Spengler, celebrated author of "The Decline of the West," is reported in an interesting interview with a Boston business man. Mr. Stanley P. Lovell, made public by the North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc. Some of Dr. Spengler's theories and historical judgments American believers in democracy cannot accept despite his vast store of knowledge and the vigor and originality of his intellect. But his European celebrity gives weight to his comment on American conditions at this time, as, for example, his observation that Mr. Roosevelt is either America's "first Caesar or a sort of St. John the Baptist who comes to make ready the way for the ruler."

Equally significant is his opinion that the present administration has implanted a dangerous dogma in American political thought—namely: that government not only owes the individual an orderly government in which he may or may not make a living but also owes him adequate food, shelter, and clothing. This, Dr. Spengler points out, represents the complete breakdown of the original American spirit. An early American, he reminds us, would have scoffed at the idea that government owed him maintenance. We would add that not merely in the pioneer days but until the coming of the New Dealers there has been no serious acceptance of this conception of the functions of political authority, for it has been understood that such a theory necessarily implies an expansion of the powers of government incompatible with the liberties we have enjoyed or with any form of free society.

"The education of the American people to the easily accepted theory that by some magic the government is to support its citizens leads inevitably," says Dr. Spengler, "to the extension of government credit beyond the normal things a government has been called upon for, and as long as this philosophy prevails there will be an unbalanced budget."

America, in short, will live on its credit rather than its income. But inexhaustible as this credit may seem now, it exists solely as an intangible something in the minds of the American people, and Dr. Spengler predicts that just as during the dark closing days of the Hoover administration the American people lost faith in the credit of their banks, "so there will come a day when they will lose confidence in the credit of America as an inexhaustible treasure house. Then will occur the flight from the dollar and people will want things instead of money."

The tragic consequences to the people, not merely or even chiefly to the rich but to the mass of wage earners and the people of small means, have been lately revealed in European experience, and while such a catastrophe seems very remote and virtually impossible in America, only a reversal of the tendencies and policies of the New Deal will prevent their eventual arrival in the United States. It is this prospect that has impelled the more responsible and intelligent American leaders of labor to oppose the inflation theories of certain politicians. But the danger lies deeper than they have seemed to realize and in fact has its source in the ideas of government and in the general tendencies of theory and policy expressed and implied in the New Deal.

GUARDIANS OF THE BALLOT.

In organizing a show of his strength in his current feud with the Republican county committee Robert E. Crowe, a former state's attorney, is represented as summoning to a ward meeting not only his precinct captains and workers but also those judges and clerks of election who owe their appointment to his influence.

Mr. Crowe cannot be regarded as a particular sinner in regarding polls officials as part of his ward political machine. He has merely called attention to a general situation. It seems to be a well recognized theory that Chicago polls officials shall be not so much impartial guardians of election honesty as partisan representatives of opposing political organizations, and that occupants of such posts shall be nominated by ward leaders, subject only to weeding out of those worthies who are recently graduated from jail or who have been caught in past ballot thieveries.

To prate of the sanctity of the ballot under such circumstances is a great deal like passing resolutions in favor of law enforcement and then appointing Al Capone chief of police.

EMPLOYMENT AT THE FAIR.

One of the factors that ought to enter into the decision whether to make the Exposition a permanent annual institution is that of employment In the Fair of 1934 some thirty thousand people are engaged in the Fair organization and the concessions. When the Fair closes a large proportion of these will join the vast army of the unemployed. If the Fair is perpetuated most of them can at least expect employment next summer if they have not found permanent places elsewhere during the winter. In any case, if they do not return employment will be ready for others. An annual exposition cannot employ thirty thousand, for it will have to be substantially reduced in scope below that of the enterprise of 1933-'34, but it will employ thousands each season while maintaining a small corps of experts and a small maintenance force through the year. Even on the more restricted scale under consideration, an annual summer fair would add substantially to employment in Chicago.

IS KIDNAPING A SPORT?

The kidnaper of Mrs. Stoll of Louisville cut the telephone line of her home before he abducted her. When the kidnaping was discovered, we are told, "one of the first acts of the police was to order the Stoll telephone connection reestablished to provide a ready avenue of communication for the kidnaper in his ransom negotiations."

That is putting kidnaping on a sporting basis. The kidnaper is told, in effect: "You've won the first game. Now come get the ransom, let your victim go, and then we'll see if we can't catch you and even up the series."

It is only to be expected that the family of a kidnaping victim should use all of the influence it possesses to induce authorities to subordinate the search for the criminal to negotiations for return of the victim, but it might also be expected of the authorities that they remember that kidnaping is a crime against the whole people, not against an individual.

Kidnaping will stop when it becomes unprofitable. The proposed statute making it a felony to engage in ransom negotiations would doubtless cause heartaches to a few families, but it might protect a great many more from them.

Editorial of the Day

THE QUESTION OF LIBERTY.

[Arizona Star, Tucson.]

The publication of Mr. Hoover's book on liberty and the President's statement of his ideas Sunday night on liberty have made the question of liberty a matter of moot discussion. Before any intelligent discussion can take place, however, the term "liberty" must be defined, or else the debate will be discussing two or more different things.

While the term liberty does involve an intangible thing where many ideas prevail as to where the line shall be drawn, some recent incidents might be used for profitable thought. A little more than one year ago it was made a crime for any individual to hoard gold. Many individuals had accumulated gold prior to this edict in a perfectly legal and morally correct manner. Yet they were compelled under a threat of fine and imprisonment to turn it over to the government. On the other hand, those who had accumulated silver were allowed to keep it and recently were offered a greatly enhanced price if they turned it in to the government. If gold is no longer needed as money, as we have been assured, why is it made a crime to hoard it? When an individual is threatened with fine and imprisonment for retaining what he accumulated under what have been perfectly legal and morally correct means, have or have not his liberties been infringed? Why is it a crime to keep one monetary metal and not a crime to keep another?

Another recent incident illustrates a more serious phase of the question of liberty. A dry cleaner in New Jersey was fined and imprisoned because he offered to clean a suit for 5 cents less than other cleaners. He was convicted of violating a code which, in direct conflict with the anti-trust laws of the nation, fixed prices for such service. In other words, because this man offered to give consumers some more for their money than did his competitors he is arrested and lodged in jail. Is that or is that not an invasion of liberty? Nor is this incident a single one. Other small business proprietors have been fined and imprisoned on similar charges.

While the answer may be made that such control is necessary for the protection of the liberties of all, such an answer is a specious one—an old worn out, much abused excuse. One has only to look at Herr Hitler's Germany, Stalin's Russia, and Mussolini's Italy to see how such a principle can be expanded. Moreover, it was used in olden times by both Protestant and Catholic churches to impose religious control over all individuals of a state. Laws were enacted providing fines and imprisonment for those who did not worship, think and write as they were ordered to by governments. And significantly enough, men shed their blood to overthrow such a system, while in America today are millions of people whose ancestors came to America seeking refuge from such laws and oppression.

Therein lies the danger of this new tendency of making something a crime that is not a crime. It establishes a precedent which, used today for one thing, can be and almost inevitably is expanded to control and impose direction upon a wide diversity of human activities. Unfortunately, history shows that people rarely realize the importance of such a trend until they are fined and imprisoned because they express thoughts or worship in a manner repugnant to those who, through force and repression, control the machinery of government. Does not this matter of liberty merit thought, discussion, and action before it is too late?

INGRATITUDE FOR YOU.

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

"KING ALEXANDER'S DEATH Holds War Threat, Say Experts."—Headline. But lawsy massa, does it take experts to tell us that? What doesn't happen in Europe that doesn't stand 'em on their heads over there as containing a war threat? Does Hitler wax his comical mustache—war threat! Does Mussolini glance northward (in the direction of France) and say, "It looks like we were going to have some bad weather and I think it's going to rain"—war threat! Does a gendarme in Paris tell a visiting Austrian motor car it's exceeding the speed limit—war threat! Does a Turkish market woman drop a dozen eggs on the pavement and smash the lot—war threat! And if a man in the Balkans gets mad at a Russian who has made a poor job of washing his automobile and gives him a swift kick in the pants England mobilizes the Mediterranean and channel fleets and calls out the Household Guards, Italy summons all the six year olds to the colors, France repudiates the American war debts, and the Nazis stand on their heads and howl like wolves. They seem to be a bit nervous in Europe.

SONNET LXXXV.

Nothing will last, not roses nor the stars,
Nor love that is the breathless evidence
Of this lost hour, of all our eloquence
The highest, and the deepest of our scars.
No star that falls but has its watcher's eyes,
No rose that fades but has not fed its bee,
And this our star that falls so distantly,
Our rose that fades, fail in no other wise.
We who were royal when the moment called Remark no poverty in light or flower.
The testimony of our briefest hour
Was ermine thrown on steps of emerald.
Up vasty stairs, beside a golden bed,
Two shadows kneel, silent and comforted.

AND JUST AT THE END of all the celebrating in honor of Chris Columbus last week a bird without brakes on his car bashed into the south elevation of the gasoline Conestoga car I drive and smashed the tail lights. And if Columbus had kept his mouth shut, as Leif Ericson did, it would never have happened. But I'll get even yet. The first guy I'm going to have Charon point out to me when I cross the old river Styx is Mr. Christopher Columbus. And what will happen to Christopher is nobody's business.

I'VE BEEN STUDYING the new stoplight system on the Boul. Mich. and I think it's pretty swell, only it doesn't go far enough. I'm simply entranced when the word "WALK" appears in bright apple-green letters on the center post, but it ought to go a little further and instead of saying "WALK" it should say "RUN LIKE HELL." And that isn't enough, for you only cross as far as the middle of the street. So why not have the words "AND WHEN YOU GET TO THE SAFETY ISLAND, DOGGONE YOU, STAY THERE A WHILE." These words could be in orange or mauve pink and would make a pretty contrast to the green words above.

And another thing: Lots of motorists are jittery about passing the red light on their side of the street, even though there is a green light blinking its fool head off across the street and inviting them to come on. Everybody has been brought up to stop when he sees a red light, and the only way to make sure he will go right on past the red light on his side of the street and only pay attention to the red light on the other side of the intersecting street is to have a pretty illuminated sign under the red light saying: "YOU DO NOT SEE THIS RED LIGHT! INDEED, YOU DO NOT! IT'S FOR THE GUYS GOING IN THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION. KEEP GOING!" These words should be colored red, white, and blue, and, besides adding to the beauty of the night as they suddenly flash out in the darkness, would be very informative and inculcate patriotism in every motorist. I've got some more ideas about the new Boul. Mich. lights, but they're not entirely hatched out yet. Wait!

AND THE NEWSPAPERS PRINT the startling news from Elko, Nev., that "Joe Segura was fined $50 today for riding his horse on the street while intoxicated." Shame on that horse. It's bad enough for humans to get intoxicated, but horses are supposed to have some sense.

A HOW-TO-BEHAVE-IN-POLITE-SOCIETY editor is all worked up because somebody sends her a letter and asks if a perfect gent should look after his own hat, or, if his hostess meets him at the door, should she take it and do the parking. It's very unsafe to trust your hat to the hostess, and you'd better go and hang it on the rack yourself. The hostess is very liable to recognize the hat as the one her husband lost when he went to a tea dance at the Verreswanks two weeks ago. Take care of your hat and hang your overcoat over it and then you'll probably keep it. Unless you see a better hat. That, of course, will be something different again.

TRANSMUTATION.

Forgetfulness is bitter wine,
But all that could remain,
Then do not die of thirst while there
Are yet the dregs to drain.

Now may the fierce sun inundate
My Comus haunted glade
And the to-be-forgotten things
Seek cooler paths of shade.

What matter that a goblet burned
With philters sibylline
When there remains a rouge-smeared brim—
Slow bubbles in stale wine.

HEALTH HABITS OF SCHOOL CHILDREN.

In these days of better understanding on the part of parents, and greater interest in child hygiene, the figures disclosed by a recent survey of more than two thousand school children ranging from 8 to 16 years of age are of interest. Such topics as sleep; breakfast; the use of milk, tea, and coffee; the school lunch; outdoor play, and bathing habits were included.

The hour of retiring varied from 9 o'clock to two or three hours later; and three-fourths of the number reported that they were asleep within fifteen minutes after going to bed. In spite of all the propaganda relative to the importance of fresh air, it is surprising to note that one-fourth of the children slept in rooms with tightly closed windows.

Breakfast habits paralleled accurately the nutrition of the children. Those who habitually consumed scanty breakfasts constituted the undernourished group. One might say, "As is the breakfast so is the nutrition of the child." Less than one-third used any form of fruit, and a surprisingly low proportion were served either eggs or bacon. In this respect the economic status of the families apparently was not a factor. About 50 per cent used tea or coffee for breakfast.

A certain proportion of the children, according to the survey, had poor appetites. This occurred more frequently among girls. No very great number left for school without breakfast, although 4 per cent of the girls in the upper grammar grades were addicted to the no-breakfast habit.

The use of milk varied greatly. Twenty per cent of the entire group received no milk at all. While the low incomes of some of the families might account for this situation, milk was not used by many of the children because they did not like it. About half of the youngest group reported drinking three or more glasses a day.

Less than two-fifths of those studied had what was considered an adequate lunch. After school over 90 per cent of the children played out of doors. Bathing showed that approximately 96 per cent of the group took at least one bath a week, and nearly one-half took two or more. Brushing the teeth was the daily rule of approximately 50 per cent.

Viewing the report as a whole certain observations may be made:

It is exceedingly doubtful if in the nonmilk users the remainder of the diet will supply sufficient calcium to insure good bones and teeth and the development of a strong nervous system.

Light breakfasts, or no breakfasts at all, particularly in growing children, cannot be defended on hygienic grounds. This procedure means that approximately eighteen hours must elapse between the evening meal of one day and the noon meal of the next. The body reserves are depleted and are restored only by means of a necessarily heavy evening meal.

A comparison of certain individual diets showed that they were definitly lacking in minerals, and, although composed of a sufficient number of calories, were made up largely of white flour products, macaroni, rice, sugar, and corn sirup.

It is surprising that a greater amount of undernutrition was not disclosed. It may be, however, that in from three to five years the present day bad food habits of this particular group of school children will become manifest in decreased resistance to disease and somewhat stunted physical development.

Careful and intelligent mothers, by inculcating good food habits, may save their children serious disabling and possibly expensive illness in the years to come.

SLEEPING.

M. M. writes: I have had many arguments with my father, I contending that it makes no difference whether one gets eight or nine hours' sleep before or after midnight. He says I am all wrong, and that eight hours' sleep commencing two hours before midnight is much more beneficial than eight hours' sleep beginning two hours past midnight.

REPLY.

There is no substantial biological basis for the belief that sleep before midnight is more beneficial than the sleep one gets after midnight. Those who work at night accustom themselves to sleep during the day and no difference in the health of these persons has been noted, if other conditions remain the same. Frequently those who stay up late at night cannot quiet down into a restful sleep because of the excitement and stimulation incident to their activities.

EPILEPSY.

B. writes: I have been told of a doctor in Switzerland who is treating epilepsy by exposing the shorn head to the sun. Do you know anything about this treatment?

REPLY.

There is no possible manner in which exposure of the head to the sun can influence adhesions or structural changes inside the skull. Sunlight is dangerous if used to excess and may cause many disagreeable symptoms when applied in the manner you note.

INCOME TAX.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Can the government collect income tax money lost in a closed bank? When the former President asked the people to put their money in the bank instead of hiding it I put $1,500 in a bank which closed. That was every dollar I had. My husband was out of work. Now the income tax people assess me $60 on the money in the bank. I claim I haven't the money and don't know whether I'll ever get it, so they can't make me pay. They claim I will have to pay and if the bank pays some of the money I can claim a loss for the balance. This shouldn't be proper, as the law says "a tax on profits." W. M.

In general, losses cannot be written off for income tax purposes until the receivership proceedings have been carried through to a point where the status is definitly fixed. For further information take the matter up with the collector's office.

AUTO PARKING.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—[Friend of the People.]—We are having a trying experience with a dairy company located on our street. Due to the fact that this company provides no parking facilities for their employes the latter park their cars daily, bumper to bumper, along both sides of our street. This prevents any resident on this street from parking cars and in addition has caused untold inconvenience. What plans should we, the residents of this street, follow to eliminate this nuisance? C. D.

An officer, investigated this complaint and interviewed the superintendent of the dairy mentioned. The superintendent said he would issue orders to the drivers not to park their autos on this street, and that he would procure a parking lot in the rear of the dairy plant and that they would immediately stop parking on the street. Officers were given instructions to see that there is no further cause for complaint.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN.—Pensions for all. This is the slogan of President de Valera's government. It will be accomplished by an act recently passed by both houses of the Irish Free State parliament.

In a country which has achieved its freedom through revolution this is perhaps inevitable; but, as citizens of the United States are aware, it is a difficult problem to solve, especially where the revolution has been followed by civil war. In this respect the Irish Free State and the United States have passed through identical conditions. Each had its revolution and each had its civil war. And now each has had its sequel in the granting of pensions.

In this country the sequence of events has been quite recent. The revolution started in Easter week, 1916. The Free State government was set up under the treaty of 1921, and the civil war, following the acceptance by a narrow majority of seven of the status of a dominion of the British empire, started in 1922, under the leadership of De Valera.

In 1924 the first bill to grant pensions was introduced by the then president, W. T. Cosgrave. The scheme contemplated pensions for all who took part in the war against the British, but it was a necessary condition that applicants should also have had service in the national army to defend the Free State government set up under the treaty. It meant that all who took part in the fight against the Free State government were excluded. It also excluded those who had taken part in the fight against the British if this was not followed up by enlistment in the national army.

When introducing his new bill to grant pensions to all those who were excluded, Frank Aiken, minister for defense, mentioned what was well known—that it had been the policy of the Fianna Fail party that when it came into office it would abolish the existing pensions and, presumably, not grant any pensions at all.

When this policy was announced at a Fianna Fail general congress a serious crisis was threatened. Men who had for many years enjoyed substantial pensions were not likely to be willing to surrender them. Such a policy would have led to bloodshed, and this fact was made clear to the De Valera government. Aiken admitted that many strong representations had been made, and the government realized it would be unfair to deprive the men who had received them of such pensions.

It agreed, therefore, that they should be continued, but at the same time the government had decided that equal treatment should be given to the men who had fought with the Irish republican army in the civil war. The conditions of the new pension, therefore, would be that a man should have served in the Easter week rebellion, in the black and tan war, and in the civil war, and that the service was continuous.

The bill was designed to include everybody who was disqualified under the Cosgrave act of 1924 because he had fought against the government. Aiken, on the final reading of the bill, made a gesture of good will by announcing that four Blue Shirts, whose pensions had been withdrawn because they had been sentenced to imprisonment under the safety act, would have them restored immediately. Everybody who fought in the trying times of the last twenty years, no matter on what side, will now presumably be happy.

A PERMANENT FAIR.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—In another few weeks A Century of Progress will have become a memory. Let us avail ourselves of the suggestion offered by various readers and preserve a small part of the Exposition, one or two of its principal buildings, such as the Agricultural and Social Science buildings, to house yearly exhibits of timely advances in various forms of industry.

These buildings might be designated as the Large Palace and the Small Palace, and the section as Exposition park and kept as permanent Chicago landmarks. Other cities have their civic auditoriums in attractive and glorified park surroundings for regular exhibition purposes, and the preservation of this part of the Exposition, which is convenient of access and in no way interferes with direct north and south trafic through Burnham and Grant parks, would tend to enhance the general recreational facilities offered by this section, which already includes such permanent attractions as the Field museum, Soldiers' field, the Shedd aquarium, and the Adler planetarium.

The sky ride might also be maintained as a permanent Chicago attraction, with reduced admission fares. The concentration of Chicago's beach and amusement resorts to a point directly south of 18th street, on the island, which section is now conveniently accessible through the recent extensions of the Chicago Surface lines, would also provide ample facilities for the development of this limited area between 12th and 23d streets as a permanent educational and recreational center. R. W. DANON.

THE WORLD'S FAIR POLICE.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—What is to become of the World's Fair police?

It does not seem fair that the men about to be laid off should be without a job. Their experience, plus the remarkable way they received the many visitors so efficiently, warants them a permanent position on the police force. They all passed the civil service examination making them eligible, so why not keep them to replace the old men about to retire?

MRS. WELLNITZ.

DISAPPOINTED.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—Of course I know there's no use sobbing on your shoulder, TRIBUNE, as you do not run the World's Fair nor superintend the fireworks, but I think it is a shame that they showed McCutcheon's cartoon last night in a position on the lagoon where about two thousand people in the north end of Lagoon theater could not see it. I went to the Fair for the sole purpose of seeing "Injun Summer" in fireworks, and was in the only seat I could get in Lagoon theater shortly after 8 o'clock. I heard many exclamations of chagrin from the disappointed visitors around me. Do you suppose they would show "Injun Summer" again if they knew I would spend another half dollar to see it?

A. ANDERSON.

YOU HAVE A POOR DICTIONARY.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—In your day by day story of THE TRIBUNE'S experimental farm Bob Becker says: "Binks, the fox terrier, has whipped polecats, woodchucks, and other vermin." Now I always thought that "vermin" were fleas, lice, etc., but the dictionary says vermin are noxious insects producing worms.

Now if Binks kills them he is some dog.

Maybe Bob Becker was wrong.

WILLIAM TIBBILS.

LOAFING FOR WAGES.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Every morning when I drive down to my office I pass several hundred men standing around in the parks. About one man in every six is very leisurely doing something. [It can hardly be called work.] The other five are watching him. I think we ought to give employment to all men who need work, but I also think we ought to see that they do work. Who is responsible for this waste of public money which to my knowledge has been going on for many months?

In this connection I am reminded today that I shall soon be asked to contribute again to the emergency relief. I am quite willing to do this, but I should feel a great deal more generously inclined if I knew that some of this money was going to be spent to investigate the numerous cases of fraud of which we read so much in the papers. Perhaps THE TRIBUNE will start a campaign to set aside a certain amount of the emergency relief funds to see that the money does not go to people who do not need it, and to prosecute those who obtain it fraudulently. Obviously no part of the funds is being used for this purpose now. G. R. LEONARD.

DEAN LEE AND JUSTICE BRANDEIS.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—In an article in today's paper you give much publicity to a statement made by Dean Edward T. Lee of the John Marshall Law school. As I happened to be present in this class, which consists of about one hundred and fifty law students, I should like to tell you what the class as a whole thought of the dean's speech.

Immediately after Mr. Lee had concluded his speech several members of the class demanded the floor and insisted that he explain his action in reading such a speech to the class. The class sensed a veiled attack upon President Roosevelt and was quick to resent this action upon Dean Lee's part. In fact, the criticism of Mr. Lee's speech became so bitter that he had occasion to refer to an incident of his youth in which he championed the rights of striking street car men. In justice to the dean I must say that he permitted absolute free speech in criticizing his statements. However, not one student among the one hundred and fifty rallied to his defense.

SMOKE.

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 9.—I was about 4 years old at the time of the Chicago fire. I was living with my parents on a farm in central Pennsylvania. My mother had hung out the clothes to dry when a dark cloud was seen coming from the west and she took the clothes down, fearing a storm was coming. It was the smoke from the Chicago fire of 1871.

ELWOOD WASHINGTON.

SHOT BY SANTA CLAUS.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—I don't blame Mr. Milliken of Dixon for loving Santa Claus.

But I happen to be one of those who contribute to Santa Claus by the processing tax and also by paying higher prices so the farmer raises less but gets more money. I happen to be obliged to produce more and receive less than I did two years ago, but the farmer does less and receives more. Santa Claus is using a double-barreled shotgun on me.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

LABOR ASKS NEW JOINT EFFORT TO BOOST INDUSTRY

Expects No More Gains Before Spring.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A new joint effort by capital and labor to lift American industry out of the doldrums was suggested today by the American Federation of Labor in its monthly business review.

As things now stand, the review said, "we can hope for no important gains in employment before next spring" even though "the summer decline was checked early in September, and business has now turned moderately upward again."

"Today we are in a race between rising production and rising debt," the review concluded. "We cannot afford to lose time.

"Our immediate need is to increase production and buying power; to cut through red tape and lift industry quickly to higher levels.

Must Find Practical Plan.

"We must find a practical, workable plan, and this can only be done through coöperative action under government leadership.

"The program set up by the Winant board in the textile strike settlement gives for one industry a mechanism to examine facts as a basis for action. The federal trade commission is to study production costs, wages, and profits as a basis for determining the ability to increase wages. This is a step in the right direction. We need to examine facts for industry as a whole to discover how production can be quickly increased and workers' income quickly raised to higher levels.

"Might not the President's proposed truce in industry become a dynamic force rather than a static agreement if it promoted conferences between the freely chosen representatives of labor, the employers and the government to plan and carry through coöperative action to lift production and employment to 1934 needs?

Urges Principles of NRA.

"Acceptance of the principles on which the recovery act is predicated—industry organized in trade associations and employés organized in self-governed unions, under chairmanship of the government—is the way to peace in industry, to coöperation for increased output of high quality, and higher living standards for producers."

After pointing out that maintenance of 1933 gains was about all the industrial recovery program had accomplished so far in 1934, the review displayed figures to show that the amount of goods the country produced per capita—national income—was less now than at the beginning of the century.

"Our fundamental difficulty at present is that American industry is not producing enough to maintain our people at a decent standard of living," it said. "For every ten units produced in 1899 we produced 13.1 in 1929, but only 9.5 in 1933."

ELDERLY VICTIM SHOT RESISTING YOUTH IN HOLDUP

A young robber shot an elderly man who resisted his efforts at a holdup last night. The victim is Fred Kokoska, 56 years old, of 6603 Ingleside avenue, who, with his wife, Greta, had been visiting friends at 432 Garfield avenue.

Kokoska was in his automobile waiting for his wife to come out when the robber came up, thrust a revolver at him, and ordered him to put up his hands. Instead of complying, Kokoska leaped from the car and grappled with the youth.

The robber fired several shots in the tussle, one of which pierced Kokoska's side. At that moment a passer-by, Leo Glatz, 3002 North Crawford avenue, ran up and joined in the battle. He and Kokoska disarmed the robber and were beating him when the police squad of Sergt. Raymond Marshall appeared in response to a radio alarm.

The captured robber gave his name as Theodore Jaziello, 16 years old, 1317 Chapin street.

Kokoska was taken to the Augustana hospital, where it was said his wound was serious.

TRIAL OF INSULL AND 16 TO ENTER 3D WEEK TODAY

Printing and Advertising Heads to Testify.

The third week of the Insull mail fraud trial opens today before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. The government expects to present the testimony of Washington Flexner, president of the Lincoln Printing company, and Samuel N. Becker, manager of the McJunkin Advertising company, both formerly employed by Insull companies in circulating stock selling literature.

The Lincoln Printing company of 732 Sherman street, filed the petition April 15, 1932, as a creditor of the Middle West Utilities company which ultimately threw the Insull empire into equity and later bankruptcy receivership.

Flexner's testimony will be restricted, however, to identification of printed matter ordered by Insull companies of his concern, it is believed.

The McJunkin company is an advertising agency which placed Insull advertising in newspapers, magazines, and other mediums throughout the country. Through the testimony of Flexner, Becker, and probably C. A. Mackey, superintendent of the Lincoln Printing company, material alleged to have misrepresented the value of Insull securities is expected to be introduced into the record.

Following the introduction of these exhibits, A. O. Landes, assistant superintendent of mails at the main postoffice, is expected to be called to the stand. Landes, it is said, will identify the exhibits as having been sent through the mails.

Organized Larceny.

October 14, 1934.

THE squirrels on the auxiliary farm have gone right ahead with their own plans so far as the fall harvest is concerned. For more than a week the smart little animals have been going into the fields to do a corn shelling job that is perfection itself. Of course the squirrels are committing petty larceny every time they shell corn, because they just sneak into the field, steal an ear and then wade into it, but this angle of their cornshelling business doesn't seem to bother them.

There is a rail fence along one side of the cornfield which is being visited by the squirrels. The animals pick a good sized ear of corn, carry it to the rail fence, sit down on the top rail and then the party begins. This new-ripened corn is sweet and not too dry. Apparently it is a welcome change from acorns and hickory nuts. Anyway the industrious squirrels take each kernel of corn, whittle away on it with their sharp teeth and thus get at only the starchy portion of the kernel. Some of these tidbits are eaten, but every day the animals carry a supply into the woods to be stored for winter use. You can find many of these corn shelling places on the rail fence. A corn cob with the husk on it, and chewed kernels scattered all around tell of the operations of the squirrels at their harvest.

The crotalaria in the test plots on the experimental farm refuse to concede the arrival of autumn. When I walked through some of the plots yesterday I noticed that three of the five varieties of crotalaria [legume] were in blossom as though it were July instead of the middle of October. One of the varieties stands about six feet high. At the tops of the stalks are many deep yellow blossoms. Just a few feet away the broom corn also is managing to ward off any effects of the frost, but just beyond this corner of the test plot the varieties of corn show that it is October. All of them have lost the last traces of green. They stand brown and dry today. Clarence Thurow, farm manager, placed a scale near the corn rows so that the stalks and the ears of each variety could be weighed and the figures recorded. The idea is to find out just how each kind of corn came out.

The pheasants that used to stay on the north bank of the river are glad to see some corn still standing in the fields on the south bank of the stream. When the hunters began to do a lot of shooting along the Fox at the time of the opening of the waterfowl season, the ringnecks decided to leave their old hiding places close to the river and look for quieter and heavier cover. Many of them flew south to the cornfields beyond Clarence Thurow's home.

2 POLICE STARS MISSING; CWES PUPILS OUSTED

The civil works educational service branch school in the west parks administration building in Garfield park was discontinued last Tuesday, it became known yesterday. The 100 or so students who attended the evening classes conducted in the police squad room in the building were told they would have to find a new place to hold the classes.

Students said the order ousting them was issued after two police stars had disappeared from the uniforms of park police which were hanging in the squad room. The announcement was made at the Tuesday classes that if the student or students who took the stars would return them the order would be rescinded.

The stars have not been returned, it was said last night, and the students have not found a new place to assemble.

Benjamin Shapiro, efficiency engineer for the west parks, said last night that the theft of the stars was the immediate cause of the ousting of the school, but a more important reason is that the space in the building is needed for the storing of records of small parks under the new park consolidation.

Frances Perkins Predicts Shorter Working Hours

Denton, Tex., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Considerably shorter working hours for workmen of the United States was predicted here today by Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, in an address before students of the College of Industrial Arts. The country is moving into a "surplus civilization" after a long period in a "deficit civilization," she said.

SEEK INDICTMENT OF 3 BOY KILLERS OF GRANDMOTHER

Evidence will be presented to the grand jury either today or tomorrow seeking the indictment of three youths who confessed that they killed the grandmother of one of them on Friday after robbing her of $32. Assistant State's Attorney Martin Ward said yesterday he would press for an early trial after indictment. Although refusing to testify, the trio were recommended held to the grand jury for murder by a coroner's jury Saturday.

They are James Soldat, 18 years old, 2120 West 18th street, whose grandmother, Mrs. Anna Soldat, 67 years old, was the victim; Frank [Red] Showronski, 17 years old, 2133 West 18th place, and John Machiewski, 19 years old, 2204 West 19th street.

At the detective bureau showup Soldat seemed to enjoy his notoriety when he was paraded before the spectators. Without hesitating he explained to Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan that he was held for killing his grandmother in a robbery. Then he smiled, looked casually at the audience, and walked off the stage. No other crime victims identified him.

RELIEF GARDENS PROVIDE 4,000,000 CANS OF FOODS

By the end of the month relief clients in Illinois outside Cook county will have put up nearly 4,000,000 cans of fruit and vegetables to help meet winter food needs, the Illinois emergency relief commission announced yesterday.

The work is being done by families on relief who cultivated subsistence gardens at 150 canning centers scattered through 81 counties, using 4,000,000 cans furnished by the commission. The program thus far has cost the commission nearly $300,000, according to announcement, and Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the commission, estimated the year's expenditure at $350,000 for this purpose. At an average retail price per can the output, it is estimated, will be worth about $500,000.

Allowing for garden truck consumed during the season, the total produce of the subsistence project was estimated by Mr. Reynolds at approximately $1,400,000.

20 CATTLE PERISH IN STOCKYARDS FIRE AT KANSAS CITY, KAS.

Kansas City, Kas., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Twenty head of cattle perished in fire of undetermined origin which swept pens and chutes in an area the size of a city block at the Kansas City stockyards today.

Eighteen companies from the fire departments of Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kas., prevented the fire from assuming dangerous proportions. Scores of cattle were led out of the pens to safety while the flames menaced them.

J. Thomas Wray, secretary of the live stock exchange, announced that only slight damage resulted in proportion to the size of the yards, and that it would in no way interfere with receipt of an estimated 21,000 head tomorrow.

The fire started a considerable distance northwest of the Live Stock Exchange building in Kansas City, Mo., and swept toward and across the Kansas state line. The Exchange building and packing plants were not endangered.

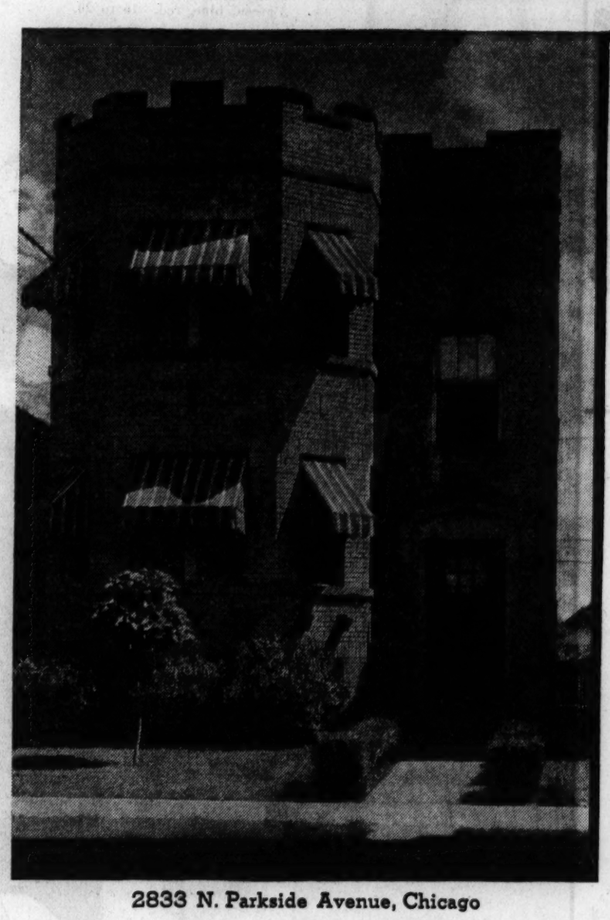
$348 Gas Heat bill..and chills
$160 Coal bill..and warmth



2833 N. Parkside Avenue, Chicago

MRS. MARY HANIGAN
2833 N. PARKSIDE AVE., CHICAGO
A TWO-FLAT OWNER, SAVES $188 PER SEASON WITH COAL HEAT

• "I am the owner of a two apartment building at 2833 North Parkside Avenue and have had two Gas installations just recently taken out. My reasons for switching back to coal heat are as follows:

"The amount spent for last year, heating two apartments and renting two gas burners, amounted to $348.00. This same building, heated with coal over the same period of time, amounted to $160.00.

"While we found that 72° was very comfortable for the dining room, the other parts of the house were so cold that it was not comfortable. Also on excessively cold days, when 72° was set on a thermostat, it would be several hours and sometimes all day before this degree of heat would be reached in both of these apartments.

"The basement was constantly cold. While using coal the previous year, the temperature was always comfortable in the basement."

Yours very truly,
Mrs. Mary Hanigan

EVEN if you're wealthy, and seek winter warmth at any price, you couldn't afford free fuel that didn't heat. That's why solid fuels are best. You can get the heat out of them because it's all there, an even, steady heat all day long and all night long. There's no cooling off of your heating system, and the waste suffered in bringing it back to house-heating temperature again. Coal and coke are doubly economical, with low first cost, and money-saving efficiency in burning. Do the wise thing. Assure winterlong comfort for yourself and family by ordering a supply of coal or coke today. Just call a member of this Association. You are assured of honest weight, careful grading, prompt and cleanly service.

Josephine Clow Weds Today in San Francisco

Simple Ceremony Planned in Stepsister's Home.

BY JUDITH CASS.

AT 5 o'clock this afternoon in San Francisco Mrs. Josephine Dunham Clow, daughter of Mrs. Richardson Dunham and Robert J. Dunham, will become the bride of John Rodman Hooker, son of Robert Gay Hooker of San Mateo, Cal. With quiet simplicity the service will be read at the home of Mrs. Clow's step-sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Jerd Sullivan, at 3760 Jackson street in San Francisco.

With the exception of the Sullivans—Mrs. Sullivan is the daughter of the present Mrs. Robert J. Dunham—there will be none of Mrs. Clow's family witnessing the ceremony. Her only sister, Mrs. Edgerton A. Throckmorton, is enjoying an autumn holiday with Mr. Throckmorton at the home of Mr. Throckmorton's mother, Mrs. C. E. A. Throckmorton at Newcastle, Me. In fact, they are enjoying it so much that they have postponed their return to Barrington until next Monday. Mrs. Clow's brother, Robert J. Dunham Jr., has been unable on account of business to make the trip from Lake Forest to be in San Francisco today.

Bridegroom's Brother to Wed Nancy Morse.

The bridegroom's father will hear the young couple exchange their wedding vows, however, and so will his brother, Rodman Lent Hooker, who is to marry Miss Nancy Morse, daughter of Mrs. George A. Richardson and Samuel F. B. Morse of Del Monte, Cal., here in Lake Forest on Nov. 10, and still another brother, Robert G. Hooker Jr., who married Wendel Kuhn's sister, Dolly Kuhn.

Mrs. Clow arrived in San Francisco on Friday and has been spending the past two days with Mr. Hooker in house hunting. They plan to make their home either in Burlingame or San Mateo. After their wedding this afternoon they will go to Pebble Beach for two or three days and then sail from San Francisco on Friday for a cruise through the Panama Canal and up to New York.

Landing in New York on Nov. 6, they will then come to Chicago to be here for at least one or two of the parties that will precede the wedding of Miss Morse and Mr. Hooker's brother, Lent. The day after this wedding—the 11th—they will take the new Mrs. John Hooker's two children, who are now with their father, Harry B. Clow Jr., and proceed to their home on the west coast.

Half Dozen Girls to Attend Miss Morse.

John Hooker will serve his brother, Lent, as best man, and all of the San Francisco Hookers will be guests here. Miss Morse's wedding is sure to be a lovely affair, for it is to be in the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest, and she is to have more than a half dozen lovely young girls for attendants.

Mrs. John B. Morse [the former Margaret McLennan] will be the matron of honor, and Miss Alice Berry of Nashville, Tenn., who went to Dobbs Ferry with Miss Morse and has visited both Miss Jean Wilhelm and Miss Ethel Johnston here, will be maid of honor. Miss Wilhelm and Miss Johnston will be two of the bridesmaids. The others will be Miss Peggy Hixon, Miss Barbara Bastien, Miss Patsy Keith, and Miss Beth Coleman.

Robert G. Hooker Jr. will be an usher for his brother as well as James Flood, Harry Poett, and Gordon McIntosh, all of San Francisco, John Drum of New York and San Francisco, Cornelius Bliss Jr. of New York, and John B. Morse, who is Miss Morse's brother.

Dorothy North Becomes Bride of Londoner.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Dorothy North of Lake Forest and Sidney G. Haskins of London, England, on Saturday at noon at the residence of the bride's sister, Miss Helen North, in Geneva, Ill. Only the immediate family attended the ceremony, which was read by the Rev. William Hanner of St. Mark's Episcopal church, Geneva. The bride is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William S. North of 7 West Walton place, prominent in industrial, civic, philanthropic and social life of Chicago for many years. Miss Helen North is leaving this week to spend the winter in New Mexico.

Anna Armiger's Betrothal Announced.

Of interest this morning is the announcement Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Armiger of Oak Park are making of the engagement of their tall, charming daughter, Anna, to Vernon Stephenson Balch, son of O. B. Balch, also of Oak Park. The romance was first revealed to two dozen of Miss Armiger's most intimate friends at an elaborate luncheon Saturday noon at the Armiger home at 174 Marion street in Oak Park.

This house, now on the edge of the village's fast growing business district, was one of the first large homes in Oak Park, having been built long before the turn of the century by Miss Armiger's maternal grandparents. Her grandmother, Mrs. Christiana Miller, was a guest at the party Saturday.

After her graduation from Smith college in the class of 1928 Miss Armiger traveled extensively abroad with her grandmother. Mr. Balch was graduated from Beloit college, where he was a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity. Miss Armiger and Mr. Balch will be married next spring.

Olga Uihlein Beneke to Wed Easterner.

Another distinct element of surprise in the party Saturday was the news Miss Armiger's cousin, Miss Olga Uihlein Beneke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Beneke of Highland Park, relayed of her engagement to Jansen

Janet Fairbank Shows Growth in Opera Debut

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Although Janet Fairbank made her first appearance in grand opera by singing the rôle of Siebel in "Faust" with the San Carlo Opera company on its week-end performance, it was not her first appearance on the Auditorium stage. She was a member of the company presenting "The Miracle" there some years ago, remaining throughout the run for the sake of stage experience.

It may have been a small beginning, but from it came growth. Miss Fairbank made use of keen intelligence in her public appearances, intelligence that goes not only to her manner of singing, but to costuming and stage demeanor. She made a highly pleasant impression as the operatic boy of Gounod's imagining, singing readily and freely, carrying off the stage business with a good deal of an air, and altogether making the rôle a definite personality.

Otto Amszden, a pianist hitherto unheard in this part of the country, gave a recital at Kimball hall yesterday afternoon, making Chopin an important feature of the program, since the sonata that contains the famous funeral march was followed by an elaborate group of briefer numbers. In a later group he also appeared as a composer, playing his own "Morning Tune" and "Cannibal Rhapsody." He is gifted with a set of fingers that hesitate at no technical obstacles, an exuberant imagination, and a dashing air that frequently won the applause of his audience.

Dr. Clarence Dickinson, formerly organist of St. James' Episcopal church, and now a resident of New York, is back in Chicago to assist in the anniversary services now taking place at St. James'. This evening he will appear in a recital in Thorne hall on the McKinlock Memorial campus of Northwestern university. Admission will be free.

Victor Chenkin, the singing actor, will appear at Orchestra hall Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Chicago chapter of the women's Zionist organization, Hadassah. His program will contain his classic group, "Songs of a Jester," and be followed by another group by Pierre Jean de Beranger. Later he will present Caucasian, Hebrew, Ukrainian, and Russian soldier songs.

"During the year 1888 there was a great snowstorm in Chicago, something like eight inches of snow; consequently transportation was not up to par and what traveling one did had to be done on foot. The story is concerned with a man living in one of the suburbs. On the second day of the storm his employer received the following telegram:

"'Dear boss, cannot get down today, as I haven't gotten home yesterday yet.'"

THEN there was the woman struggling along at A Century of Progress with four or five children behind her. She approached a "Fair guard and asked wearily, "Will you please direct me to the baby incinerator?"

MAYBE you knew it all along, but the police in Germany never did use German shepherd dogs, and the name police dog is erroneous. Also there is no strain of wolf in the breed. Officials of the Western Specialty Club association, which held its annual show at the Coliseum Saturday and Sunday, are authority for the statements. The breed is again becoming popular. It came into favor right after the war, largely because of Rin-tin-tin and Strongheart, then its popularity lapsed.

The police in Germany use Dobermann Pinschers, which are said to have a higher intelligence than the German shepherd. They are more expensive, too. A well trained Dobermann-Pinscher may cost as much as $2,000.

The Boston bull terrier is the only really American dog. It is a cross between a pit bull and the English bull terrier, and was tailored to order, so to speak.

Veloz, Yolanda Dance Adieu on Variety Stage

Ina Ray Hutton Does New Tricks with Jaz Band.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The vaudeville programs on view at the Palace and Chicago theaters this week have unusual elements of interest. Veloz and Yolanda, the most distinguished dancers that the night club era has produced, are saying farewell to Chicago for a term of months as the stars of the Palace's bill, and Ina Ray Hutton, leader of a novelty in jazz bands, is making her midwestern début in the stage show at the Chicago.

Veloz and Yolanda were merely another team of ballroom dancers when the Empire room in the Palmer house opened in the spring of 1933. They rapidly became the talk of the town, and during the last year and a half they have been almost constantly active. Their vogue recalls that of Vernon and Irene Castle in the prewar dancing era.

Their repertory of dances for this good-by engagement contains a new number, invented by them in the hope of adding something to the routine of the amateurs. They call it the "Veyo"—a synthetic word derived from the first syllables of their names. Their other numbers are the familiar "Estrolita," "Cobra Tango," and "Darktown Strutters' Ball." Next Saturday Veloz and Yolanda will entrain for Hollywood to dance as features in a new movie.

Ina Ray Hutton, at the Chicago theater, is causing veteran theatergoers to discover that something new can be done with a jazz band. She has 17 girl musicians in gay costumes seated at ornamental music stands, and they "get hot" and "go to town" with as much spirit as any males in the jazz profession. For people who have grown a bit weary of "the boys" who are so prevalent in the field of popular music, these young women, called "Melo-dears," are refreshing.

It is Miss Hutton herself, however, who arouses genuine enthusiasm. She is a Jean Harlow type, with a figure worth bragging about. She is as brisk as Eva Tanguay used to be; she wiggles the baton in a frenzy of triple time; she makes quick changes into gorgeous gowns, and she tap dances with skill and fury. In other words, she is a clever performer with a dynamic personality.

Miss Hutton has several auxiliary entertainers in her troupe, and the resident ballet at the Chicago is also employed to skitter about among the musicians in jaunty dresses. The stage settings for this and the other numbers on the bill are striking in decorative value.

"Mary of Scotland," with Helen Hayes in the title rôle, was promised to the Chicago subscribers of the American Theater society for an engagement opening Nov. 26. All this has been changed, however, because Miss Hayes has heard the voice of her motion picture master. The tour of this play under the auspices of the Theater Guild has been postponed until Miss Hayes makes another movie, and the subscribers are being notified that their tickets to "Mary of Scotland" will not be useful until next February.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt returned tonight from a visit to Reedsville, W. Va., where she went yesterday to inspect progress of the work on the subsistence homesteads which she has been sponsoring. She was accompanied by Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr., wife of the secretary of the treasury, and by her old friends, Mrs. Henry G. Leech of New York and Miss Gertrude Ely of Bryn Mawr.

The President returned tonight from a week-end trip on Chesapeake bay aboard the yacht Sequoia, which he boarded at Annapolis Friday afternoon. He had as guests with him the secretary of the treasury, Henry Morgenthau Jr.; the governor of the New York Federal Reserve bank, George L. Harrison; Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, and Capt. Wilson Brown, naval aid.

Mrs. Herbert H. Lehman, wife of the governor of New York, is spending the week-end in Washington at the Mayflower to visit their daughter, Miss Hilda Lehman, who is in a private school here.

Evening Costume of Golden Tissue

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

If we had to plaster still another mortgage on the old homestead to list a new sachet tassel among our worldly goods we'd do it without the turn of a hair or a pang of the conscience. We're actually that taken with it.

We have two reasons. The scent is the first. It's one of our weaknesses. We've told you about it before—the faintly exotic, thoroughly fascinating fragrance that was first created for use on fur. Women the world over went so mad about it it became an all around perfume, used summer and winter, on silks as well as sables. Its makers even brought out a cologne in that same swell scent.

But what a sachet! It's the most opulent, elegant looking tassel in the world, with the essence packed into a tight ball covered with tufted fringe. The idea is to suspend it from a closet hook and to let the fragrance steal into your clothes. It's so beautiful banishing it to a closet seems brutal; we'd like to hang one on every hook in the house, visible as well as invisible. The tassel is handsome and the fragrance glorious enough.

A year is a conservative estimate of the lasting quality of the sachet. Two or even three years might not be an extravagant claim. The colors are white [jot that down on your list for bridal shower gifts], yellow, orchid, blue, pink, and a bewitching green.

For all their beauty and all their air of luxury, these are not frighteningly expensive. You simply must own one—and we'll wager you will once you inspect them in Chicago's shops.

Pearls Add Drama to Evening Gowns Reviving Grandma's Era

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Along with the originals and copies of grandmother's jewelry—the big oval breastpins, the huge, wide almost barbaric bracelets, the dangling earrings—that you must wear with these charming old fashioned new-fashioned evening gowns, comes the revival of pearls.

Pearls with dull black wool, lovely pearls with black velvet, pearl brooches, rings, earrings, and necklaces. Even with sports clothes, pearls are not unusual, for a French designer wears her famous pearls with every dress or suit or coat in her wardrobe.

Romantic picture gowns of black taffeta, or velvet, these daringly different models with yards of material swishing and swirling around the ankle and the floor, with off-the-shoulder bodice tops must have cameo pins or heavy gold jewelry.

Look for the 1934 adaptations in one showing, gold combined with garnets, gold with turquoise, and gold with seed pearls, if you want a thrill. In a bracelet duet, a perfect pair of wide beauties with bangles dangling at the wrists, one looks and hopes for concealed compartments for a portrait or even a lock of hair, so faithfully have the old treasures been copied.

But nothing makes any costume more breathlessly dramatic, or more mysteriously feminine than the pearls you wear. You can find long, long necklaces, or ropes that can be wound a dozen times around your throat; you can find bracelets made of rows and rows of pearls like a wide band and the popular three strand combines—any way you like to wear them, pearls are the latest costume pieces of jewelry and take the fashion spotlight.

Fashion photograph. . . . Showing the splendor of the newest evening costumes, in a sleek tailored silhouette. The gold metallic brocade is shot with a rosy red tone, the tiny buttons marching down the front are covered with the same material. The wide cuffs are stitched to keep them flared above the elbow. The belt is of deep crimson suede held with decorative jeweled buckles.

BLAZING GUNS

By WILLIAM MacLEOD RAINE

SYNOPSIS.

Mary Landis marries Cole Sanborn, fearless young outlaw and suspected train robber, within an hour after meeting him. Their marriage is one in name only in order to fight against their common enemy, Chet Radbourne, powerful boss in the country and owner of Circle 3 T ranch. He has been trying to force Mary to marry him and has been stealing cattle from her Lazy B ranch. Mary is captured and taken to Circle 3 T ranch. Slim Calhoun, a good looking young outlaw in Radbourne's employ, has a run in with Jerry Haskell, Chet's foreman, and leaves Circle 3 T ranch and joins Cole. Cole forces Radbourne to surrender Mary and puts her under the protection of the Peters family in Jonesboro. Radbourne captures Rusty Hunter, one of Cole's trusted men, and a young boy named Morse. After giving Art Simmons a note to take to Mary in case anything happens to him, Cole captures Radbourne and forces him to make his men surrender Rusty. Then Cole and his men and Radbourne, their prisoner, await the return of Jerry Haskell with Morse. They defend the house against Haskell until Haskell fires it. Then they make a rush for the horse corral. Gray Shirt, as they call the hired killer, Faust, who has deserted Radbourne, gets Simmons to take Cole's note to Mary. Mary sends Sherif Magruder to the rescue. In her anxiety for her husband's safety she rides after them alone. Meanwhile Cole is besieged in the horse corral.

INSTALMENT XLIII.

THE CHALLENGE.

Slim walked out to meet the envoy of the enemy. He strolled forward jauntily, a figure of debonair ease. The man who met him was Bud Calloway.

"You fellows ready to surrender?" Bud asked.

"Surrender?" Slim echoed, apparently much surprised. "Hell's bells, no! We ain't started yet. Whatever put that into yore nut? We've got all the water and the food, and you fellows are stranded in the desert, as you might say. The trouble is that Cole is too doggoned tender-hearted. He's plumb sorry for you misguided ducks who are getting shot to pull Jerry's chestnuts out of the fire. You can't win, and if you did what would you get out of it but a kick in the pants, the few of you that were left. Already you have shot up old man Radbourne, after he gave you orders to lay off us. Do you reckon he is going to forget that when pay day comes? Not that old wolf."

"In the leg. He was bleeding like a stuck pig when we bandaged him up. Of course, if you ever should get the stockade, which isn't likely, Radbourne won't be alive. But what I'm here for is to send a message from Sanborn to Haskell. We have had orders from Cole not to kill any more of you fellows than we could help. I had a bead drawn on you when you picked up Mex. So did two more of us. We could have dropped you in yore tracks. Well, no more of that. If this fight goes on we aim to kill from now on. Here is Cole's proposition. To save the lives of a lot of you boys who don't stand to get anything but trouble out of this, Cole will meet Haskell in a duel and settle this difficulty man to man."

"Fair enough," Bud said. "If Haskell will fight him."

"I warned Cole he was a treacherous devil, but Cole says you boys wouldn't stand for bushwhacking if Haskell agrees to his proposition."

"We wouldn't, either," Bud spoke up quickly.

"Tell Haskell he can have his choice of sixshooters or rifles. Cole doesn't care what kind of a gun he kills Jerry with."

"You talk big, Slim. Jerry is some fighter himself."

"That so?" Slim asked, with an impudent grin. "Cole has made him take to the tall timbers two-three times that I know of. I was among those present when he bluffed Jerry off the map in Pete's place. I'll lay a little bet, Bud. Give you odds of a dollar to four bits Mr. Haskell crawls out of the fight unless he thinks he has got it fixed for him to win, and a dollar to two bits that if they ever face each other your bully puss boss will go down."

"Take you on both of the bets," Bud retorted. "Cole has had luck so far. He's about due for a run of bad cards. . . . All right, I'll take yore message to Jerry and be back with the answer."

Slim returned to the stockade and made his report. The talk with Bud Calloway had encouraged him. He had gathered an impression that there was considerable dissatisfaction in the camp of the enemy, less from what Bud had said than from his manner. There had been a complete absence of the aggressiveness one displays who feels he is a victor. Bud knew that three Circle 3 T men were dead and four others wounded, and he had no knowledge of any serious losses among the defenders. Plainly, he was ready to discuss an armistice. Very likely he represented a majority opinion.

After he had told what had been said by himself and Calloway, Slim summed up his feeling.

"We're not in as bad a jam as I thought, Cole, unless I'm fooling myself. A lot of those lads would like to turn loose of the bear if they get a good excuse. It's up to Haskell now. Looks to me as if he has got to take up yore offer. You have called for a showdown. He will have to let us see his hand or throw it in the discard."

Cole cleaned his revolver. He knew that if Haskell decided to accept the challenge he would not choose rifles. With a sixshooter the foreman of the Circle 3 T could hit a playing card four times out of five at twenty paces.

As soon as Bud Calloway came into the bunkhouse Haskell flung a question at him.

"Did you tell them my terms—that they would have to turn Sanborn over to me before I would even talk turkey?"

"We didn't get that far," Bud answered. "They haven't got any notion of surrendering."

"Then why for the white flag?" Haskell demanded angrily. "Can't fool me, if they did you. They want to quit. We've got them where they can't do a thing."

"Except kill us," a red headed cowpuncher grumbled.

"There won't be any more of that, either," the foreman promised irritably. "We'll wait till morning and pick 'em off from the hill."

"Maybe we better find out what the white flag was about if you're not too busy," a dark sullen-faced man suggested satirically.

"Sanborn says he doesn't want to shoot up any more of us if he can help it," Bud explained. "The old man has been wounded and wants to call it off. Slim says they have had orders from Cole to go easy on us, but from now on it will be different. Something in what he says, too. They sure could have finished me when I went out to get Mex, and they didn't even take a crack at me."

"Is that all you've got to say?" Haskell asked, his face dark with rage.

"Not all." But looked straight at the foreman. "Cole claims we hired hands haven't got any interest in this fight, and he is blamed near right. Thirty dollars a month doesn't cover getting shot up and bumped off the way so many of us have been. So he offers to fight a duel with you, Jerry, to settle the thing without any more of us getting hurt. He says rifles or shotguns, take yore pick."

Haskell thumped a heavy fist down on a table. "He's squawking. Knows we've got him and is trying to crawl out."

There was a moment of heavy silence. The foreman was not sensitive to atmospheres, but even he felt something ominous in that lull of suspended judgment.

"Sanborn is through—bucked out," he went on hastily. "Making a bluff to bull through a busted flush against a full house."

"I dunno, Jerry," a baldheaded, heavyset man said slowly. "Let's talk that over. The way I look at it, plenty of us have been killed already. Sense in what Sanborn says. You've been wanting a crack at this fellow, Jerry. Rub him out, and the war is over. Nothing more to it."

The sullen-faced man showed a set of ragged teeth in an ironic grin. "That's all. One crack with a gun. After that, peace along the Potomac."

"You talk like a fool, Arkansaw," Haskell ripped out, with an oath. "Don't you get the point, you lunkhead? I've got him. He is at the end of his trail and making a last play. Like I said, he's trying to crawl out. You aren't so dumb you can't see that, are you?"

Hardeyed, Arkansaw met his angry gaze steadily. "Some one is trying to crawl out. I'm not so sure it is Sanborn. You claim you have got him. He's in the wild horse corral, waiting for you with a gun in his hands, but I don't notice you going out there and roping him. I'd say you haven't got him by a jugful."

Bud Calloway went a step farther. "We've all heard you make your brags, Jerry. Now you get a chance to demonstrate. You wouldn't want better than an even break, would you?"

Tiny sweat beads broke out on Haskell's forehead. He looked round on cold harsh faces, not one of them in sympathy with him. Whenever he had dared he had bullied these men. Now he could see a cruel jubilation at his predicament. Angry at the situation into which he had led them, they had risen against him. Victory they no longer cared for, since it must be bought at a high price. Already they had paid too much in dead and wounded. Jerry had started this battle, had promised them a cheap success. All right. Let him finish it himself.

Josephine Clow Weds Today in San Francisco

Simple Ceremony Planned in Stepsister's Home.

Wendell Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Taylor of Wilmington, Del.

Miss Beneke and Mr. Taylor met last winter while Miss Beneke was with her family at their winter home in Sarasota, Fla., and they became engaged in February, but have withheld the announcement until now. Miss Beneke, also a first cousin of Mrs. Alfred Uihlein [the former Paula Uihlein], was graduated from Smith college after having prepared at Rosemary hall. Then she took graduate study at both the University of Grenoble and the Sorbonne in Paris. Mr. Taylor prepared at Exeter before going to the University of Pennsylvania, where he was graduated.

At a small tea on Saturday afternoon Mrs. Ferderick P. Luther of the Orrington hotel, Evanston, announced the engagement of her daughter, Ruth Ann, to Harry L. Stone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Judson F. Stone of Wilmette. Miss Luther attended Northwestern university, where she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority. Mrs. Stone is a graduate of Dartmouth college, where he was a member of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity. The wedding is to be an event of the late fall.

Reception Thursday for Louvre Curator.

One of the most important events of these two World's Fair seasons at the Art institute is scheduled for Thursday afternoon when M. Paul Jamot, member of the Institute of France and curator of painting and drawings at the Louvre in Paris, will be given a reception by the institute trustees as part of the celebration of French day.

Receiving with M. Jamot at 4 o'clock in the rotunda of the museum will be Potter Palmer, president of the board of trustees, Frank G. Logan, honorary president of the institute, and Dr. Robert B. Harshe, its director. The French consul, Rene Weiller, will deliver a word of greeting and then M. Jamot will respond with a short address in English. To make these speeches easily audible a special microphone system has been installed.

M. Jamot, a world authority on painting, has been sent to America on a special mission which includes traveling to see the most important museums of the United States. In Chicago M. Jamot has been visiting notable local collections of French pictures, such as those of Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Worcester, Mrs. Martin A. Ryerson, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster.

Upon leaving Chicago M. Jamot will spend a few days in French Canada and returning to France within the next fortnight. For the reception on Thursday, members of the Art institute will be admitted upon presentation of their membership cards.

Dinners to Precede Orchestra Opening.

This week will mark the opening of the forty-fourth season of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and already those who always have boxes for the Thursday night concerts or the Friday afternoon ones, or both, are making plans for their parties for the first concerts. The first Thursday night concert will be a gala occasion, with many dinner parties preceding the musical program in Orchestra hall.

Those who will have boxes on Thursdays this year are Mrs. Arthur M. Barnhart, Mrs. John A. Spoor, Ernest R. Graham, Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. Chauncey Keep, Cyrus Hall McCormick, Harold F. McCormick, John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. Walter A. Strong, Ivor N. Lawson, John J. Glessner, Albert A. Sprague, Mrs. Martin A. Ryerson, Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson, Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson, Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Potter Palmer, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, Frederic C. Bartlett, and Mrs. Francis T. A. Junkin.

The Friday afternoon boxholders are Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift, Mrs. Albert B. Dick, Mrs. Spoor, Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe, Mrs. Brewster, Ralph H. Norton, Mrs. Charles H. Morse, Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick, Harold McCormick, Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Clyde M. Carr, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. Blaine, Mrs. Francis Neilson, Mrs. William O. Goodman, Miss Gwethalyn Jones, Mrs. Arthur L. Farwell, and Mrs. Junkin.

The Service club has voted to give the usual cabaret ball after its revue Saturday night and cards have been mailed to the members and friends of the club. The annual revue is being produced at the Civic theater in the Civic Opera house, and the cabaret will follow in the Crystal ballroom at the Blackstone hotel. This party is always one of the gayest affairs of the season, but it never makes much money for the club because of the low price of the tickets. Mrs. John Dern, president of the Service club, has invited the board members and members of the press to have tea with her Wednesday at 4 o'clock at the Woman's Athletic club.

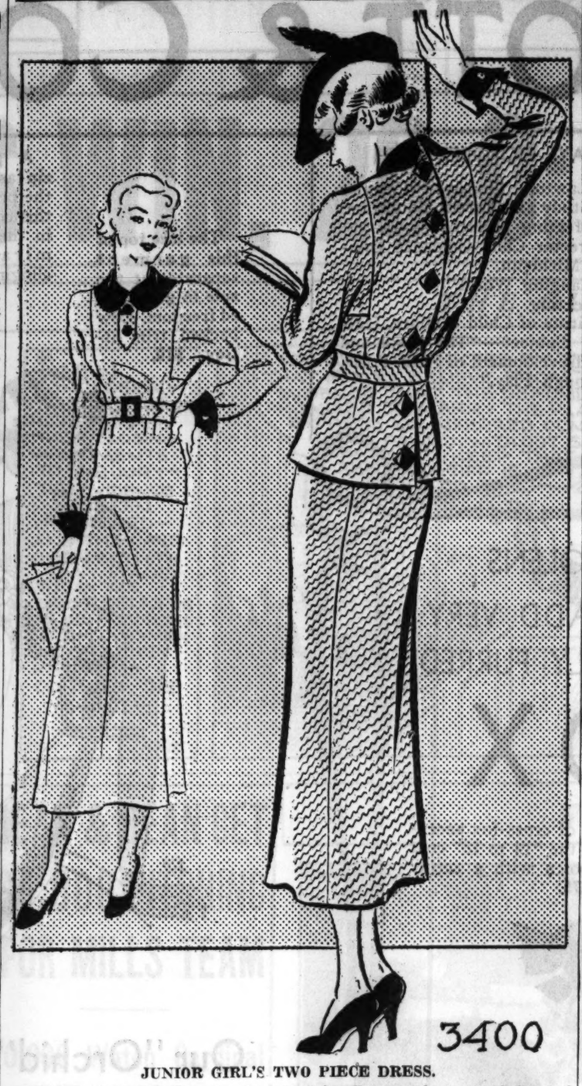
English Speaking Union Hears Woman M. P. Today.

There will be a large audience at the Union League club this noon to hear Mrs. Margaret Wintringham, the second woman elected to the British parliament as a Liberal, address the English Speaking union. Mrs. Wintringham is to discuss "The English and American Unemployment Problems—Dole or Public Works." Among those who have made reservations for luncheon are George Buckingham, Mrs. Bartle Bull, the British consul general, Lewis Bernays and Mrs. Bernays, the Clifford W. Barnses, and Mrs. Ralph T. Winston.

Six Vassar alumnae are going to model the latest in autumn and winter apparel this afternoon in the drawing room of Mrs. A. E. Patterson's home at 1400 Tower road in Winnetka. The occasion is a meeting of the North Shore Vassar club and "style" is to be the general theme of the afternoon.

Mrs. Botsford Young has accepted an invitation to discuss "The Art of Being Well Dressed" and Mrs. Katherine Smith Ferguson will direct the fashion revue. The models are to be Miss Elizabeth Buck, Mrs. Whipple Jacobs, Mrs. W. Gordon McKeldin, Mrs. Robert W. McKisson, Mrs. Phillip P. Merrill, and Miss Harriet Tilton.

Square Lines Are Tailored



JUNIOR GIRL'S TWO PIECE DRESS.

Today's two piece dress has the easy-to-handle squarely cut armholes, and is simple in every way to make. There are a number of combinations that will be lovely for this dress. The one sketched was in a gray tweed mixture with emerald green velveteen collar and cuffs and matching green, square-shaped novelty buttons. It will be smart for school, college, and general utility wear. Another blouse of plaided woolen in yellow, gray, and white could be made. Repeat the yellow shade in plain woolen for the collar, cuffs, and buttons.

Graceful Walking and Light Step Signify Youthfulness

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The real trick of walking with that divine grace that got the Grecian girls' pictures in the Iliad papers [and they had some lovely glide, believe Mr. Homer or not] is first to learn to stand with your weight not on your heels.

Stand up right now, as you read this, and see if you don't make the heels do all the heavy work. You are unusual if the weight falls on the broadest part of the foot.

A young woman told me the other day that she never realized how heavily she must have come down on her heels until she had rubber heels put on her shoes. The novelty of the new sound made her conscious of the heel pounding habit. She had grown so used to the lether heel pounding that she never thought of it as significant in any way.

You are going to hear more and more talk about walking beautifully; standing, sitting beautifully. It's a world left for women to conquer, now that they have the extra weight off the frame, the cheeks and lips all tinted, hair polished, and nails groomed. Maybe this topic may soon be a substitute for the reducing recitals that figure so largely in conversations. Any way, it is a good theme to introduce just to help along the good work of turning all women into goddesses with special tread.

As I have said a hundred times already, there is more youth to be found, or cultivated, in that foot of yours than in hair rinses, makeup tints, trained down silhouettes, all put together. Honestly! If you can get up and down on your toes in a light, lithe manner, you're not only good right now, but you are good for years to come. In the footlight trick you have undisputably the secret of why it is said of an older woman: "She doesn't look a day over 16!" A slightly exaggerated statement, it is granted, but the compliment indicates that much youth is still there.

You have heard a lot about not coming down on the heels as you walk. Go back one, now, and learn to stand with the weight NOT on your heels. It's the surefire preliminary to the young and graceful walk.

The booklet, "Low Cost Main Dishes," is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Cranberries, so inseparably linked with Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners, are now brightening the markets and waiting to add a holiday air to even the most drab of meals.

A glass of cold cranberry juice is a cheery starter for any breakfast. The berries contain two of the ever important vitamins—C and A.

Cranberry Juice.

4 cups cranberries.
4 cups water.
¾ cup granulated sugar.

Cook the cranberries and water until the skins pop open, about 5 minutes. Strain through a cheesecloth. Bring the juice to the boiling point, add the sugar, and boil for 2 minutes. Serve cold.

By the way, the sorting and stemming of cranberries can be just as simple a task as you'll make it. Save many minutes by using this method. Float a handful of the cranberries in a pan of water. Then the stemless berries may be quickly picked out from the water. Stem the remaining berries as you take them from the pan, discarding any that are not firm.

Another task these merry little berries perform well is that of pinch-hitting for strawberries. And therein lies the secret of this novel dessert.

Mock Strawberry Shortcake.

1 cup ground raw apples.
1 cup sugar.
1-3 cup crushed pineapple.
Pinch of salt.
Shortcake biscuits.

Combine the ingredients and let stand in the refrigerator for several hours. Serve on shortcake biscuits with whipped cream topping.

Ham baked with cranberry sauce is yet another surprise to keep up your sleeve—until the proper time for springing it.

Baked Ham and Cranberries.

1 cup cranberry sauce.
1 slice ham [¾ inch thick].

Gash the edges of the fat on the sliced ham. Sear both sides in a hot skillet. Remove the ham slice to a baking dish, cover with the cranberry sauce, and bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees] 30 to 40 minutes, basting occasionally.

Then, another meal, let it be:

Sweet Potato Boats with Cranberries.

4 large sweet potatoes.
1 cup cranberry sauce.
2 tablespoons butter.
4 tablespoons sugar.
1 tablespoon lemon juice.
¼ cup chopped pecan meats.

Wash the sweet potatoes and boil in slightly salted water until tender. Peel, cut in two lengthwise, and scoop out each half potato to form a slightly hollow boat. Place the potatoes in a buttered baking dish and fill each boat with cranberry sauce. Melt the butter and add the sugar, lemon juice, and pecans. Spread the mixture over the potatoes and cranberries. Bake in a moderate oven until delicately browned.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

SHORT-SUITED SLAMS.

Continuing our discussion of the opening bidder's procedure when his original bid of one no trump, made as dealer or second hand, receives a response of three no trumps, let us try to define the conditions under which he must pass and those where he may accept the slam try. Yesterday I gave a hand which, though containing only two aces, was so strong in other high cards that the player could visualize his parner's three tricks as necessarily supplying all slam needs. Opener therefore replied with six no trumps, relieving his partner from further worry or strain in the bidding. Let us review the situation when opener is not able to decide then and there for a slam on his own cards, but, nevertheless, may be hopeful of a slam, even though the responding hand was not able to bid four no trumps, but only three, for his slam try.

What Is a Minimum No Trumper?

The high-card standard for a no-trump original bid is, as you know, three and a half primary tricks. [I am now concerned with its high-card strength, not its characteristics as regards tenaces and protected suits.] For slam purposes this constitutes a minimum. Another natural assumption is that an original no trumper contains two aces. It need not, and for making a game the presence of a second ace is not very important when the two hands have been reasonably bid to three no trumps. However, for slam purposes aces are all powerful.

When to Pass the Slam Try.

Consequently you must not think of accepting a slam try if your hand is at the same time a mere three and a half primary trick hand and also contains only one ace.

When to Accept the Slam Try.

Should your hand contain four primary tricks but only one ace, accept the slam try by bidding four no trumps [unless you can bid a four-card suit]. Your partner must now have two, probably three aces in order to have been able to make his slam try.

For instance, if I held

Sp. A Q x	Di. K x x x
Ht. K Q x	Cl. K Q x

and the bidding went—one no trump, three no trumps; now I know my partner has at least two aces. He may have king of spades, ace-queen of diamonds and another ace; or perhaps just three aces. He cannot have the material for this kind of a slam try without at least two aces. Consequently I may accept the slam try because I know there is at most one ace against us, and I have a half primary trick in reserve. However, I cannot decide for a slam myself because my hand lacks the intermediates which may be required in the play. My partner may hold, say,

Sp. K x x	Di. A Q x
Ht. A J x	Cl. 10 9 x x

so that there may be two club tricks to lose.

Enabling Opener to Decide for Slam.

Had my own hand been

Sp. A Q x	Di. K J x x
Ht. K Q 10	Cl. K Q 10

I would know that the slam would be at worst dependent on a finesse or the drop of a suit; being able to decide for slam on the same reasoning as applied to yesterday's hand, I would bid six no trumps over three.

When Responder Can Decide to Slam.

Again, had my partner's hand been

Sp. K J x	Di. A Q x
Ht. A J x	Cl. J 10 9 x

assuming my opening hand to be as first given, the bidding would go—one no trump, three no trumps, four no trumps. Now the responder knows I have four primary tricks and can visualize them closely enough to realize that slam will be at worst dependent on a finesse; probably it is a lay down with no finesse. He may therefore bid six no trumps with joy in his heart. There is plainly no weak spot in either hand. If my one and a half trick holding is in clubs [A Q X] with only the ace in spades, the finesse is probably for seven.

New York, Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Mrs. Peyton J. Van Rensselaer has returned from Newport, where she passed the summer.

Mrs. John Magee Boissevain returned yesterday from Bermuda and joined her husband at the Madison.

Intelligence Safest Basis for Obedience.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Ooo-ooh! Can I have this to take home with me?"

Her aunt realized too late that she had left open on the floor alongside of her sewing chair her box of buttons. Loose buttons and buttons on cards were being gone over by the eager fingers of her little niece who lived next door. Now a card of the best ones was clutched in a fat little hand.

"Can I take these home with me?"

"I'm afraid you can't, darling," she said. "You see those are going to be sewed on Sally's winter coat and I need them."

A moment's pause and back they went in the box.

The next spot to which this early investigating instinct led her niece was the open desk.

Little drawers were pulled out and their fascinating contents poked about or examined—a tiny purse, stamps, sealing wax, matches, baggage tags, and last—a narrow, mysterious case.

Efforts to open this resisted the none-too-strong fingers. The command, "Open it for me!" was obeyed and there lay a polished half black and half white object. Quickly it was seized.

Silence.

"What is it?"

"A cigaret holder."

"You couldn't use it."

"Yes, I could. I like it."

"You don't smoke."

"Yes, I do!"

The grasp grew tighter on the rather fragile thing.

"You see, honey, it's like this: A long time ago a friend gave me that for a Christmas present and I like it a great deal and I keep it in that case so it won't get broken. It's just like those thin glasses mommy broke yesterday. If you should drop it, it would break . . . will you put it back on its little velvet bed in its little black case?"

Deftly it was restored.

After several exploring sallies had to be squelched in like manner, a little notebook with its own little pencil in a slot was found and presented to the small niece.

The point, however, is this — that even young children can be appealed to with reasoning, and that they render in this way a more intelligent obedience [though it may be a slower one] than if they were taught to obey by command only, or for that unconvincing reason called "because I say so."

India ink never did come from India. It originally came from China, and is called "Chinese ink" in France today. Most of our India ink is now obtained from Japan. It is prepared from pine soot and the lampblack of sesamum oil. This is mixed with a liquid glue made from cowhides. A similar fluid called "sepia ink" is obtained from the "ink sacs" of cuttlefish and the octopus. [The drawings for this column are made with India ink before being made into plates for printing.]

Good Morning!

Put a gangster [smooth as silk]
On a farm. Teach him to milk!
Let him hear the tree toads squeak!
Catch um fishes in the creek!
Wander through sun-speckled glens!
Learn some "eggs" are made by hens.
Teach him how some of his habits
Place him in a class with rabbits.
Sunrise of a sunny day
Sweet "Maud Muller" raking hay!
Green grass 'neath his feet. Above him
Blue sky. 'Round him
Folks to love him. . . .
WOULD the mug repent his sinning?
Yern to make a new beginning?
Yep. If "Hideout's" got the dope
For the gangster there is hope.
Not within law's circling arm
But way down upon the farm. . . .
"Hideout's" gangster stuff gone rural
And I'm pretty sure that you're all
Going to think the story sappy.
Well—the cast will keep you happy.
R. Montgom'ry plays with finesse
Rôle that must have irked His Highness.
Miss O'Sullivan's a pet, too,
As the girl he gives his heart to.

Now I lay me down my pen.

Pieced Quilt Is Created Around Washington Idea

Washington's Puzzle.

In the history of today's quilt pattern there is much room for speculation and equal opportunity for dispute. BY WILFRID SMITH.

One week ago the football world was startled by a succession of upsets the like of which had not been recorded in recent years. Viewed in the light of last Saturday's results, these reversals were not upsets. The tide of fortune had veered, and yesterday's favorites now had become today's losers.

It is difficult for the cursory reader of football reports to accustom himself to change. During periods of supremacy Michigan, Southern California, St. Mary's, Cornell, and Ohio State—to name only a few—were accepted as leaders. When the period of leadership ends the change is regarded as something strange and phenomenal. Actually, for the best reason of all—inexperienced or inferior players—these universities now are forced to yield.

Southern California Fades.

Southern California, riding the crest for two years despite a challenge from Stanford last fall, suddenly has reached the end of the championship road. Washington State surprised the average fan, particularly the thousands who had no first hand knowledge, by its victory a week ago. Saturday the University of Pittsburgh emphasized the Trojans' plight by whipping Coach Howard Jones' eleven, 20 to 6.

Cornell, surprised and disarmed by Richmond, was beaten by Syracuse, 20 to 7. St. Mary's, following its glorious victory over California, was caught flatfooted by Nevada. Ohio State, primed by an overwhelming victory over Indiana, lost to Illinois, 14 to 13, in a whirlwind of action at Champaign. And Michigan, champion of the Western conference, or shareholder in that title, for the last four years, came a cropper at Stagg field when the revived Maroons, under Clark Shaughnessy, licked the Wolverines, 27 to 0.

The corollary of the theorem that Michigan hasn't got it this year was proved definitly by Michigan State on Saturday. State defeated Michigan a week ago. Saturday Michigan State swarmed over Carnegie Tech, 13 to 0.

Notre Dame Comes Back.

Notre Dame, which had gradually slipped from its national championship pedestal in 1930 to the position of just another team, which lost five games last fall, aroused from its lethargy to whip a shattered Purdue eleven, 18 to 7. It was not the manner in which victory was achieved by the Irish, for that leaves much to be desired by Coach Elmer Layden and his associates, as the fact that Notre Dame won that will be important in the renaissance of football at Notre Dame.

And in passing, one can not neglect Indiana's recovery from its beating at Ohio State. Saturday the Hoosiers tied Pop Warner's Temple eleven, 6 to 6. Almost equally surprising was the spark shown by the University of Nebraska. One week ago the Cornhuskers were swamped by Minnesota by three touchdowns. Saturday they edged out Iowa, 14 to 13, remarkable because of Iowa's easy victory over Northwestern.

Minnesota Has Power.

The Iowa-Northwestern-Nebraska-Minnesota line of thought furnishes proof of Minnesota power. It also demonstrates the weakness of Northwestern's wildcats, who on Saturday fell before Stanford in intersectional play at Palo Alto.

Other results followed precedent. Harvard defeated Brown. Yale won from Pennsylvania, 14 to 6. Princeton ran over Williams, 35 to 6. Holy Cross, Fordham, Army, and Navy kept their victorious pace.

This week there is no doubt that Minnesota's invasion of Pittsburgh's huge stadium is the outstanding game in the country. Pitt's decisive triumph over Southern California was not needed to make the exclamation, but it has focused attention. Minnesota, rested since its Nebraska victory, will need its vaunted veterans to cope with the power that has been manifested by Pittsburgh.

More Revenge for Pitt?

Southern California twice humiliated the Panthers in post-season games on the Pacific coast. For this, Pittsburgh now has gained satisfaction. But last fall Minnesota was the only opponent on a nine game schedule before which Pitt fell. That loss, 7 to 3, at Minneapolis, kept Pitt from national recognition and combined with its ineffectual record in other years caused the Tournament of Roses committee to name Columbia as Stanford's opponent on New Year's day.

Pitt has not forgotten. Pitt believes it can defeat the Gophers and, as the

20,000 Watch Cardinal Stars Win, 13-3.

The pocketbook of Mrs. Jerome [Dizzy] Dean, treasurer for the firm of Dean and Dean, pitchers for the St. Louis Cardinals, was bulging with $5,000 more yesterday after the pair went through the motions of pitching a few innings each to help the Chicago Mills semi-pro team defeat the Deans' barnstorming companions, the Kansas City Monarchs, 13 to 3, at Mills stadium.

A crowd of 20,000 taxed the capacity of the west side park and a few more curious thousands gathered at every point of vantage on the adjacent railroad tracks to watch the tricky curves and fast balls of Dizzy and Paul, heroes of the world series.

Each Yields Three Hits.

Paul was the first to go to the mound for the Mills and in two innings yielded three hits and had one strikeout. Dizzy relieved his brother and his record for two innings was three hits and three strikeouts. Two of the three runs scored off the pair were unearned, their jittery teammates for the day having committed seven errors.

Neither showed any signs of wanting to throw the curves and fast balls which led the Cardinals to the National league championship and the world's title against the Detroit Tigers. Occasionally they bore down when men were on base, but it was apparent that they were saving whatever is left in their pitching arms for the remainder of their trip.

John [Lefty] Sullivan and Doug McWeeney, a pair of veteran semi-pro pitchers, succeeded Diz on the mound and held the hard hitting Monarchs scoreless for the remainder of the game. The Monarchs collected eight hits, while the Mills pounded four Kansas City pitchers for 12 safeties. Score:

In Milwaukee Today.

The crowd was the largest of their trip thus far. Dizzy surveyed the park and smilingly inquired, "How many cash customers do you reckon this heah place holds?" as he stood near the Mills' dugout. Diz and Paul visited the Mills' counting room along with Mrs. Dean after the game.

The pair will play in Milwaukee this afternoon, but will return to Chicago late tonight to board an airplane for Philadelphia, where they will appear tomorrow night. Weather permitting, they will pitch along the eastern seaboard until Oct. 24, visiting in addition to Philadelphia, New York City, Baltimore, Paterson, N. J.; Syracuse, N. Y.; Cleveland, O.; Columbus, O., and Pittsburgh.

$14,000 So Far.

In four days of their exhibition tour Diz and Paul have made more than their world series shares or their season salaries, collecting $14,000. Immediately after the windup of the trip Oct. 24 they will reherse for two days preparatory to opening their vaudeville tour in New York City Oct. 26.

Their contract to perform behind the footlights will pay them $3,500 and expenses and is for three weeks, but they can cancel the third week of the tour if a movie contract is agreed upon. Diz and Paul, according to Mrs. Dean, will be $35,000 richer at the conclusion of their vaudeville tour.

Packers Roll Up 41-0 Score Against Reds

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Hank Bruder scored 22 points in a brilliant performance this afternoon to help the Green Bay Packers run up a 41 to 0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in a National Professional league football game. A crowd of only 4,000 saw the contest.

Bruder scored three touchdowns and kicked for the extra point successfully four times. He caught passes, smashed the line and intercepted passes to score for Green Bay.

Score in Every Quarter.

The Packers scored in every quarter and successfully checked every Cincinnati threat. At no time was the result in doubt as the Ohio team floundered, smashed back by Green Bay's superior power and air attack.

Arnold Herber's passing was another feature. Four of his tosses resulted in touchdowns, and many others were good for long gains. Jim Mooney's punting was the only redeeming effort in Cincinnati's play.

Bruder put the Packers in position for their first score when he intercepted a pass and ran it back 50 yards to the Reds' eight yard line. Herder then passed to Bruder for a touchdown, and the former Northwestern star kicked from placement for the extra point.

Bruder Goes Over Again.

In the second period, two passes, one from Herber to Laws, good for 30 yards, and another from Herber to Peterson, good for 27, put the ball on the three yard mark. Bruder then rammed left tackle for a touchdown and kicked for the extra point to make it 14 to 0.

A 40 yard run by Roger Grove put the Packers in a position for their third score. It brought the ball to the 10 yard line. Herber passed to Grove to that point for a touchdown. Bruder's kick failed.

Herber passed to Rose for 35 yards and a touchdown at the start of the fourth quarter and Bruder kicked for the extra point.

Bruder Intercepts Pass, Scores.

Bruder then intercepted a pass on the 48 yard line and ran it back over the goal line and again kicked for the extra point. Two runs by Bruder a few moments later were good for 50 yards to the 10 yard line. Laws took it over from that point, Grove kicking for the final extra point.

Peterson and Swanson scored for the Swedes. For the first twenty minutes the Swedes held the Norwegians on even terms, but after Eid scored his first goal the game turned into a rout. BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Second and fourth quarter scoring drives gave the Chicago Bears a 20 to 0 victory over the Chicago Cardinals at Wrigley field yesterday in the opening game of the professional football season in Chicago.

Aside from the introduction to the 17,500 fans of many new Cardinal players and the sensational Beattie Feathers of the Bears, the contest offered little to distinguish it from the last nine meetings between the two teams.

The Bears dominated the play throughout and were pressed only once by the new Cardinal offense which had been devised with the strictest of secrecy to upset National league teams and the Bears in particular.

Two Goals for Manders.

Its manifold machinations availed the Cardinals nothing against a stubborn Bear defense, while the professional champions were piling up their winning total by the same means through which they have marched to two successive league titles.

Jack Manders, place kicking full back, gave the Bears their first two scores on field goals in the second quarter and added the extra point after a pass, Carl Brumbaugh to Gene Ronzani, had given the Bears their first touchdown later in the same period.

One more touchdown was added in the fourth period and Manders also kicked the extra point after this one to complete the scoring which gave the Bears their 18th victory in 28 games against the Cardinals.

Cardinal Defense Cracks.

The vaunted Cardinal defense, which had stopped Cincinnati twice and held the powerful Detroit eleven to five first downs, kept the Bears from scoring in the first period, but the Bears piled up five first downs in that first period, added four more in the second, and finished up with a total of fourteen, eleven of which were made by running.

Feathers, who has been the spark plug of the champions' attack in four previous league victories, was equally successful against the Cardinal defenders. He carried the ball 15 times, getting away for sprints of 27, 20, and 15 yards and failing only twice to add to the Bears' total of 209 yards gained by rushing. Ninety-eight of these yards were Feathers' personal contribution, and on his last effort he went seven yards through the Cardinal line for the last touchdown.

Two Players Banished.

The spirited play that was expected to develop when these two rivals met manifested itself throughout the game and resulted in nine penalties on the Bears for a total of 77 yards. Lou Gordon, veteran Cardinal tackle, and Gene Ronzani, Bear half back were thrown out of the game in the third quarter, and twice by-play by Hewitt and Sisk set the champions back 15 yards.

This fierceness of play, however, did not make the game a particularly interesting enterprise. The Cardinals lacked the offensive strength they were expected to develop with their new system in which they start all plays from Michigan's short punt formation and shift into the Notre Dame, or the double and single wingback attack. Their one offensive spurt came in the waning minutes of the second half when Dougal Russell returned Feathers' 61 yard quick kick to the Cardinals' 25 yard line, and Frank Greene, Bill Smith, and Dave Cook made three first downs on as many plays.

Cook Tries Place Kick.

This brought the ball to the Bears' 41 yard line. A pass failed and Cook and Mike Mikulak, who was the Cardinals' chief ground gainer and sturdiest defender, added another first down. Russell, however, lost 13 yards when Bill Karr dumped him as he attempted to pass, and the Cardinals began the fourth quarter with a fourth down on the Bears' 38 yard line. Cook attempted a place kick on the first play of the period, dropping back, to the 48 yard line. His kick was short and Feathers ran the ball back 31

TURF BOOM IS ON AT SPORTSMAN'S IN CROWDS, BETS

Fans Jam Into Half Mile Race Track.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Something happened at Sportsman's park last week and as a result the sour countenances of the proprietors of most of Chicago turf grounds have been a little less grim.

The "something" was an unlooked for and entirely unexpected revival of interest among the Chicagoans in the racing which has been going on all summer in their own back yards. Turnstiles at some of the local tracks had already begun to creak in their rust and unsold mutuel betting tickets were accumulating by the basketful.

Fans Come Out at Last.

Then all of a sudden Sportsman's park—the merry go round some call the track because it is a half miler—opened a fall season that was to continue for 21 days. Horsemen may not have possessed the money to go elsewhere—at any rate they congregated in great numbers at the half mile course and when the entries began to appear fields were larger and in many instances better balanced than at some of the more famous tracks on the Chicago turf wheel.

Along came a week of fine Indian summer weather and the fans began to storm the gates at the small course located in Cicero.

Up went the attendence and the amount of money wagered each day. The betting figures tell the story of the sudden awakening of interest in Chicago racing. These approximate betting figures read as follows:

Monday	$104,000
Tuesday	96,000
Wednesday	110,000
Thursday	114,000
Friday	146,000
Saturday	206,000

During the boom years such figures would have looked small at a Chicago race course. Yet in this season of one lean meeting after another they blaze out like the electric sign letters in a movie star's name. Some of the major tracks were able to maintain barely a $100,000 a day average.

Half Mile Leads Way.

Hardly any one would have believed during the last two or three years that if a revival of interest in Chicago horse racing was ever needed it would come from the half mile course. This track almost overnight had quit dog racing and had edged its way into the Chicago turf scheme of things.

It may be this first week of racing under ideal weather and track conditions was not genuine evidence that Chicagoans are staying away from the handbooks and prefer to journey to the track to wager their money on horses they can watch run. Yet if the increase continues on through the remaining 15 days of the season there will be reason to believe there is at least hope for recovery.

Route for Juveniles Today.

Two year olds for the first time in Chicago this season will be asked to race a mile and seventy yards in one of the best events on this afternoon's seven race program. The battle attracted Albert Sabath's Sam Alexander, Mrs. E. D. Springer's Price Regret, the French Lick Springs stable's Kwamudi, Chappel Brothers' Monk's Shawl, and Dozana, a youngster just in from Rockingham Park which is owned by G. E. Ewins, the downstate banker-turfman.

Fans Complain of Handling of $1 Duck Stamp

BY BOB BECKER.

Uncle Sam seems to be fumbling the ball this fall in the handling of duck stamps, and with every fumble the ducks are losers. A ding to letters of complaint reaching us some postal clerks are refusing to sell one of the $1 duck stamps to would-be purchasers because the latter do not hold hunting licenses. The third assistant postmaster general, in a special bulletin of instructions issued Aug. 24, specifically tells the postal department that sales of the stamps can be made to nonshooters.

Here is one complaint about the handling of these new duck stamps. It is written by William K. Fellows, Chicago architect. He writes:

Tells of Experience.

"After reading your articles relative to duck stamps you may be interested in knowing of my experience. I went to the postoffice to buy a duck stamp. I was informed that my license would be required and it was necessary for me to personally affix the duck stamp to the back of the license. Later I went in with my license and was required to fill out a questionnaire answering questions about the number of ducks I shot last season and the number of days I shot. Finally they condescended to affix the stamp to the back of my license.

"I think this is a matter to be taken up with Washington, as the idea of the duck stamp is to afford needed relief to ducks. I know of a number of people who would buy four or five duck stamps and give them to their friends for their stamp collections, but I understand, under the ruling in force, this is impossible.

May Buy Many Stamps.

Under the ruling in force (as described in this department some time ago) it is possible for a person to buy as many duck stamps as he wants, providing the postal clerks follow that ruling. The trouble is they apparently are not obeying instructions, or experiences like that of Mr. Fellows would not be recorded.

It has been the hope of the biological survey that people other than hunters would help the ducks by buying $1 stamps. To make this easier for everybody supplementary instructions were issued to all postoffices on the procedure to be followed, "especially when the stamps are desired by persons other than those requiring them for the hunting of waterfowl." This is quoted directly from the bulletin issued by the third assistant postmaster general.

Must Issue Stamps.

If a person not a hunter wants to buy a stamp the postal authorities are required to issue them affixed to the federal certificates, the certificate officially known as 3335. No hunting license is needed if the buyer does not intend to hunt. The instruction bulletin says you can buy any number of stamps in this way, and you have to fill out only ONE application blank (form 3332).

C.Y.O. Boxing Tourney Opens Next Monday

Opening competition in the annual Catholic Youth organization amateur boxing tournament will get under way a week from tonight, when the first sectional preliminary will be held at the West Side Community center, 4721 West Madison street.

Three hundred candidates from more than 100 parishes in the west section will participate in three nights of battling in an effort to win one of the sectional titles and thereby qualify for the quarter finals and semifinals of the tournament, dates for which will be selected today.

Following the west section trials, the south section preliminaries will be staged at the White City boxing arena on Oct. 24, 25, and 26. The north side will climax sectional competition in the city at Loyola university gym Oct. 29, 30, and 31. One day later the Joliet district will be conducted at Catholic High school gymnasium.

100 MILE EVENT AT ROBY IS WON BY DUKE NALON

Duke Nalon, the Oak Park youngster who earlier in the season won the 50 mile championship at the Roby track, took the 100 mile midwestern championship yesterday at the Roby-Chicago speedway.

Nalon completed the run, which was being held for the 10th consecutive year at the track under the direction of Jack Leech of Hammond, Ind., in the fast time of 1:28.4.

Second place in the title race, witnessed by a crowd of 2,000, went to Chuck Niesel, Evanston pilot, with the two remaining money positions going to Billy Rupp and Glen Price, both of Chicago. A unique feature of the event was the appearance in the field of L. L. Whitaker of Hammond, Ind., one of the oldest active pilots in the game. It was Whitaker's tenth Roby 100. He is the only driver in the country who has taken part in every championship one hundred miler at the track.

RODAK AND PAUL BATTLE TONIGHT AT WHITE CITY

Celebron to Face O'Shea at Marigold.

Tommy Paul, Buffalo, N. Y., former featherweight boxing champion of the world, will give Leo Rodak his twentieth professional test tonight at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue.

Rodak has won the nineteen previous bouts and his backers are confident he will come through again tonight. It has been so long since Leo has lost that many fans, who attend his matches just to be present when the apparently invincible loses, are becoming impatient and irritable. They will join Rodak followers in the trek to White City hoping this will be the night.

Paul Is Experienced.

At 24, four years Rodak's senior, Tommy is more matured than the Chicago star, and possesses superior experience, an important factor in a ten round match. The Buffalo boxer always is in superb physical condition, which enables him to exercise speed and hard punching throughout. He is sufficiently courageous, but does not take unnecessary chances, and so does not leave himself open for counter hitting.

Counter punching is one of Rodak's main weapons, and if this is nullified by the former champion it will lessen Leo's chances to chalk up another victory. At long range Paul depends on a hard left to the body, a punch that may weaken the Chicagoan in the later stages of the combat. However, a left jab to the face also is employed by Rodak and this weapon in the past has piled up enough points to win for him.

Rodak Content to Hold.

A point in Paul's favor in his apparent superiority at fighting in close. While Rodak is content to hold and await orders from the referee before breaking from a clinch, one of Tommy's best tricks is to lock an opponent's right arm with his left and score with long, hard rights to the ribs.

Jimmy Christy of the Catholic Youth organization, stablemate of Rodak, will meet Dave Barry, Springfield, Ill., in his debut as a semi-finalist in an eight round bout. Jack Gibbons, St. Paul middleweight, son of Mike Gibbons, will make his first local appearance against Lou Bartel at six rounds. A five round fight will match Nestor Bruggman with Georgie Trapp, and a four rounder will bring together Eddie Jackson and Young Kid Chocolate.

Billy Celebron, Rockford welterweight, who registered seventeen consecutive victories before losing, tonight will attempt to start a new winning streak at the expense of Mickey O'Shea in an eight round feature attraction at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. One of the best fights on the program should be that between Mickey Joy, Brighton Park, and Fred Cheynoweth, Manitowoc, Wis. They are slated to go six rounds.

Bill Treest, former Golden Gloves champion, will be in quest of his fifth triumph in as many pro starts against Steve Roberts in a four round engagement. Other bouts at this same distance will bring into action Milt Aaron and Gary Baldwin and Tony Mandell and Jack O'Brien. Clarence Smith and Zack Malkov will wrestle in the opening bout.

A series of intercity bouts between amateur boxers from Joliet and Chicago will head tonight's show at Community Recreation center, 4711 Madison street. Harold Fitzsimmons, Joliet, Central A. A. U. heavyweight champion, will meet Paul Williams, Chicago. In other encounters Babe Cormier, Joliet, opposes Patterson, Chicago; Buck Kanin, Joliet, faces George Snoddy, Chicago, and Ed Rozich, Joliet, boxes Sam De Pasquale, Chicago. Barney Peterson will appear in one of the four remaining matches. King Levinsky and his sister-manager, Mrs. Lena Levy, will officiate in two bouts.

Two combats at six rounds and two at four rounds will support the eight round main event between Mickey Joy and Patrick Henry, Chicago junior welterweights, at Mayfair Casino Oct. 23. . . . Davey White and Joey Bozak, rival junior lightweights, will clash at six rounds. . . . The other contest at six rounds will involve Freddy Caserio and a suitable foe. . . . Jackie Sharkey is booked to battle Joey Alcanter at Kansas City, Mo., tomorrow.

MAROONS GET NO REST; DRILL FOR INDIANA TODAY

Shaughnessy Fears Let Down After Victory.

While the University of Chicago football team was enjoying to the full one of those contented, reminiscent Sunday afternoons, Coach Clark Shaughnessy yesterday began making his plans for Indiana's invasion of Stagg Field this Saturday.

There will be no recess today for the squad, despite the fact that it has worked furiously in the four weeks preparation which led up to Saturday's victory over the Wolverines. Shaughnessy fears a let down, and also is of the opinion that the Maroons will not be a really well drilled team for another two weeks.

Ned Bartlett, sophomore half back from California, was the talk of the campus yesterday. Bartlett was in last Saturday's game just twelve minutes, during which time he scored two touchdowns for 12 points and carried the ball six times for an average of better than 11 yards per try.

There was also much talk about the Maroon blocking, particularly on Berwanger's 43 yard touchdown run. Bartlett Peterson, a surprise starter at left end, appears to have clinched that post, which means that there will be four sophomores in the starting Maroon line.

The Chicago team suffered only minor bruises in the contest. Tommy Flinn came out with a charley horse, and Bartlett and Capt. Eli Patterson were nursing headaches.

WILDCATS SEE MOVIE STUDIO.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Nursing wounds which are mental rather than physical, Northwestern's football team visited the film capital here today before departing on the long trip back to Chicago. The Wildcats left their special train at Glendale after an all night ride from San Francisco. They were met by a fleet of cars which carried them to a movie studio. Later they were luncheon guests of the Northwestern Alumni club of Pasadena.

The players escaped the bruising game with Stanford's huskies with nothing more serious than bumps and bruises. Don Geyer, who played a fine defensive game at full back, was the chief casualty. He sustained a right leg charley horse.

In viewing the game in restrospect, the Wildcat players were of the opinion that Stanford was not as strong as Iowa. They charged the defeat to their own misdeeds rather than Stanford's greatness. No mention was made of the long train ride and the heat.

With the exception of lapses which permitted Bob Hamilton to get away on his two touchdown jaunts, the Wildcats defense withstood the battering of their heavier opponents.

Hamilton broke away for gains on other occasions, but the Cardinal drives were halted before any damage occurred. Capt. Kawal was the dominant figure in the Purple defense. Harry Leeper, at end, and Al Lind, at center, also played well.

Offensively, the Wildcat's biggest threat was Bob Swisher, who sidestepped his way to an average of 20 yards on each punt return.

MORE A, B, C'S FOR IRISH.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—"We won on flukes, and the game could just as easily have gone the other way."

That was the verdict of Coach Elmer Layden of Notre Dame concerning the 18 to 7 Irish victory over Purdue yesterday. He said that he is still dissatisfied with his team's blocking and that he will spend this week, as usual, on fundamentals, preparing to conquer the Howard Harpster jinx next Saturday at the local stadium.

Harpster observed his first year as head coach at Carnegie Tech by defeating Notre Dame, 7 to 0, last year at Pittsburgh. In 1926 he was quarter back for the team which handed Notre Dame a 19 to 0 defeat, the only one on the Notre Dame card that season. In 1928 he returned and led the Tartans to a 27 to 7 victory over Notre Dame, the first an invader registered on Cartier field in 23 years.

Layden had praise for Wally Fromhart, third string quarter back, who provided most of the blocking furnished by the 54 players used yesterday.

ILLINI TO REST TODAY.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—The Illinois regulars who started against Ohio State yesterday will reap the reward of their prowess as Coach Bob Zuppke will rest them for a day or so, devoting practice chiefly to the reserves in an effort to bolster his replacements.

With the next game against Michigan two weeks away, the Illini will relax somewhat, although Zuppke is not underrating the Wolverines and considers the Chicago score against them resulted from Chicago strength instead of great Michigan weakness.

Zuppke probably will select some opponent to scout himself next Saturday. Among the games he is considering are Michigan against Georgia Tech, Wisconsin against Purdue, or Chicago against Indiana.

Among the moves contemplated tomorrow are the return of Arvo Antilla to tackle from end. Antilla played tackle last year but was shifted to a wing position this year. It is also possible that Wilbur Henry will be drilled as a half back.

State Chess Champion to Give Two Exhibitions

Sol R. Friedman, Illinois state chess champion, will give a simultaneous chess exhibition at the Chicago Beach Hotel Chess club, 53d street and Hyde Park boulevard, Thursday. On Friday he will give a simultaneous handicap exhibition at the Marks Nathan Jewish Orphan home, 1550 South Albany avenue.

Frankie Hart to Wrestle Dale Haddock Tomorrow

yards to the Bears' 33 yard line. This was the Cardinals' best and last sustained offensive.

The Bears took the lead early in the second period when they wound up a march Feathers had started from the Cardinals' 46 yard line after an exchange of punts in the first quarter.

Enter Mr. Manders.

Manders replaced Bronko Nagurski on fourth down with the ball on the 13 yard line, and dropped back to the 20, from where he arched the ball over the crossbar. Twelve plays later, after Ronzani had split open the Cardinal defense and Brumbaugh had passed 10 yards to Hewitt, bringing the ball to the Cardinals 26 yard line, Manders dropped back to the 33 yard line and kicked another field goal.

Feathers took charge again after the Cardinals had elected to kickoff to the Bears and in eight plays the champions were in possession of their first touchdown. The loose hipped, long striding Tennessean, who runs crouched over in a plunging position, got off tackle for a 20 yard sprint and a 27 yard run around end from punt formation. This put the ball on the Cardinals' 37 yard line. While the Cardinals were concentrating on Feathers, Brumbaugh whipped a pass to Ronzani, who took the ball, although cornered by Griffith and Murphy, and ran ten yards to the goal line for the score.

Can't Stop Feathers.

The last Bear touchdown followed Feathers' forty-four yard kick out of bounds on the Cardinals' eight yard line. An offside penalty set the Cardinals back to their three yard line, when Russell punted out to Feathers on the Cardinals' forty-three yard line. Feathers started straight down the field and gave his hips to half a dozen tacklers as he came back eighteen yards to the twenty-five yard line. Nagurski, on a delayed buck, broke through the center of the Cardinal line for fourteen yards and a first down. Sisk added two, then Feathers slicked off tackle, plunged out of the arms of Mikulak, and shot over the line. Manders added the point, making the high scorer of the game with eight points.

The effectiveness of the Cardinals' new offense, as executed by freshmen in the professional league, is best demonstrated by its net gain of thirty-six yards by rushing against the Bears, representing eighty-nine yards gained and fifty-three yards lost. Mikulak was the only man who could show any profit for the day, carrying the ball nine times for forty-two yards without once failing to make an advance.

REDSKINS, 39; PIRATES, 0

Boston, Mass., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Capitalizing on two early breaks with a pair of first period touchdowns, the Boston Redskins started for the wildest scoring spree in their National Professional league career, defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates, 39 to 0, at Fenway park today.

Out in front after the first four minutes of play, the Redskins led, 19 to 0, at half time and then piled up 20 points more when Pittsburgh passes proved boomerangs in the third period.

Cliff Battles, veteran half back, led the Redskins with two touchdowns, but Ted Wright, making his first appearance in Boston, provided the highlight when he broke off tackle and ran 59 yards for a score early in the third period. Charlie Malone and Ernie Pinckert, both on the receiving end of Boston passes, and Harold McPhail, who intercepted a Pittsburgh pass, made the other Boston touchdowns.

Milty Galatzer, Cleveland outfielder, Leo Ogorek, and Ruddy Laskowski, the latter two minor leaguers, led the winners' offense. Weiland and Eagle Bedore hit homers over the right field fence, drives of 400 feet. Phil Cavaretta of the Cubs and Myers and Rodeghier starred defensively. Score:

New York, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Ken Strong led the New York Giants to a 14 to 0 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers today before a crowd of 30,000 at the Polo Grounds.

The former New York university star shattered the Dodgers' line close to their own goal for touchdowns in the first and third periods and added one of the extra points with a placement kick.

In addition to establishing a monopoly on the scoring, Strong provided the interference for Quarter Back Harry Newman in a 56 yard run to the Dodgers' 6 yard line in the opening period. From here Strong bored his way over in two plunges.

Ralph Kercheval's kicking and Dick Nesbitt's backing up the line for the Dodgers prevented a Giant runaway.

LIONS BEAT EAGLES

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 14.—(AP)—The Detroit Lions kept their National Professional Football league record perfect today by defeating the Philadelphia Eagles, 10 to 0. Three previous opponents had been unable to score on the Lions.

Two breaks turned the tide in favor of the league leaders—one a fumble early in the second period and the other a lateral pass that went astray in the final period and was recovered by an alert Detroit end.

Ernie Caddell took advantage of the first scoring chance. He dashed for the only touchdown of the game shortly after the Lions had taken possession of the ball on the Eagles' 22 yard line. Dutch Clark kicked the extra point. In the second break, Clark again was called upon to demonstrate his skill in booting the ball between the uprights. This time he kicked a field goal from the 25 yard mark.

New York, Oct. 14.—(AP)—A player from one of the strong small college teams eclipsed the more famous stars of the eastern football sector when the individual scoring records were compiled after last Saturday's games as Kobrosky of Trinity held the lead by a margin of 12 points over his nearest rivals.

After the second October Saturday Kobrosky had piled up 48 points, scoring eight touchdowns. Seven others had 36 points each, all except one of them making six touchdowns. The one, Shepherd of Western Maryland, had five touchdowns and six extra points.

Sandbach of Princeton, whose total was 33 points, led in successful conversions with nine. Harvey of Holy Cross and Amport of Trinity were only one behind him. The leaders:

"FIVE-MAN BACK FIELD."

FOOTBALL rules which do or do not, according to the viewpoint, inhibit the moot five man back field of Coach Bo McMillin were written into the gridiron code during the reform wave of 1905. Their purpose was to prevent momentum plays of massed interference.

Before that, mass plays were common in offense, with an offensive group centering their charge against an individual or spot in the opposition defense. The flying wedge, of Harvard origin, was a notable example. Guards back, of which McMillin's play is a modern throwback, tackles back, Stagg's "whoa back," and many variations were all based on the theory of greater offensive power against some selected defensive point.

Also because interferers were allowed to push or pull the runner, such plays as the revolving wedge and "turtle crawl" developed. On the momentum plays, naturally more injuries resulted, while the slower power plays inevitably caused pileups with injuries frequent. There was a great hue and cry, rules were greatly changed, and many colleges even curtailed their schedules in response to public sentiment.

Pennsylvania's "guards back" started that type of offense. Wharton and Woodruff [no relation of The Wake] were big, powerful fellows called into the back field as bail carriers perhaps half the time the play was used, and as part of the interference the rest of the time. The great Hare and McCracken carried on the guards back later.

Director of Athletics Yost of Michigan observed this offense while at Lafayette and adopted a tackles back as more effective in his opinion, which he taught while coaching at Kansas and Stanford, taking it with him to Michigan, where his "point a minute" elevens began to function in 1901. Michigan's greatest effectiveness on this offense probably was with the great tackles, Mattock and Joe Curtis.

Yale also had a tackles back offense which Harry Williams introduced at Minnesota when he became coach there. Stagg at Chicago used an end back in the "who back" [origin of name escapes us]. Fred Speik, now a physician in Los Angeles, was its greatest exponent, although he was more often part of the interference than a ball carrier.

It was this type of plays which brought the present rule requirement of seven offensive players on the line of scrimmage when the ball is snapped.

Mighty Teams of Football on Skids for Sure

schedule now shapes up, with the possible exception of Notre Dame, Pitt apparently can finish the season undefeated if it disposes of Minnesota on Saturday.

Only two games are scheduled in the Big Ten title race. Chicago plays Indiana at the Midway, and Wisconsin and Purdue will open their conference schedules at Lafayette. It may seem strange for the Maroons to be a unanimous choice, but such is the case this week. If Chicago wins its second conference victory the team will have confidence to carry on in later games against Purdue, Ohio State, Minnesota, and Illinois.

Badgers Are Feared.

Wisconsin, with a comparatively easy game last Saturday, is feared at Lafayette. The result will hinge largely on the injury of Purvis, which was aggravated in the Notre Dame contest. Purvis and Carter, together, may pull Purdue through its conference schedule.

Illinois, having dealt the same one point defeat to the Buckeyes which they received last year not only from Ohio State but from Michigan, rests a week in anticipation of Michigan. Northwestern also skips a week and then plays Ohio State at Evanston. The Bucks have Colgate for their guests this week.

Carnegie Tech at Notre Dame, Georgia Tech at Michigan, and Iowa at Iowa State complete the week's schedule in this territory. St. Mary's battle with Fordham in New York, Holy Cross at Harvard, and Columbia and Navy at New York comprise a trio of outstanding attractions in the east.

UPSETS OCCUR IN CLASSIC LEAGUE BOWLING EVENTS

The second division teams of the Classic league scored three upsets last night when they bowled at the Lorraine Arcade. The Edelweiss won two from the Vrba Motors, the Classics took two from the Budweisers, and the Baby Ruths defeated the La Salle-Windsors twice.

The Monarch Beers were the only first division team to show a gain. They defeated the Pabst Blue Ribbons twice, which put them in a tie for second place.

The Monarch's 3,074 series was high; the Classic shot the high team game, which was 1,053. Eddie Krems of the Pabsts bowled the high individual series of 680, and Herb Freitag of the same team bowled a 268 game, which was the highest shot by any man on the squad.

EXTRADITION TILT WILL OPEN TODAY FOR HAUPTMANN

Defense Plans Attack on Removal Papers.

New York, Oct. 14. — (AP) — Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the German carpenter accused of killing the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, will appear in Bronx Supreme court tomorrow morning to fight extradition to New Jersey.

His attorney, James M. Fawcett, will argue for a writ of habeas corpus which, if granted, would nullify the extradition papers signed last week by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman.

Defense Ready to Appeal.

If the writ is denied, Fawcett has declared he will appeal the decision, indicating a possible delay of a day or two before Hauptmann's removal from New York jurisdiction.

David T. Wilentz, attorney general of New Jersey, will argue against the writ, presenting witnesses to support his contention that Hauptmann was present at the Sourland mountain home of the Lindberghs near Hopewell, N. J., at the time of the kidnaping, March 1, 1932.

Fawcett announced he will offer "about 15" witnesses, including Hauptmann and Mrs. Hauptmann, to prove that the prisoner was not in Hopewell the night of the abduction.

Fawcett May Bare Alibi.

Interest in the hearing, the most important legal step in the action since Hauptmann's indictment for murder in Hunterdon county, N. J., centers about the extent to which the defense will reveal its alibi case.

New Jersey officials have indicated they will expose no more of their case nor offer more witnesses than essential to refute the Hauptmann alibi claims.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, said he did not know whether he or Col. Lindbergh would testify, though from another source it was learned the flyer's appearance was unlikely.

Postpone Extortion Case.

Hauptmann also is under a Bronx indictment charging extortion of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom, but this case already has been indefinitly postponed, and Hauptmann's $10,000 bail on that charge has been vacated in order to make possible his extradition to New Jersey.

COL. LINDBERGH AND FRIEND GET REPAIRED PLANE

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew here to Mercer airport from North Branch, L. I., today. He came to get the blue monocoupe in which he sped east three weeks ago to testify before the Bronx county grand jury, which indicted Bruno Richard Hauptmann for extortion of the $50,000 kidnap ransom money.

The blue monocoupe has been under repair at the local airport since Sept. 25, the day the flying colonel landed here.

Lindbergh today was accompanied by a friend, Thornton Wagner. Lindbergh flew back to North Beach in the same plane in which he came, while Wagner followed him, piloting the monocoupe.

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Leonid Vitalievitch Sobinoff, for 35 years tenor of the Moscow and Leningrad grand opera, died here today. He was 60. He was en route to Moscow from Berlin on a vacation. Sobinoff was a favorite of Czar Nicholas.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Her Number Is Up

LEGION TO SEEK DRAFT OF MEN, INDUSTRY IN WAR

Miami, Fla., Oct. 14.—(AP)—The American Legion, after fifteen years of groundwork, was ready today to demand national legislation to insure universal service of the country's man power and industry in wartime.

Commander Edward A. Hayes of Decatur, Ill., arriving here for next week's convention of the Legion, said adoption of a statement of policy relative to universal service would be the meeting's chief business.

He tersely commented:

"The time to strike for the universal draft is here!"

The delegates who come here next week, representing 830,000 former service men, will be asked to dedicate the coming Legion year to a concerted fight to gain adoption of the draft program.

Assertedly to build a country so defensively strong that no nation would dare attack, and to take the profit from war if it should come, the legion is prepared to ask that three broad principles be moulded into the law of the land. They are:

1. National conscription in wartime.
2. The "freezing" of prices, profits, wages, and salaries at a pre-war level so that private gain could not result from the national emergency.
3. Adoption of a fair and equitable plan for utilization of all resources in the national conflict without special profit or privilege.

SOCIALIST-RED ALLIANCE GAINS IN FRENCH VOTE

PARIS, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Both the extreme right and the left parties were strengthened at the expense of the center as the result of country-wide elections of departmental councilmen completed today. The new Socialist-Communist alliance gained 25 seats today, while the Radical Socialists, France's dominant party, lost 19.

Combined with the results from last Sunday, when helf of the councilmen were chosen, today's returns made a net gain of 18 seats for the Communist-Socialist common front, facing its first test at the polls. Rightist groups gained 28 seats, while 46 were lost by the radical Socialists and other center parties.

These elections, ordinarily of secondary importance, took on a special significance this year because the Socialist party conducted its campaign along the same lines it purposes to following in coming national elections. Viewed as somewhat of a test, the balloting was expected to reveal the trend in French politics. The Socialist campaign stressed a plan for "industrial codes" to shorten hours but not to decrease wages, a plank apparently borrowed from the Roosevelt program in the United States.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Stations WJJD and WIND yesterday became affiliated with the newly organized American Broadcasting system following two days of negotiations between Fred Weber, ABS vice president in charge of operations, and Ralph Atlass, president of the companies operating the two stations.

Both stations canceled programs scheduled for yesterday and immediately began carrying the offerings of the new network from New York, Pittsburgh, and other points of origin. ABS, which has been operating on the eastern seaboard for several months, yesterday began operating with a string of 21 stations reaching as far west as Rock Island and St. Louis. The network has WMCA, New York, as its key station, and is headed by George S. Storer, long identified with broadcasting in the middle west.

Storer owns stations in Detroit-Windsor and Toledo which have CBS affiliations. These are not, however, a part of the new ABS chain, though Storer's association with them has given rise to reports that the new network has the backing of Columbia interests.

WIND, whose transmitter and main studios are located at Gary, has been operated as an affiliate of the Columbia system since it acquired the wave length of WIBO, Chicago, a couple of years ago. WJJD has been operated as an independent station under the Atlass management. It was formerly owned by Mooseheart interests.

Columbia service to WIND will be discontinued immediately. H. Leslie Atlass, vice president of CBS in charge of midwestern operations, stated last night. Leslie and Ralph Atlass are brothers and operated station WBBM before it was purchased by the Columbia network. Leslie Atlass was in doubt as to the status of the two network commercial accounts carried by WIND. These are the Fred Waring and Detroit Symphony programs, sponsored by Ford, and the Isham Jones guest artist show, sponsored by the competitor, Chevrolet.

Since the sponsors had contracted for time on these stations he felt that the programs would be allowed to continue. That matter is something, however, that is in the hands of William S. Paley, president of CBS, he added.

WJJD was delivered to ABS on Saturday after Weber had flown here from New York to negotiate with Atlass. The deal with WIND was not closed, however, until late yesterday afternoon after two days of discussion over terms. WJJD is off the air after sundown so its alliance still left ABS without an outlet in the major market of Chicago during the choice evening hours. WIND was the plum ABS wanted. WIND, though in Indiana, has a good position on the dial and covers the metropolitan area.

The ABS network put on a gala dedicatory program over its newly augmented network from 8 to 9 o'clock last evening, which originated for the most part at WMCA in New York and was carried by WIND. The new net has announced that it has been given permission to make its own pickup of White House broadcasts instead of tapping off NBC or CBS wires.

REV. BYRNE, ONCE 'THE $10,000,000 EVANGELIST,' DIES

Word was received here yesterday of the death at Toronto, Canada, of the Rev. David S. Kidd Byrne, once known as "the ten million dollar evangelist," who first came into the public eye seventeen years ago.

At that time Byrne announced he was the sole heir to a sizable fortune left him by one Wellington K. Byrne of Florida, whose daughter Lucy William Byrne he rescued from a saloon on the old levee in 1908. Byrne claimed to have taken the name of his benefactor when the latter promised to leave him sufficient money to found a home for unfortunate women. On the strength of this purported legacy, Byrne since then obtained many "loans" from mission workers and others.

During the course of years, Byrne valued the estate variously from $425,000 to $42,000,000. The authenticity of the legacy was never proven, although Byrne and his attorneys filed many affidavits in support of his claim. Until shortly before his death he had been detained for some time in an asylum at Toronto.

DR. FROST URGES STARS' STUDY AS SPIRITUAL RITE

Dr. Edwin B. Frost, famous blind astronomer of the University of Chicago, urged the study of the heavens as an aid to a higher spiritual outlook in an address yesterday to the congregation of the university chapel.

"I am unable to escape the conviction that a supreme reason prescribes the laws of the universe," he declared. "Simple observation of the heavens without a telescope at least twice a year might well be a rite of religious, educational, and philanthropic organizations."

Dr. Frost retired as director of the Yerkes observatory in 1932 after 34 years of service there.

GRAIN MARKETS AGAIN DANCE TO INFLATION TUNE

Gain Partly Lost as Prices Sag Abroad.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The inflationary ghost was lifted again in Washington last week to confound and confuse the grain market. For two days prices rose with a briskness that is seldom seen in the pits now. Just when traders began to toy with the idea that another inflationary market was in the making foreign wheat started an untimely decline and Chicago quotations tumbled after them.

In the short Saturday trading session the inflation scare was forgotten and all eyes were glued on the foreign markets. The moderate break in prices, however, failed to take away much of the weeks' early gains and wheat finished about 3 cents a bushel above the level of the preceding Saturday, while other grain boasted smaller gains.

U. S. Policies Influence Prices.

The semi-official statements out of Washington on the possibility of further inflation and the counter statements that went chasing after them were in keeping with the political traditions that the market has grown accustomed to in the last year or so. Rather than the fundamental conditions of supply and demand which underlie the market it is politics more than anything that provides the excuse for fluctuations in prices from day to day.

This was illustrated last week, during the two days that the market advanced under the stimulus of the inflation hypodermic. For several days the news which normally could be counted to affect the market was bullish. It took the Washington news, however, to start a real market and for a couple of short days it looked like the good old days, which the old timers on the Board of Trade like to talk about.

Political Talk Outweighs Facts.

Brokers can issue all the dope on the dire feed situation and the existing shortage that they can think of and it may or may not produce the expected result. A slight intimation from Washington, however, that the President thinks a higher price level is justified or an intimation that the dollar will be further debased can always be counted on to do the work.

Ignoring the restrictive measures against speculation, it is no wonder that the average speculator is unwilling to risk much in such a market. A judgement based on a study of the fundamentals of the grain situation may go for naught if somebody in Washington gets a notion to put out a new piece of news to help things.

It appears to be no mere coincidence that the inflation dope appeared just before election time. Some brokers even became indignant about the administration stooping to such methods. It didn't change things, however.

Wheat Advances Abroad.

Perhaps the most important development last week as far as the world situation is concerned was extension of the advance in Liverpool. The world price of wheat there continued climbing until 9 cents a bushel was added to its value. The reaction set in then but not severely enough to dim the significance of the advance or pare away much of it. Foreign news will again be watched this week as the market signal here. Without foreign help in the form of a rise in prices any material advance here is unlikely.

The following table shows the range of prices on the principal grain futures during the last week:

MEAT INDUSTRY LEADERS OPEN MEETING TODAY

Leaders in the packing industry and government officials will discuss various aspects of the packing business at the 29th annual convention of the Institute of American Meat Packers which will be opened this morning at the Drake hotel. Besides measuring the outlook for business in general and for the meat business in particular, the several hundred delegates to attend will consider foreign trade, live stock adjustment and relief measures, live stock purchases under the federal drouth relief program, and kindred subjects.

John W. Rath, Waterloo, Ia., chairman of the institute's board of directors, will give the opening address. Following him will be talks by James O. McKinsey, Chicago business counsellor; Henry F. Grady, chief of the trade agreement section, department of state; Dr. John R. Kohler, chief of the bureau of animal industry of the department of agriculture, and others.

A feature of today's program will be the presentation of gold and silver medals to packing house employés who have spent fifty and twenty-five years respectively in the packing industry. The awards will be made by Louis W. Kahn of Cincinnati. The convention will be concluded tomorrow night with a dinner at the Palmer house.

See German Trade Action Threat to U. S.

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Germany's renunciation of its trade treaty with the United States was described in American circles here today as "an attempt to force the United States to give Germany certain trade concessions."

It was predicted, however, that American business would refuse to be placed in a straitjacket, and that perfecting any new trade agreement would, therefore, be attended by the most severe difficulties.

"A so-called trade war between the two countries is most unlikely, because the thought of such a conflict implies that Germany has better weapons for competition than she possesses," it was said by an American source.

For a long time Germany has been dissatisfied with the most favored nations clause in her treaties, and she seeks, through bilateral pacts, to correct her adverse trade balance with each individual nation.

Sees Action Difficult.

"It would be difficult to force the United States into any concessions. Not that America necessarily would resent negotiating for a treaty more to Germany's liking, but American industries would not listen to dictation by the German government regarding products which might be sold to Germany. That would be the sequel of German demands.

"Making a new pact would be difficult, because the United States sells Germany raw materials, and an attempt to ration these as Germany wishes would be well nigh impossible."

The United States is selling to Germany three times as much as Americans buy from the reich. The Jewish boycott on German products and the prices of commodities here are probably responsible in part for the shrinkage in exports to the United States, it was said by qualified observers.

Exports to United States Drop.

German exports generally are about 42 per cent lower than they were at this time last year. In negotiations with other nations the reich is attempting to bring about an equal exchange of products.

The trade treaty renounced yesterday will remain in effect to Oct. 14, 1935. Had Germany not served notice of terminating it the pact would have extended to October, 1936.

Trade circles in Berlin expressed the belief the two governments soon would start negotiations in which Germany would seek a reduction of American tariffs to permit the reich to increase its market in the United States for textiles, steel products, toys, pharmaceutical and other finished products proportionately to the quantity of raw materials she buys from America.

SECURITIES ACT TO BE DISCUSSED BY ACCOUNTANTS

Delegates to the forty-eighth annual meeting of the American Institute of Accountants, which will open a four day series of sessions at the Stevens hotel today, will devote considerable time to studying accounting requirements of the federal securities act.

Several authorities, representing the government, corporations and the accounting profession, will participate in round table discussions of the law, which has been called complex in its specifications. Among speakers will be Arthur D. Whiteside, president of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., and former divisional administrator for the National Recovery administration; Wright Matthews, assistant to the commissioner of internal revenue; Carl H. Chatters, secretary of the national committee on municipal accounting; Charles B. Couchman, past president of the institute; and R. F. Starker, member of the institute committee to coöperate with the securities and exchange commission.

NEW BUILDING PROJECTS SHOW GAIN IN STATE

New building projects in 65 cities of the state during September gained 20½ per cent in number and 47½ per cent in the estimated cost over August, according to the Illinois department of labor. The estimated cost of projects in Chicago advanced 18.1 per cent over August.

Total projects for the state were 1,140, with an estimated cost of $1,801,220. The estimated cost was 23.1 per cent below the total for September, 1933. New building accounted for the gains over the preceding month. The estimated cost of projects in Chicago was $742,830, compared with $629,007 in August.

Gain in Phone Business Is Reported in New York

New York, Sept. 14.—James L. Kilpatrick, president of the New York Telephone company, said in a letter to stockholders that "an increased demand for telephones in the first half of September indicates that the results for the entire month will show a fairly substantial excess of new installations over withdrawals." He added that on the basis of estimates the company will enter the last quarter of 1934 with as many, if not slightly more, telephones in service as on Jan. 1 last. The company had a net loss of about 117,000 telephones in the first nine months of 1933.

STOCKS REACT TO UTTERANCES AT WASHINGTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 14.—"Washington advices," the secret of so many stock market rallies in the last eighteen months, provided the stimulus for still another moderate revival of speculative enthusiasm last week. On top of dispatches intimating that the new political control of the securities markets was of a mind to welcome some bullish operations about this time, came President Roosevelt's remarks at a White House press conference anent the necessity of a further rise in commodity prices as a phase of the New Deal recovery program.

A considerable element of the speculative community promptly jumped to the conclusion that another inflationary move of some kind was in the making and pitched into the market with a vigor that carried it forward more than three points in two days, the most important advance, from the professional viewpoint, in months. Turnover for the two sessions was around a million shares a day, or more than double the average of the last few weeks.

Market Turns About.

On Friday night, however, "advices" from the capital brought word that the speculators had taken too much for granted and that nothing like dollar debasement or fresh currency inflation was on the administration's program for the immediate future. This brought a sizable run of "disappointed selling" into the market on Saturday, although the net effect was a loss of only about a third of a point in the combined averages.

It was a matter of considerable comment, however, that so called "quality" stocks suffered but very little from the supposed reversal of sentiment and that the market, never acutely weak, was quite steady at the close.

To close up observers this meant only one thing—the rank and file of the market fraternity were not convinced by the Washington denials, however definite they were.

Expect Inflation.

In other words, the general belief in the street is, while no great inflationary move may be contemplated for the immediate present, a great deal of New Deal experimentation in the field of currency and price lifting is still in store and it is only a question of time when the country will be asked to resign itself to the inevitable.

On this theory many commentators are still convinced that the market movement is going further and are warning against the sacrifice of stocks bought at the extremely low levels that have been prevailing here of late.

Business Moves Ahead.

Aside from any new plans the government may have on the cards it is generally recognized that some real expansion in business, especially in the retail field, is taking place. Commercial loans have been rising for nearly three months. The huge credit reserves of the banks seem to be finding some increase in employment. The prospect of industrial peace and of less rigidity in business under the changed NRA policy admittedly is brighter.

Beginning tomorrow the street will have its first experience of operation under the new federal laws regulating exchange security trading and its first opportunity to judge whether the measures in fact are going to prove as distasteful as the prospect was. The general opinion seems to be that the transition will take place without a ripple.

CONGRESSIONAL AID FOR RAILROADS ASKED BY SUPERHEATER CORP.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 14.—Congressional legislation to aid the railroads is urged by the Superheater company in a statement to stockholders. Exclusive of its Canadian affiliate, the company reported a gross income of $521,757 and a net income of $378,120 in the nine months ended Sept. 30.

The statement to stockholders, titled "A Call to Action in Behalf of Business Recovery," follows:

"No longer can the fact be ignored that normal economic conditions can only be restored by stimulating the durable goods industries—of which your company and its associated properties are a part. Since the railroads are the largest single purchaser of durable goods, it is obvious that prompt and vigorous action should be taken to assure them increased earnings and purchasing power.

"In the first six months of this year there was marked improvement in railroad trafic and earnings and your company enjoyed a substantial increase in locomotive equipment business. But the picture has changed. Trafic volume has dropped and the railroads have been arbitrarily saddled with expenditures of some $300,000,000 through the pension act, an increase in wages and the increase in prices of commodities the railways buy.

"Improvement in the situation can only be brought about through remedial legislation and methods which will increase trafic volume and reduce costs. Indications point to serious consideration of transportation problems by the next congress, but consideration alone is not sufficient. Every effort must be made to urge constructive action by legislators to the end of assuring the prompt revival of this essential industry, upon which depends so largely the economic welfare of the country."

SAYS U. S. PLANS BIG SPY NETWORK TO WATCH TAXES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Establishment of a federal system of espionage on federal taxpayers to report directly to Secretary Morgenthau was said to be imminent in a statement issued today by America First, Inc., one of several organizations recently set up to survey New Deal activities.

"Aside from customs receipts," the statement averred, "all federal taxes will be secretly known to these federal spies who are to be designated by Secretary Morgenthau as 'fiscal agents of the United States.' No American citizen or business organization paying federal income taxes can survive under a federal network of spies."

It was alleged the system would be set up under a bill to create federal credit unions "jammed through on the last day of the session ostensibly to aid rural credit under the Farm Credit administration."

Fine Chemical Prices Reported in Slight Gain

The Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter's composite index number for prices of heavy and fine chemicals advanced last week from 125.6 to 125.7 [compared with Aug. 1, 1914, as 100]. In comparison with the average prices in 1926 [as 100] the Reporter's index number is now 89.0 against 89.4 at this time last year.

CHICAGO WHOLESALE TRADE SHOWS GAIN; RETAIL HOLDS STEADY

Wholesale activity moved higher in Chicago last week but retail volume clung more closely to recent levels, the Chicago Association of Commerce reports. The influx of more than 4,000 buyers for the mid-season market week conducted by 300 manufacturers and distributors in coöperation with the association was reflected in heavy buying commitments. Mail order sales also increased noticeably.

Winter clothing, holiday merchandise, toys and gift wares were in demand. Interest was keen in household equipment. Unusually good weather filled State street with shoppers, who maintained retail store volume on an even keel. Some outlying sections, however, reported consumer buying curtailed.

September Retail Prices Steady After Declines

After declining for five consecutive months, retail prices showed no change during September as compared with August, according to the Fairchild retail price index. There was a further narrowing of the spread as compared with a year ago, with the latest quotations showing a gain of only 1.9 per cent above the corresponding period a year ago.

8 MONTH PROFIT OF $248,789 SHOWN BY UNITED CIGAR

A profit of $248,789, after depreciation, resulted from operations of the United Cigar Stores company of America and store operating subsidiary companies for the eight months ended Aug. 31, according to a letter from the protective committee to the preferred stockholders. Concerning proceedings under section 77-B of the bankruptcy law, the committee states that having the support to date of more than 55 per cent of the outstanding preferred stock it is taking an active part in the new proceedings and will "participate in the contesting of any filed claims which it believes to be exorbitant or not allowable."

Tch! Once It Was 'Frozen' Real Estate

Life insurance salesmen are facile individuals. They have the knack of adjusting themselves to the times. It was not more than a year ago when the salesmen were stressing the amount of cash that their companies held. A short time ago a prospect definitly refused to take out additional insurance.

"Why should I take out insurance," he said, "tying myself up with a corporation that has its funds invested in fixed interest bearing obligations? If inflation comes along I'd be wiped out."

"Aha!" said the astute agent. "We are protected against that. Why, 11 per cent of my company's assets is tied up in real estate."

Campaign, says George F. Anderson, in his Legal Question Box in the magazine Real Estate, in reply to a complaint that people are not interested in buying real estate.

"In my neck of the woods," says the lament, "people have lost interest in real estate. If you try to sell them something they laugh at you. What they want is to rent, be delinquent, and kick. What can a poor real estate broker do?"

"Promote real estate conscience," Anderson advises. "Take sauer kraut for inspiration. Didn't the National Kraut Packers' association make America sauer kraut conscious and increase consumption 20 per cent? And it has been suggested morticians have a Cyanide and Potassium Day. Let's wake up to our opportunites."

Reports from South Haven, Mich., indicate that residents are indignant over the "chiseling" being done by the Home Owners Loan corporation. Negotiations that have been hanging fire for upward of a year were scheduled to provide mortgagors with the 4 per cent refunding bonds. They finally agreed to take 3 per cent HOLC bonds.

The corporation is now delivering the final papers. Those who signed are just learning, to their sorrow, that the final paper had a legend, in rubber stamp with type about one-eighth inch high, hidden in the upper left hand corner, that they agreed to accept 2¾ per cent bonds.

Advertising men may learn much from Smith Dalrymple, small town grocer and philosopher, who seasons his offerings of beans, potatoes and mop handles with such tidbits as this, which appears in his advertisement in the current issue of the Bridgeport [Illinois] weekly paper:

"O, Sally Rand, I think you're grand.
You whirl and dance to beat the band;
And with a fan in either hand
So lightly on your toes you stand
That though your every move I scan
I ask you this—just open hand,
Are you a blonde, O, Sally Rand?"

Orders 10 Per Cent Tax on Exports.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 14.—(AP)—China struck back tonight against the silver policy of the United States with a 10 per cent tax on all silver exports from China, effective Oct. 15.

H. H. KUNG.

H. H. Kung, Nationalist government finance minister, emerged from a 24 hour conference with Chinese and foreign advisers to announce the action.

The provisions of the tax were made flexible and were expected to be subject to change as necessary to restrain silver exports within limits required by the balance of payments.

The Nationalist government's decision followed upon receipt of the American reply to a recent note from China pleading for United States coöperation in maintaining silver prices and halting the drain of silver from China.

Fails to Satisfy.

The United States' answer, offering a measure of coöperation, but pointing out that the United States silver program was deemed mandatory by President Roosevelt, failed to satisfy the Chinese. Their deminished silver reserves were facing a huge new reduction during the next 48 hours. Exports of silver had reached ever-increasing amounts with higher prices in recent days.

Consignments aggregating $20,000,000 in Chinese money were scheduled to depart for America and London during the next few days.

The government's action was timed in order to halt a major portion of future consignments, although a few million dollars worth of silver was rushed past the customs before the order could become effective. These will be permitted shipment.

Announcement by China.

The Nationalist government's announcement follows:

INDUSTRY MAKES GAIN IN POLAND; MORE EMPLOYED

U.S. Reports on Conditions in Other Countries.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Industrial production increased slightly in Poland during August as compared with July, the commerce department said in its weekly survey of foreign business conditions.

The gain was occasioned chiefly by increased production of coal, pig iron, petroleum, and zinc, which offset the decline in the output of the textile industry. The cotton textile industry has been dull all summer, but the decrease in August was due primarily to the labor strike at Lodz during that month.

As a consequence of the general upward industrial trend, unemployment declined from 306,400 in July to 293,100 in August. Wholesale prices, however, decreased slightly in August, but on the other hand the cost of living advanced. Exports for August and the first eight months of this year exceeded imports.

Reports from Other Countries.

Philippine Islands—With the improvement in copra prices maintained, business interests are encouraged over the outlook. The local copra market is quiet and steady. A bill appropriating 4,000,000 pesos [$2,000,000] for expansion of the coconut industry by the national development company has passed the Philippine house of representatives. The majority of cigar workers, on strike since the middle of August, have returned to their factories, but all have not been reemployed on account of a decrease in demand for cigars.

Japan—Recent outstanding developments include the suspension of manufacturing operations in the Osaka district, which was visited by a typhoon on Sept. 21; the decision to call an extra session of the diet; and the agreement reached on the sale of the Chinese Eastern railway. Security prices reflect the increase in prices of such commodities as raw silk, cotton yarn, and rayon.

Chinese Silver Market Erratic.

China—The silver exchange market has been nervous and erratic since the beginning of October after exhibiting a rising tendency throughout September. The downward trend is attributed partly to speculators in silver circulating rumors of an embargo on silver exports or a higher export tarif, despite the fact that the minister of finance has reiterated that no such action is contemplated at present.

British India — Although August business showed the dullness always identified with monsoon months, both industry and trade maintained a higher level of activity than during August, 1933, and the decline from the pre-monsoon level was not as pronounced this year as last.

German Bond Collapse.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly answer the following: [1] What happened to Germany's government bonds after the collapse of their monetary system back in the early twenties? [2] How did utility bonds stand up? [3] What came of city, county, state, and municipal bonds? [4] How did investors save their money? [5] What kind of bonds proved to be the best investment for the German people? [6] What kind of property did people invest in that enabled them to escape the consequences of the currency debacle?—K. L. H.

Answer: [1] Some of the bond issues were repudiated entirely. When the old paper mark was repudiated holders of some government paper mark bonds were offered an opportunity for a limited period to exchange their bonds. The time limit has since expired. The government bonds were convertible at a rate varying from one 1,000 to one 50 billion mark bond [depending on date of issuance] for a new 25 mark loan liquidation debt bond. The new bonds do not bear interest. Bonds held continually since 1918 were exchanged for loan liquidation debt bonds which were callable at from five to eight times face value through an annual lottery arrangement. These bonds are currently quoted at about $75 per 100 mark bond. The bonds without such privilege are currently quoted at about $2 per thousand marks.

[2] They were exchangeable for a limited time for loan liquidation debt bonds at the rate of 1 mark for 15 per cent of the gold value of the old bond at the time of issuance. The gold value was computed at the rate of exchange in foreign currency of the paper mark.

[3] Exchangeable at 2½ per cent of the gold value of the old bonds at time of issuance for loan liquidation debt bonds. Some municipalities made a small cash settlement in order to eliminate the task of revalorizing.

[4] They did not—they lost it.

[6] Equities, such as actual goods [grains, other foodstuffs, wearing apparel, fuel, etc.], common stocks of certain types, real estate [although taxes increased heavily], etc. The escape, however, was only relative. Almost everybody lost at least part of his capital.

National Playhouses, Inc.

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate any information as to the value of National Playhouses stock.—H. C. C.

Answer: National Playhouses, Inc., was organized in Illinois in 1926 as a holding company. Practically its sole asset consisted of stock of National Theaters corporation, which went into receivership and whose property was sold. It was thereafter declared bankrupt. Stock of National Playhouses, Inc., is worthless.

Orders 10 Per Cent Tax on Exports of Metal.

guard China's economic interests and protect its currency, has fixed a customs duty on exports of silver effective Oct. 15, as follows:

"On silver dollars and mint bars, 10 per cent less 2¼ per cent minting charge—i.e., 7¾ per cent net.

"On other forms of silver, 10 per cent [in lieu of 2¾ per cent previously charged].

"In addition, an equalization charge will be imposed upon exports of silver equal to the deficiency, if any, existing between the theoretical parity of London silver and the rate of exchange officially fixed by the Central bank of China after making allowance for the export duty."

Statement by Kung.

Finance Minister Kung issued the following statement:

"There is no reason to expect that forces which have been stimulating the price of silver abroad will soon cease to operate. Therefore, the government, out of regard for the economic welfare of the people of China, have taken this measure as necessary to safeguard China's currency from a potentially dangerous strain on the country's monetary reserves and to place a check upon the harsh deflationary forces which have been reflected in falling internal prices.

"The measure has been determined upon after most careful consideration of various proposals for meeting the emergency, and after full consultation with leaders of business and finance. Among these proposals an embargo has most frequently been suggested. The government considers, however, that an embargo should not be imposed. It prefers a flexible duty that will restrain the exports of silver within limits actually required by the balance of payments."

Kung gave assurance that the measure would allay misgivings that have lately disturbed the markets and by stabilizing the situation permit legitimate business to proceed with renewed confidence. He said the possibility of reducing the silver content of the dollar had never been considered.

Expect Trade Reaction.

A lively reaction was anticipated upon Shanghai markets as a result of the restrictions. Government financial experts predicted a sharp depreciation in Chinese dollars in relation to foreign exchanges, necessitating a general readjustment of market values and price levels.

A cheap American dollar was considered probable once more. Chinese exporters were jubilant, hoping for a revival of export trade which has fallen to a low ebb in recent months because of high silver prices coupled with cheap foreign currency.

Through the sliding silver export tax the government hoped to stabilize the dollar at a low level.

Exchange of Notes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—An exchange of notes between China and the United States, made public tonight by the state department, disclosed that the administration has not fully complied with China's request to stop draining her silver stocks but will be considerate of her financial condition.

The protest from Dr. H. H. Kung, minister of finance at Nanking, which was delivered to Secretary of State Cordell Hull by Sao-Ke Alfred Sze, the Chinese minister, said the artificial stimulation of silver prices was discouraging the export of commodities and impairing China's purchasing power for imports.

"Could not the American government for the present restrict its purchases to silver already in America to avoid further promoting the drain from China?" concluded the protest.

Purchases Are Mandatory.

This the United States in its reply did not promise to do, pointing out that its silver purchasing program was mandatory under an act of congress. Eventually, under the terms of the silver purchase act, the United States must buy approximately 1 billion 300 million ounces of silver, or enough to make its currency reserve in that metal one-third of the gold reserve.

The United States' note, the terms of which have been awaited as an indication of the administration's future silver policy, was drafted after conferences between President Roosevelt and the secretaries of state and the treasury, Mr. Hull and Henry Morgenthau Jr. The reply stated in part:

"This program [silver purchasing] is embodied in an act of congress, which is mandatory as to its general objective. The ways and means to be used for carrying out this objective are left within the discretion of the executive, but of course must be consistent with the achievement of that objective.

Would Aid China.

"This government is desirous of so carrying out the program as to produce the general benefit that would result from the enhancement and stabilization of the price of silver, and to avoid so far as may be possible disturbances to the economy and public finances of China.

"Therefore, in conducting operations under the silver purchase act, this government, while necessarily keeping within the general purposes of the enactment, will give the closest possible attention to the possibilities of so arranging the time, the place, and the quantity of its purchases as will keep in view the considerations put forward by the Chinese government in its communication."

Secretary Hull's reply stated that free markets where silver could be purchased by all nations were now open and that for this reason no direct intergovernmental transactions had been undertaken. It added that the availability of such markets in the future was open to discussion and extended an invitation to China to participate.

STEEL DEMAND LAGS.

"There are no distinct signs of a real autumn increase in steel demand," reports the American Metal Market, "such little increase as has occurred being attributed to further depletion of stocks and preparation of the automobile industry for its new season."

VAN SWERINGEN FINANCE HINGES ON NEW U. S. LAW

Rail Control Is Involved in Plan to Issue Bonds.

New York, Oct. 14.—[Special.]—The plan of the Chesapeake corporation, a Van Swearingen railroad holding company, to market about $20,000,000 of bonds serves to exemplify the new status of such organizations under the interstate commerce law, according to legal opinion in Wall street. The law, as amended by the emergency railroad transportation act of 1933, places these organizations under drastic regulation.

The new law provides that, unless the interstate commerce commission gives authorization, it shall be unlawful to "effectuate, or to participate in accomplishing the effectuating, the control or management in a common interest of any two or more carriers, however such result is attained, whether directly or indirectly or in any other manner whatsoever."

Controls Chesapeake-Ohio Road.

The Chesapeake corporation controls the Chesapeake and Ohio railway through slightly less than a majority holding of its common stock. The Chesapeake corporation in turn is controled by the Alleghany corporation, which seeks to effect a recapitalization with the object of avoiding the forced sale of the Chesapeake corporation and other holdings.

Officials familiar with the Chesapeake corporation's plan for a bond flotation believe the transaction would be exempt from the interstate commerce commission's jurisdiction because it would not entail a change in the ownership of railroad control. As construed, the law does not place previous transactions by holding companies entailing railroad control under the review of the commission, so that, if the Chesapeake corporation maintains its C. & O. control unchanged, it would avoid this entanglement.

Change of Control Debated.

The question is raised, however, as to whether a shifting of railroad holdings within the Van Sweringen structure might come within the jurisdiction of the law. It is declared apparent that if, for example, the Chesapeake corporation should dispose of its C. & O. control to an outside interest, the transaction would be subject to the commission's approval.

The extent of the commission's jurisdiction should the Chesapeake corporation sell this stock to another Van Sweringen holding company, is said to be an uncertain point. This point is raised because of reports circulated some months ago, and later denied, that the Chesapeake corporation would transfer its approximately 3,700,000 shares of C. & O. common stock to the Alleghany corporation.

No question of the commission's jurisdiction has been raised in the proposed reorganization of the Alleghany corporation. This plan calls for the issuance of more preferred and common stock, but no aspect of railroad control is involved.

Rural Retail Sales Show Increase Over a Year Ago

Rural retail sales in the United States during August were 5 per cent above those of August, 1933, according to the United States department of commerce. From July to August, this year, there was a gain of 17 per cent.

Budgets and Expense Accounts.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 8.—In all radio talks to which I have listened and in all newspapers I have read the word "budget" is used invariably relative to balancing expenses.

"Budget" is commonly used by the British when speaking about their financial condition but I believe not one in a thousand in America can tell just what the word means.

I suggest when you have occasion to use this word you use "expense account" and then every one who reads will clearly and readily understand fully its meaning and take more interest in what you have to say on the subject. F. E. GIBBS.

Automatic Products.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 8.—On Oct. 3 you printed a story headed: "Bendix Concern Will Enter Air Conditioning Field." The story concerns acquisition of a majority control of two concerns by Automatic Products corporation.

A great deal of confusion has arisen as the name of our company—Automatic Products company—is similar to the one mentioned. Since we manufacture control equipment for the air conditioning field many believe we are affiliated with the firm your news item referred to.

We have no connection with Automatic Products corporation of Chicago in any way.

WALTER E. SCHULTZ,
Automatic Products Company.

Life Insurance Ratings.

Davenport, Ia., Oct. 6.—I read with concern an article entitled "Life Insurance Firms Ask End of Rating System" which you printed recently. I have always admired THE TRIBUNE in resisting any attempt to abridge the right of free speech either by legislation, coercion, or other nefarious methods and for this reason I appeal to you in the hope you will give this consideration.

For 20 years I have represented an insurance company in this vicinity during which period many things have happened but none which are fraught with greater consequences than the attempt of the American Life convention to force Alfred M. Best company to discontinue their rating system.

Confidence in life insurance has not been undermined by truthful opinions backed by intelligent interpretations of companies' annual statements nearly so much as attempts by some companies to conceal very pertinent facts relative to their financial strength.

I believe the Best company should continue to "hew to the line, letting the chips fall where they may."

LEON J. ZOECKLER.
